City, Town or Place / County or Province, etc. / State or Country:

The children were born in Old Fairfield. The 1st wife was the mother of all the children except Samuel.

Very soon after the death of his 1st wife, John, Jr. married the widow of Nathaniel Perry. She was another Hester or Esther, the daughter of Richard Lyon. She was born c.1658, married 1st in 1675 & died sometime after 1695. She had children by her 1st husband & Samuel, son of John Grummon, Jr. This is the wife referred to in the "Hist. of Old Fairfield" as "Hester Groment" who testified in the Disbrow Witch Case in 1692. The account states that she was his 2nd wife & in the same account her name is also spelled "Esther". When John (2) died @ 43, the oldest son, John III was only about 15 years old at the youngest only a baby. Two brothers-in-law were appointed administrators until John III reached maturity & Joseph became of age by 30th Nov. 1709. John III then became the administrator. The estate was finally divided, with the original administrators remaining in charge of shares for Thomas & Samuel.

Michael Try settled in Windsor, Conn. where he was made Freeman in 1640. Sometime later they moved to Fairfield, Conn.

His will, dated 13-4-1676, proved 26-4-1677, mentions his daughter, Sarah, wife of John Grummans, and his grandchildren, children of Sarah & John. To John, Jr. he left housing & lands near Uncaway River, to Samuel a house lot, to Thomas land in Concord & part of the long lot, to Michael -----? & rest of the long lot & the rest of his possessions were to go to Michael, Elizabeth & Sarah. (The last 2 were his grandaughters.)

Michael (1) apparently had only 1 living child.

John Thompson was very young when his mother died & about 15 at the death of his father.

He came to New England on the ship "Hector" & arrived in Boston 26 June 1637. He came with his brothers, Anthony & William. They came with other Puritans under the leadership of Rev. John Davenport. They settled in the area which later became New Haven, Conn. in 1640.

See chart for John's brother, Anthony Thompson (1) who married Katherine. This is to be found in the Coates-Stanton Line.

The 1st 2 girls were born in Cincinnatus, Cortland Co. The rest of the children were born in Pitcher, Chenango, Co.

Michael Adam's father purchased land in the T. of Cincinnatus, Cortland Co., N.Y. in 1830. If we assume that the family moved there from Sharon at that time, Michael A. would have been about 13 years old.

At about the time of his marriage he bought from his brother, Cornelius, Jr., the land which he had bought from their father. Michael A. and Emily had 2 girls born there before moving to Pitcher, Chenango Co. sometime between 1845 &1849.

Dear Helen,

It has been about two years since we were comparing notes on our Grummons families. I have just finished typeing over all my Coates-Gardner-Mericle-Grummons lines and sorting my notes and correspondence. Perhaps you have found the parents of your Clarissa. If you have I thought you might like to have copies of my line, including some of the maternal lines as well. I have more of them but they wouldn't be of much interest to you unless your Clarissa is closely related to my Nathaniel.

I am sending the charts in a separate envelope. I am also sending a couple of charts to Bob Grummon and to Marion Phillips.

Let me know if you had any luck with your search.

Elaine

(Mrs. M.R. Russell)

P.S. Sorry that the copies are so faint but my copier is not working very well.

Dear Mrs. Read,

Quite a bit of time has elapsed since I saw your insert in the Syracuse "Herald Journal". I clipped it out and attached it to my Grummon file. Then I became involved on other lines of research and just recently got back to the to the Grummon search. I am also writing letters to two others who have Grummon or Grumman ancestors. They both had queries in the "Gen. Helper" concerning Grummans of Fairfield, Conn. One mentioned John Grumman, who resided in that town in 1790 and the other a Lucretia, born there in 1782. This might indicate that the family was of English extraction. I had thought that they might have been from the Rhineland Palatinate as that was the case with the man my most recent Grummon ancestor, Emily, married. He was Michael Adam Mericle and they were my great grandparents.

Emily's parents were Nathaniel (Jr.?) and Lydia. I have the dates of their births and marriages from cemetery and census records. This Nathaniel was born about 1789 or '90 and is of the right age to have been a brother of your Clarissa, born about 1801.

I have found two possibilities as parents for my Nathaniel and or your Clarissa. They are another Nathaniel, listed in the 1790 Census as living in the Town of Ballstown (name changed to Ballston later), Albany Co., N.Y. (the town ,in 1791, was included in Saratoga Co.) In the 1800 Census the family was living in the Town of Salisbury, Montgomery Co. (this town, in 1791 was included in HerkimerCo.) & Another Grummon of approximate age of Nathaniel,the older, is Ezekiel, who was born about 1752 or before as he had 1 son of 16 yrs. or more according to the 1790 Census. According to the 1800 Census, Nathaniel, the older, was born between 1756 and 1774 as he was 26-45 yrs. at that time. Ezekiel was living in the Town of Otsego, Otsego Co.

There are also other Grummons listed in these two census records but we need birth records, death certificates or geealogies to make our connections. Have you ever heard or seen mention of a Nathaniel in your line? Perhaps I can find some connection at our Gen. section of our library tomorrow when I check for Fairfield, Conn. records.

I would be interested in hearing from you.

Sincerely,

(Mrs. M.R. Russell) 4621 Limeledge Rd., Marcellus, N.Y. 13108

May 23, 1985

Dear Elaine,

I'm sorry, but I don't have anything really new to add to our research at this time.

It sure will be nice if Robert Grumman has the whole list of Nathaniel's (b. 1746) children!

I got the Wentworth Genealogy a few days after I wrote you last. You mention a couple of sources I haven't checked yet, but I will do so next week when I go to Fort Wayne.

I have checked Clarissa's husband's family out. I have them quite well documented in Otsego Co. The Short's were from Killingly, Conn. and I'm researching there. In fact, we are going to vacation in Conn. this summer so I can research the Short's and Read's further.

I am sending you a few photocopies that might be of help. The intestate papers for John didn't copy particularly clear, but then my copy isn't the greatest either. I have been wondering if Isaac Williams could be John's father-in-law. Why would he be involved in the estate settlement if he wasn't an interested party. There are a lot of William's in Otsego Co. and I haven't checked that idea out very thoroughly.

I also did not find any marriage that I thought could be Mary Grummon's. You are certainly correct when you say New York records are sketchy. I've spent many hours going through the N.Y. DAR records and have found tidbits, but never what I really need to know.

I am also wondering - since it seems Nathaniel (b. 1746) lost at least two wives, and he might have had young children - were the children living with other families. That would be an easy way to lose them in an early census.

Our ancestors sure haven't made it easy for us to find them, did they.

Other than checking printed sources, I haven't done much research on the Fairfield Co. Grummond's. I thought I'd wait until I knew who Clarissa's father was, before I jumped into the rest of the family too deep.

I'll keep looking and hope that I stumble onto something. Logic hasn't helped so far! I am very interested in hearing what your two correspondants have found. It would be really super if one of them had access to a family Bible, wouldn't it.

Keep in touch.

Sincerely,

Helen

Dear Helen,

I have just finished writing to Marion Phillips & Robert Grumman. They have given me some bits of information & sources which I have finally been able to consult with some success. I think they may have more information which I have requested. Your research at Cooperstown has been a big help to me in analizing my findings. I have the feeling now that my Nathaniel, b. 1787 or '89 & whose wife was Lydia is the brother of your (?) John who may be the father of your Clarissa b. 1801. I also believe that these possible brothers are the sons of the Nathaniel b. c.1746 whose wife was Elizabeth. Robert Grumman has some information on the older Nathaniel which I have asked him to send me. When we find the names of his children we should have most of the proof which we both need.

Besides the sources listed on the enclosed charts, I have found information on the first four generations in the "Hist. & Gen. of Old Fairfiel", pp. 47 & 48, "Families of Old Fairfield" V. I, p. 245, "Founders & Patriots" by Colbert, P. 129 & "The Steven-Miller Ancestry" by Holman & Holman.

My mother, Rena Coates (her generation went back to using the original spelling of the surname. The "e" had been dropped when the family moved to N.Y. about 1790.) She was born in 1895 & married Leon Gay. They are my parents. Rena's parents were Frank Coats & Emily Mericle, b. 1855. Her parents were Michael Adam Mericle & Emily Grummons, b. 1821. (My mother was not sure how the name of her grandmother was spelled but she pronounced it as if it ended with "s" or "ds". (From your letter I think that was the case with your Clarissa) This information shows my line to the charts which I am sending you.

Unfortunately when I was checking the Census Records I found another Nathaniel in both the 1792 & 1800 Census. This has caused me a lot of problems because he couldn't be either the Nath. b. ln 1746 or 1787 or '89 because of estimated ages yet he was shown to have been living in the T. of Ballstown, Albany Co., (Saratoga after 1791) & this connected with your research there. I now believe that this Nathaniel of Ballstown ln 1790 & Salisbury in 1800 was a nephew of Nathaniel b. 1746 & s/o John (4). He could have been a s/o one of his older brothers, David, or Jedediah.

This nephew ?, Nathaniel, in 1790 of Ballstown shows 0 m. under 16, 3 m. over 16 & 5 f.
The same man in 1800 in T. of Salisbury shows 1 m. under 10, 0 m. 10-16, 1 m. 16-26, 1 m. 26-45, 0 m. over 45 & 5 f., 1 in ea. group.

This Nathaniel has no son 1-3 in 1790 &none 11-13 in 1800 which would have been the ages of Nath. b. 1787 or '89.

My records show that the Nathaniel in the 1800 Otsego Co Census was over 45 years & that he had a son 10-16 which includes a 13 yr. old.

(over 16 yrs)
As no female is shown in the 1800 Census for Nathaniel & he is the one who married Anna (as 2nd wife), he would have had to marry her right after the Census to have been the father of your Clarissa, b. 1801, almost eliminates this possibility. I think your find of the Guardianship Papers is lucky & important. John & Mary could have had a daughter (Clarissa) born in 1801 before he died in 1803. It is very possible that Mary remarried and for some reason the sons were required to have guardians to protect their inheritance. No mention was made of the 2 or possibly 3 daughters. Perhaps if you look for a genealogy of Clarissa's husband's family it might have a short account of her family; at least the name of her father. I have the account of the family of Lydia Wentworth, wife of Nathaniel b.1787-9. It is from the Wentworth Gen., 3 volumes, and from it I found the rest of their children & other information, some of which I need to cross check.

Nathaniel & Lydia lived in both Cortland & Chenango Counties.

I still lack any information about John IV (4) after 1765 and have very little, almost nothing on Nathaniel b. 1746. I hope to get some help from Marion & Robert on this. I will let you know if I do.

Esther & or Hester were names of wives of John Grummon, Jr., Elizabeth was the wife of Nathaniel who was born in 1746, Sarah was the wife of John I (1), Mary, of Mary Ann, might be the mother of Clarissa, if her father was John, s/o Nathaniel. When I checked the film for Conn. Grummons, I found in Ridgefield a Charles who d. 6-8-1847 @ 28 yrs. (b. c.1819. He m. Elizabeth Nash 10-11-1841 but I don't know where he fits in except part of this family may be the the ones mentioned in the Census as living in Westchester Co., N.Y.

Next time I go to the library I plan to look for a Smedley Gen. Damaris Smedly, w/o John (4), was mother of Nathaniel b. 1746. I might be lucky enough to find as much information as I did in the Wentworth Gen. In order to do that, though, I need the maiden name of Elizabeth, w/o Nathaniel.

If you could find a will for John (prob. impossible) or a marriage for a Mary Grummon after 1803, you might find names of her daughters in her will but her new husband's name would have to be known. Everything points to John & everything points to Nathaniel, the older for me. All we lack is proof. Records in N.Y. from the Revolution to about 1860 are very sketchy. When they were kept they were often destroyed by fire or just lost.

I hope to have more next time. I was so pleased that you and I are working on the same lines. Please send me your descent from Clarissa.

Keep in touch,

Elaine

P.S. Do you want charts for John(1), (2) & (3)?

Dear Helen,

The copies you sent me were very interesting and contained information which wouldn't have been available to me without going to Cooperstown and I didn't have a clue to the Cooperstown connection. I am enclosing a check to help cover the costs of the copies.

By now you know that I made a mistake in the parents of Lydia Wentworth. I now know that they were Alpheus & Mary Tubbs. When Ichecked the Wentworth Gen. I was about to leave the library and made the error in my rush.

I was very disappointed when I received my reply from Robert Grumman. The only information he had on Nathaniel, b.1746 was a record of land transactions and census records which we already had. A wife, Elizabeth was mentioned but no Anna & no children. Anna might have been a wife of the other Nathaniel who was in the 1790 Census in Albany Co. and in the 1800 Census in Montgomery Co. She also could have been a 2nd wife of Nathaniel, b.1746. The 1810 Census needs to be checked to see if there seems to be an older woman added.

As to Clarissa's date of birth, you can't even trust the cemetery or census records as children who may have furnished the dates could have been mistaken. Also written records are easily misread.

It might help if we could find where the parents of Nathaniel,b.1746, John IV (4) and Damaris Smedley went after selling their property in Sharon in 1765. (About this time there was trouble with the Indians in Western Conn. They may have moved east or south.) If their son, Nathaniel, was with them (he would have been about 19 yrs. old) he may have married in that place and children may have been born there. They may have been there through the Revolution. Maybe a Smedley Gen. might be of help if we can find one. I have started searching the maternal lines but haven't found much about our line. (I think yours is also mine)The only one I have found is "The Smedley Family" which has a small section on Smedleys of New England, page 903. I found Damaris Smedley (4) b. c.1715, m. c.1733 John Grummon. She was born 27-12-1715 at Straitfield, Fairfield Co., Conn. Her parents were Samuel Smedley, Jr.(3) & Abigail Dimon (no places mentioned.Samuel Smedley,Sr. (2)m. 1667 at Concord, Mass.Hannah Wheeler. He d. 2-8-1675 at Brookfield, Worcester, Mass. He was s/o Baptiste Smedley (1) who d. 16-8-1675 at Concord. Straitfield & other places in Fairfield Co., Conn. might be worth checking to see if the Grummons moved back there. From your letter it appears that you have pretty much covered a search of Fairfield Co. as well as Sharon. I will see if if I can find a Hist. of Straitfield.

* I have just been reading over the settlement of the estate of John Grummon which you sent to me. The date is 1804. I assume you believe that this John is a brother of Nathaniel b. 1787 and the father of the 2 boys who had guardians appointed.

I thought at first that this might be John IV (4) whose death record I have been searching for.

On one of the property sales records you have a notation about the town of Otsego no longer existing.Most if not all of N.Y. State is different from the Ohio and other states in its make-up. I believe that it is more like the New England states. Each county is divided into towns, not townships, but they are similar. In the towns are cities, villages which are incorporated, and unincorporated villages. The areas in the towns but not in a village or city are said to be in the Town of Marcellus which accurately,although inexactly, defines where we live. Our Post Office & mailing address is Marcellus (the village which is closest to us). So to be correct for this state you would say "the village of Otsego no longer exists but there is a Town of Otsego in Otsego County. Members of our family were probably farmers so their address would have been Town of Otsego, Otsego County. I don't know whether I have made this clear or not. My family, and I think people in general, have always referred to places which are larger than a village but smaller than a city as a town but is not correct in N.Y. State, especially when working with records. This has been a matter of confusion for others from the mid-west with whom I have corresponded. (Gracious,that sounds"preachy".)

Well, we are still about where we started. Marion Phillips sent me several copies of charts and I was able to fill in a few dates for which I had only found estimates but there was nothing on the children,s names;(Nathaniel b.1746's children). Your information about Cooperstown & Otsego Co. and the copies you sent me do a lot to fill in the picture of this family. I think you are definately descended from the same line as I am because of the Cooperstown common ground. You have about the same problem that I have. If I find anything on your Clarissa I will let you know. In the meantime we will both be continuing our search. We now know that we are not alone in our Grumman search.

Thanks again for all the copies.

Sincerely,

A Grumman Cousin, Elaine

Dear Helen,

This last week has been spent comparing notes on the Grumman family. Your speculation that the John in the 1800 Census might be a brother rather than a son of Nathaniel (5), also occurred to me. The fact that the four children were all under 10 years leads me to believe that the first oppinion was correct and that John was then about 25 and his wife about 26 years old. I am about 99% sure that John was a son of Nathaniel (5) and have listed him on the family chart with my Nathaniel, Jr. (6) as sons of Nathaniel (5) and Elizabeth. I have also listed the Anna (which you found) as his 2nd wife. They were apparently married between 1801 & 1807, according to census and land records.

Because Ezekiel is not mentioned as being in Otsego Co. after 1790 I think he can be eliminated as a father of your Clarissa which leaves only John, son of Nath.(5), and Nathaniel, himself, by his 2nd marriage, as father of Clarissa. We both agree on this. Which ever is the case we evidently are both descended from Nathaniel (5) and Elizabeth. Even tho we have never found any records of the names of their children, I feel that the census records indicate these relationships and I am accepting them for my charts.

I am still going to hunt for the where-abouts of John IV (4) and his family and Nathaniel, Sr. (5) and his family between 1765 when John sold his land in Sharon, Conn. and 1800 when Nathaniel is listed in the census as living in the T. of Otsego, Otsego Co.

(I should have read your letter again.)

I don't remember whether you have this information or not but the information which Robert Grumman sent me concerning the property purchases & sales made by Nathaniel (5) in Sharon from 1767 thro 1772 mention that they were living in Amenia Precinct, Dutchess Co., N.Y.His wife is given as Eliz. Some of the property had once belonged to John IV (4). This must be the Nathaniel (5)whose 1st wife was Elizabeth and was in Otsego in the 1800 Census,apparently as a widower. (As you will notice by the corrections, I was starting to mix up two different periods of land transactions.) This brings us to 1772. They bought and then sold the same property. Perhaps John(4) and his wife were also in Amenia Precinct with Nath. and family.

I have not found, nor have I been sent, any information concerning the years between 1772 and 1790. The Revolution was in progress from 1775 thro 1783 which may account for a lack of records. I have yet to check the service records for Dutchess Co. I also must check for other records there. It is probable that Nathaniel (5) may have left for the T. of Ballstown, now in Saratoga Co., to join his sister, Abigail, shortly after the war was over. The 1790 Census lists a Nath/l Grunnison, Albany Co.(now in Saratoga Co.) with 3m. 16 & over, 0 m. under 16 & 5 f. (If Nathaniel was our #5 & he was the father of my Nath. #6 who was born 1787 or 1789, there should have been listed 1 m. under 16.) I suppose it is possible if he was only a baby of 1year that the fact might have been ignored. If your John was born about 1775 (based on the census) he would have been 15 years old & should have also been listed as under 16 years. For this reason & also because I had found another Nathaniel in the 1800 Census who was living in T, of Salisbury, Montgomery Co. (now in Herkimer Co.) who also had 5 females listed, I decided they both referred to the same family and couldn't be mine as there was a Nathaniel & a John listed in Otsego which fitted the facts better. Perhaps this family were cousins of the one in Otsego. The Nathaniel in the T. of Salisbury had 1m. under 10, 1 m. 10-16, 1 m. 16-26 & 1m. 26-45; 5 f. (1 of each) It is still possible that the one in Ballstown in 1790 is our Nathaniel and this bothers me, even tho the number of females is the same as for the one in Salisbury in 1800. We have to keep in mind that the Cooperstown area is where my Nath.(6) & your Clarissa were each married.

I plan to check at the library for the two genealogies which you mentioned. I have used the D.A.R. records some I have found quite a bit of misinformation . It might be worth a try. I also have had quite a bit of luck with the allied lines. I hope to find more on the Smedleys than I have so far.

It will probably be about a month before I have achance to do anything more on the Grummon line. There is a family picnic on the 4th and then we leave for a short holiday to celebrate our 44th anniversary. I am also involved in exchanging information with two people concerning my Perry line. I have received 2 letters today which need to be answered soon.

This letter is a mess. As you probably have gathered, I am a one finger typist, I leave out letters and spaces and hit the wrong keys in my hurry. Tonite I am a little worse than usual.

I have been enjoying your letters. You sound as if you would be fun to know in person. I got a kick out of your "Oh rats that Robert G. didn't have more information". Well, he certainly sent me a whole batch today, about a dozen copies, but still we don't have the names of the children of Nathaniel, Sr. (5) & John (6) We need to know where they died and wills might then be found. I think you have done that for John. I shall try Otsego Co. for Nathaniel (5).

All for now,

Elaine

P.S. I didn't receive anything from R.G. It was from a Perry correspondent. It's 11:00 P.M. - too late, I guess for me to make any sense!

Dear Helen,

What a shame that when you were so near here that circumstances prevented our getting together some way. As it turned out, I came down with a summer cold the night before we were to leave for Cooperstown for our anniversary holiday and we decided not to go. I felt better by Saturday evening so we went out to dinner but we were here all the time you were in the Cortland area. It just occurred to me that it might be a good idea to have some cards printed to send to some of my correspondents who might be coming to Central N.Y.

When you were in Homer & Cortland checking on your husband's Andrews family did you come across a Dr. Andrews of Cortland? He was my Gay Grandparents' doctor in the 1920s.

When I first started family searching I visited the Cortland Hist. Society. I found some clues to follow in my Cushing line but not much else which is strange as all my lines ended up and stayed in Cortland and Chenango Counties. I had more success through the Town Historians and Court House records.

The next two week-ends we have spent in the area along the St. Lawrence River working on my husband's families. He has become quite interested and, as a result, I hope to get him to take me to some the places I want to go. One place is Amenia in Dutchess Co. where I think the elusive children of Nathaniel Grummon, Sr. were probably born. I agree that Stephen B. was probably one of his sons & as he was born in 1795 he would have been one of the the younger ones. It is very possible that Lucinda Fowler was a sister. Nathaniel, Jr. had a daughter Lucina, b. 23-12-1814 who m. in 1839, Samuel Hall and another daughter, with almost the same name, Lucinda, b. 10-19-1822 who m. in 1846, Sylvester Crumb. They may have been named for an aunt.

As my Grummon Line ends with Emily,(d/o Nathaniel, Jr.) b. 22-8-1820 who m. Michael Mericle on 24-11-1842, I haven't done any research on more recent members of the family. Emily & Michael lived in the Towns of German & Pitcher in Chenango Co. & Taylor, next door in Cortland Co. If you think some of your line were in Cortland Co., you might be interested in this clipping from an old telephone book for the Cortland area. It is very old (1975-1976) and probably not many are still at the same address~~s~~ or still alive. By sending copies of a letter to each one asking if they know of anyone who has family information, you just might locate someone who might be of help. The Zip Code for Cortland is 13045 & for Homer 13077.

This Friday I hope to get back to the library to see if I can find any records for Amenia. This place seems to be our best bet for missing information, at least for Nathaniel, Sr. & his children.

All for now, Elaine (P.S. I've just discovered I had the carbon in backwards!) (No, all of it was backwards your letter is on the onion skin.)

The 1st 2 children were born in Old Fairfield. Abigail may have been born there or in Norwalk-Wilton. The others were probably born in the latter place. The information on the last 7 children was found in the "Am. Gen.", the article by John Insley Coddington. He suggests that there may have been other children. His birth dates are estimates.

John's father conveyed land to him in Norwalk in 1737 where he moved in the same year. While there he also purchased more land. By 1760, 4th April, he was living in Sharon, Litchfield Co., Conn. where he purchased more land. In the same year he sold his property in Norwalk. The family was in Sharon only 5 years when the records show that he sold his holdings there in 1765. John IV was 55 years of age at that time.

The American Genealogist

THE GRUMMAN FAMILY OF BEDFORDSHIRE, ENGLAND, CONNECTICUT, AND NEW JERSEY

By John Insley Coddington, F.A.S.G., of Washington, D.C.

The spelling of the surname of this family varies greatly. In English records, principally of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, it appears as Gramat, Grammett, Gromant(e), Gromat, Gromet, Grommant(e), Grommet, Gromonnt, Gromont, Gromount, Gromund, Grumand, Grumant(e), Grummand, Grummant, Grummatt, Grummitt, Grummon, Grummont, Grummount, Grummunt, Grumond, and Grumont, nearly always with the final alveolar 't' sound. The most common spellings in England were Grummant and Grumant. Possibly it was derived originally from the Norman-French "Grosmont."

In New England, the spellings used to describe the family in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries were Groman, Groment, Grommon, Growman, Gruman, Grumand, Grumman, Grummin, Grummon, Grummond, and Grumon. The alveolar 't' was eventually dropped, and the spelling generally adopted by the Connecticut members of the family was Grumman, made famous in our own day by Grumman supersonic jet fighter planes used by the United States Navy.

Other branches of the family, especially in New Jersey and up-state New York, adopted the spelling Grummon. The compiler wishes to acknowledge with gratitude the kindness of Mr. Charles Carroll Gardner, F.A.S.G., of Madison, N.J., who contributed to this article the data on the Grummons of New Jersey.

The family under discussion was not numerous or widely spread in England. Records of its members prior to 1700 have been found in a few places only; at Clophill, Barton-in-the-Clay, Houghton Conquest, Maulden, Meppershall, and Upper Gravenhurst in south-central Bedfordshire; at Bletsoe, Cranfield, Holcote, Lidlington, Marston Morteyne, and Salford in the western part of the same county; at Linslade, co. Buckingham, just across the western boundary of Bedfordshire; and in London. The London records probably pertain to natives of Bedfordshire who moved to the capital. The greatest concentration of members of the family between 1600 and 1700 was at Cranfield, co. Bedford.

The well-known expert on Bedfordshire, editor of the Bedfordshire Parish Register series, and former archivist of Bedfordshire, Mr. F. G. Emmison, says in a note in the introduction to the Registers of Clophill [B.P. R. vol. 21] that "a remarkable case of a long-established family seems to be found [in Clophill]. The Grummont family of Clophill first appears in the subsidy roll of 1332 as Gromund; Gromonnt occurs in the Register as early as 1606. The name then disappears until 1752 ..."

The compiler has made no attempt to investigate mediaeval source material for the present article. He has confined himself to making abstracts of probate records from the Archdeaconry Court of Bedford and the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, extracts from Parish Registers published by Mr. Emmison in the Bedfordshire Parish Register series, and to culling a few items on this family from the Bedfordshire Archives in the Bedford County Record Office and from the publications of the Bedfordshire Historical Record Society.

The English records so collected are presented below, followed by a short pedigree of the Grumman (Grummant, Grummon) family of Cranfield, co. Bedford, Fairfield, Conn., and Newark, N.J., based on these English records and on indicated American sources.

Probate Records

Publications of Bedfordshire Historical Record Society

Vol. 18 (1936), pp. 43-88, "The Ship Money Papers of Hen. Chester and Sir Will. Boteler, 1637-1639," edited by F. G. and Margaret Emmison: No Grumman(t)s. Note: The absence of the name of John Grumman(t), the New England settler, from this list is an indication of his youth and unimportance at that time. The names of several of his friends, neighbors and relatives who emigrated to New England did appear thereon. On p. 66 we see the name of Richard Lettin of Salford, with the notation opposite his name "Gone to newe England." On p. 73 appear the names of Thomas Halsey and Richard Odell, both of Kempston, with the notations "Gone to New England," and also on p. 73 is the name of Thomas Wheeler of Cranfield, with the notation "Gon out of the Contry."

Vol. 16 (1934), "Bedfordshire Hearth Tax Returns, 1671, taken from Public Record Office, Exchequer-179, 72/301."
Section 306. Cranfield. Tho. Grumont, 2 hearths; Wm. Grumont, 2 hearths.
Section 309. Cranfield. Tho. Grumont, 1 hearth.
Section 312. Cranfield. Will Grumant, 1 hearth.

The population of Cranfield in 1671 was estimated at 761 souls.

The paucity of the above records is another evidence of the rarity of the name of Grumman(t), and of the relative poverty and obscurity of the family in Bedfordshire in the seventeenth century.

Pedigree of the Grumman(t) Family of Cranfield, co. Bedford, and of Fairfield, Conn., and Newark, N. J.

1. John Grummant of Cranfield, co. Bedford, yeoman, was probably born about 1595. The existing Parish Registers of Cranfield do not begin till 1600, and there are no existing Transcripts for the period. The names of his parents are not known, but his mother survived for many years, and as "Widow Grummunt mother of John Grummunt," she was buried at Cranfield 30 Sept. 1641. John Grummant himself was buried there on 15 Jan.1642/3. He was married in the adjoining parish of Salford, co. Bedford, on 4 Oct. 1624, to Elizabeth Wheeler, baptized at Salford 1 Jan. 1600/1, buried at Cranfield 15 March 1647/8, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Seeling) Wheeler of Salford, for whom see The American Genealogist, supra. vol. 27, pp. 38-9.

Children, baptized at Cranfield:

3 i. John, bapt. 25 Feb. 1626/7. Presumed to be the settler at Fairfield, Conn.
ii. William, bapt. 27 Sept. 1629. He was a shoemaker, evidently m. (unknown) and had at least the following children, bapt. at Cranfield:
  1. William, bapt. 31 Dec. 1652.
  2. Thomas, bapt. 26 Sept. 1654; bur. 26 May 1655.
  3. John, bapt. 5 Oct. 1656.
  4. Elizabeth, bapt. 15 Oct. 1659; d. young.
  5. A son, unbaptized, b., d. and bur.9 Nov. 1662.
  6. Joseph, bapt. 10 Jan. 1663/4.
  7. Dorothy, bapt. 18 Nov. 1666.
  8. Elizabeth, bapt. 6 July 1669; bur. 9 July 1669.

9. William, bapt. 24 Sept. 1670.

iii. Elizabeth, bapt. 22 Apr. 1632.
iv. Matthias, bapt. 3 July 1636.
v. Joan, bapt. 17 Feb. 1638/9.
vi. Ann, bapt. 22 May 1642.

2. Thomas Grummant of Cranfield, co. Bedford, shoemaker, was probably born about 1597 and was very likely a younger brother of John Grummant [No. 1]. He was buried at Cranfield 3 March 1662/3, having made a will (an abstract of which is given above), dated 14 Feb. 1661/2, proved in 1663. He married first, at Cranfield, 10 May 1634, Agnes Wodell, who was baptized there 12 July 1612, and buried there 27 March 1644, daughter of Thomas and Agnes (Burt) Wodell of Cranfield. Agnes belonged to a renowned and widely spread family whose name was often spelled Odell and Wodhull or Woodhull. Thomas Grummant married second, but not at Cranfield, Elizabeth ——, who was buried at Cranfield 24 March 1648/9.

Children by first marriage, baptized at Cranfield:

i. Elizabeth, bapt. 1 Feb. 1634/5. According to her father's will, she was wife of —— Hill by 14 Feb. 1661/2.
ii. Ann, bapt. 24 July 1636. She was a spinster and her father bequeathed to her £10 and all his linen and some household goods, and directed that she live with her brother Thomas for 4 years if she remained single. She d. unmarried and was bur. at Cranfield 18 July 1667.
iii. Thomas, bapt. 26 Mar. 1638. He was the executor and principal legatee of his father in 1661/2. He may or may not have been the "Thomas Grumant sen." who had a daughter Martha bapt. at Cranfield 14 Aug. 1666.
iv. William, bapt. 13 Feb. 1640/1. In his father's will he received a close of pasture at Wharley End in the parish of Cranfield, and also £40. He m. (unknown) and had children bapt. at Cranfield:
    1. Thomas, bapt. 29 Apr. 1665; d. young.
    2. Joan, bapt. 15 Jan. 1666/7.
    3. Thomas, bapt. 27 June 1669, as "son of William Grumant of Wharley End"; bur. 24 Nov. 1670.

3. John^1 Grummant or Grumman, the New England settler, was almost surely the "John son of John Grommet" who was baptized at Cranfield, co. Bedford, 25 Feb. 1626/7, the eldest son of John and Elizabeth (Wheeler) Grummant of Cranfield, for whom see above, No. 1. As has been pointed out, the Grummant family was extremely small, and this is the only John Grummant that has been found who is of the right age to be identical with the settler. But what is much more pertinent is the fact that the settler was closely associated at Fairfield, Conn., with persons who came from the two adjoining parishes of Cranfield and Salford. Among these were Richard Letten [Latten, Lattin, Latting], who was baptized at Salford 12 Feb. 1608/9, and whose aunt by marriage, Margaret Wheeler of Salford, was doubtless an aunt of John Grumman(t)'s mother, Elizabeth (Wheeler) Grummant, also a native of Salford. Other associates of John Grumman(t) at Fairfield were many members of the Wheeler family of Cranfield, who were probably also his kinsmen, though the exact relationship between the Wheelers of Cranfield and those of Salford has not yet been determined. [Cf. The American Genealogist, supra, 10:132-3; 12:4-17, 135-51; 14:1-4, 131-3; Supplement to 20:37-8; 27:35-40, 119-25; 28:139-48, 257-9.]

John^1 Grumman(t) apparently came to America as a youth. He may have accompanied some of the Wheelers of Cranfield, who settled for a while at Concord, Mass., though no record of Grumman(t)'s stay in Concord has been found. Very possibly he arrived at Fairfield, Conn., with some members of the Wheeler family who accompanied the Rev. John Jones from Concord to Fairfield in 1644. He certainly was at Fairfield by 1649, and is listed as owning land there between 1649 and 1652 [Charles William Manwaring, A Digest of Early Connecticut Probate Records, vol. 1 (Hartford District, 1635-1700), p. 87].

He was married, doubtless at Fairfield, about 1651, to Sarah Try, who was born in England about 1630 and died at Fairfield shortly before 8 Apr. 1691, the daughter and only known child of Michael Try of Fairfield by his first wife, —— (Phillips), for whom see Donald Lines Jacobus, Families of Old Fairfield, (1930-4), 1:617-18, and Mary Lovering Holman and Winifred Lovering Holman, Ancestry of Colonel John Harrington Stevens and his wife Frances Helen Miller, vol. 1 (1948), p. 501.

In 1653-54, John Grumman(t) entered on the Fairfield Town records land and a dwelling house that he had purchased from his kinsman Richard "Lattin," the purchase having been made 11 Jan. 1653/4 [Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:373], when Lattin moved from Fairfield to Hempstead, L.I. On 20 Oct. 1658, John "Gruman" was appointed one of the administrators of the estate of Mr. Jorgoe, late of Fairfield, "who went to the West Indies 4 years agoe & is thought lost" [Fairfield Probate Records, 1:44]. On 1 Nov. 1665, John "Gruman" took inventory of the estate of John Herdman of Fairfield [ibid., 2:10]; he and Thomas Lyon administered Herdman's estate.

Michael Try's will, dated 13 Apr. 1676, proved 26 Apr. 1677, contained bequests to daughter Sarah wife of John Gruman, £10; to grandchild John Grumman, housing and lands near Uncaway River; to grandchild Samuel Grumman, houselot by Robert Turney's; to grandchild

Thomas Grumman, land in Concord Field and part of the long lot; to grandchild Mihil Grumman, £10 and the rest of the long lot; bequests to kinsman John Roots and servant Benoni Galpin; residue to grandchildren "Mihill," Elizabeth and Sarah Grumman, equally; lands entailed to male grandchildren; daughter Sarah Grumman and grandson John Grumman executors; friends Lt. Banks and Sgt. Squire overseers. A codicil, dated 17 April 1676, gave a legacy to Richard Lyon, Sr. The inventory was dated 26 Apr. 1677. [Fairfield Probate Records, 3: 27.]

When the estate of George Phillips of Windsor, Conn., was settled in 1678, it was ordered that the "remainder of the Estate to be divided between John Saunders (alias Phillips) and John Grummin in right of his wife who are next of kin to said Phillips, one his brother's son, the other husband of his sister's daughter, John Saunders to have two thirds and John Grummin one third [Manwaring, op. cit., 1:348]. This proves that Sarah (Try) Grumman's mother was a sister of George Phillips of Windsor.

On 2 Jan. 1683/4, John Grumman took inventory of the estate of Ezekiel Sanford, Sr., late of Fairfield [Fairfield Probate Records, 3:187].

John^1 Grumman(t) died at Fairfield between 2 June and 7 Aug. 1685. Although the text of his will is given in Holman, Stevens-Miller Ancestry, 1:496-7, it is here repeated to complete his biography.

Josiah Harvey"

The will was proved 3 Nov. 1685, "the widow to retain her interest in his lands according to law and to be executrix." The inventory was taken 7 Aug. 1685 by Jehu Burr, Daniel Burr, and Josiah Harvey, and filed 6 Nov. 1685 [File #2603, State Library, Hartford; Fairfield Probate Records, 3:185].

The inventory of the estate of Sarah Grumman, widow, late of Fairfield, was taken 8 Apr. 1691 by Samuel Roberson and Thomas Staples; it was filed 14 Apr. 1691, on which date letters of administration on the estate of Sarah Gruman, widow, were granted to John Gruman, Samuel Roberson and Samuel Jennings. On 3 Nov. 1691, the account was filed, and the estate ordered distributed to the deceased's granddaughter Mary (daughter of Samuel Gruman, deceased), to John Gruman, and to Sarah wife of Samuel Jennings [File #2606, State Library; Fairfield Probate Records, 4:43, 43a].

Children, probably all born at Fairfield, Conn.:

4 i. John^2, b. ca. 1652.

ii. Samuel, b. ca. 1654, d. at Fairfield 12 March 1690/1. He m. ca. 1689 Mary^3 Hubbard, b. ca. 1666, d. at Wilton, Conn., 25 Mar. 1754, dau. of William^2 (George^1) Hubbard of Greenwich and Stamford, Conn. Letters of administration on the estate of Samuel Gruman, late of Fairfield, deceased, were granted on 25 Mar. 1691 to his widow Mary Gruman and Thomas Jones, "and care of the child." Inventory was taken the same day by John Wakeman and Samuel Roberson, and filed 27 Mar. 1691 (File #2608, State Library; Fairfield Probate Records, 4:40).— Mary (Hubbard) Grumman m. (2) by 1692, Jacob Patchen of Wilton, b. ca. 1663, d. at Wilton 15 Feb. 1749/50 ae. 87 or 88 (Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:247, 300, 465-6). Child, probably b. at Fairfield, Conn.:

1. Mary^3, b. ca. 1690, bapt. at Fairfield 24 Mar.

1694/5 as "Mary Gruman dau. of Mary wife of Jacob Patchin"; d. at Redding, Conn., 13 Sept. 1780, "aged 90" (g.s.). She m. Gideon^3 Morehouse, b. ca. 1682, d. at Westport, Conn., 12 May 1753, "aged about 71" (g.s.). Five children. Mary (Grumman) Morehouse and her husband joined the other Grumman heirs in a law suit in 1714, for possession of land claimed under the will of Michael Try (Jacobus, op. cit., 1:247, 426-7). Gideon Morehouse's will, in which he called himself "late of Fairfield," was dated 23 Mar. 1753, proved 7 Aug. 1753 (Fairfield Probate Records, 11:116-17).

iii. Thomas, b. ca. 1656, d. at Fairfield 10 Mar. 1690/1, two days before his brother Samuel. Inventory of his estate was taken 8 Apr. 1691 by Samuel Roberson and Thomas Staples, and it was filed 2 Dec. 1691; on the last date letters of administration on the estate of Thomas Gruman, late of Fairfield, deceased, were granted to his widow Mary Gruman, she to have what remained after payment of debts, except the entailed estate (File #2610, State Library; Fairfield Probate Records, 4:61-2). Thomas Grumman m. Mary^2 Couch, dau. of Simon^1 and Mary Couch of Fairfield. Letters of administration on the estate of Mary Couch late of Fairfield, widow, were granted on 27 Dec. 1691 to Samuel and Simon Couch, and on the same date distribution was ordered to the deceased's children, including "Mary Gruman, widow" (Fairfield Probate Records, 4:54). Mary (Couch) Grumman m. (2) after 1691, James Bennett, shipwright, of Stratfield, Conn., who went to Virginia or Maryland in 1699, deserting his wife and children. Mary divorced him in Oct. 1703, and m. (3) by contract dated 24 Oct. 1727, Samuel Jennings, widower of her first husband's sister Sarah Grumman. Jennings d. between 20 Nov. 1732 (the date of the codicil of his will) and 7 Dec. 1732 (the date of probate). Mary survived him, and the date of her death is not reported. On 11 Aug. 1697, James Bennett, shipwright, of Stratford, sold land which had been granted by the town of Fairfield to John^1 Grumman. On 19 May 1704, Mary Bennett, formerly wife of Thomas Grumant, approved a bill of sale by Simon Couch. (Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:75, 247, 334.)

Thomas had one child:
Sarah, b. at Fairfield
6 Mar., and
d. 10 Mar.,

iv. Elizabeth, b. (say 1660), mentioned in the will of her grandfather Michael Try in 1676, but not in her father's will in 1685, so presumably d. between those dates.

v. Michael, b. (say 1663), d. unmarried shortly before 8 Apr. 1691, when inventory of the estate of "Miell Gruman," late of Fairfield, deceased, was taken by Samuel Roberson and Thomas Staples. Letters of administration were issued 14 Apr. 1691 to Samuel Roberson, John Gruman and Samuel Jennings; account was filed 14 May 1691, and estate ordered distributed to Mary daughter of Samuel Gruman, John Gruman, and Sarah Jennings daughter of John Gruman, Sr., deceased (File #2606, State Library; Fairfield Probate Records, 4:44).

vi. Sarah, b. (say 1670), d. before Oct. 1727; m. probably in 1691 (as his first wife) Samuel^2 Jennings of Fairfield, son of Joshua^1 and Mary (Williams) Jennings. In 1691, possibly at the time of his marriage, Samuel Jennings gave a receipt to John^2 Grumman for his wife's legacy from her grandfather Michael Try. On 23 Dec. 1692, Jennings divided with his brother-in-law John^2 Grumman the interest in the estate of Michael Grumman dec'd which he had by marriage with "Sarah my now wife." On 9 Sept. 1694, Sarah (Grumman) Jennings renewed her Covenant with the Fairfield Church. The date of her death is not known, but it was before 24 Oct. 1727, on which date Samuel Jennings made a prenuptial contract to marry Sarah's sister-in-law, Mary (Couch)(Grumman) Bennett, whose first husband was Thomas^2 Grumman (see above). Samuel Jennings made his will on 23 Jan. 1728/9, with a codicil dated 20 Nov. 1732; it was proved 7 Dec. 1732, and distribution was made to the heirs in 1734. Ten children. (Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:245, 331-2, 334; Fairfield Probate Records, 6:180-1; 7:147, 214.)

4. John^2 Grumman (John^1) was probably born at Fairfield, Conn., about 1652, and probably died there early in 1695. His grandfather Michael Try's will, dated 17 Apr. 1676, gave to John certain housing and lands near Uncaway River. He was a legatee in his father's will in 1685, but did not receive much, so presumably his father had already made a settlement on him at the time of his marriage. On 14 Apr. 1691, John^2 Grumman was appointed one of the administrators of his mother's and his brother Michael's estates, portions of which were distributed to him. On 3 Aug. 1691, he and others took inventory of the estate of the Widow Wake late of Fairfield [Fairfield Probate Records, 4:49].

The inventory of John^2 Grumman's own estate was taken 20 May 1695 by Thomas Jones, Samuel Squire, and Jonathan Morehouse, was verified by his widow "Ester Gruman," and filed 30 May 1695. On the same date, administration was granted to Sgt. John Thompson, and on 25 June 1695 new letters were granted to Ezekiel Sanford. Also on 25 June 1695 the account was filed and the estate ordered distributed to "his widow and children, four sons and one daughter [no names]." The inventory was questioned by the Widow Gruman and the Widow Lyon [presumably her mother, see below], both claiming certain property, and Sergeant John Thompson and Ezekiel Sanford were appointed overseers for the three older children [File #2604, State Library; Fairfield Probate Records, 4:183, 183a].

John^2 Grummon married, first, Esther^2 Thompson, born about 1654, daughter of John^1 and Elizabeth Thompson of Fairfield [Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:604]. She was apparently the mother of John^2 Grumman's first three children, and died about 1688-90. It was her three children whose minority was to be overseen by her brother, Sgt. John Thompson, and Ezekiel Sanford.

John^2 Grumman married, secondly, about 1690-1, Esther^2 (Lyon) Perry, born about 1658, died shortly before 23 July 1699 ["Inventory of y^e Estate of Easter Gruman of farefeld late Deceased" taken 23 July 1699 by John Edwards and Ezekiel Sanford, amounting to £26-09-00. File #2601, State Library]. She was a daughter of Richard^1 Lyon of Fairfield, probably by his wife Margaret, and she was the widow of Nathaniel^2 Perry (Richard^1) of Fairfield, who died between 1 and 23 Jan. 1681/2, leaving three children by Esther (Joseph Perry, b. ca. 1676; Esther Perry, b. ca. 1678; Mary Perry, b. ca. 1680). For the Perry family, see Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:473. For the Lyon family, see ibid., 1: 393-4; Holman, Stevens-Miller Ancestry, 1:502-3. Mrs. Holman believed that Esther (Lyon) (Perry) Grumman was the daughter of Richard^1 Lyon by a first wife whose name is unknown, but I think Richard Lyon's known wife Margaret was the mother of Esther and of her next sister, Hannah (Lyon) Jennings, as well as of the younger Lyon children. "Widow Lyon" was associated with "Widow Gruman" in questioning the inventory of John^2 Grumman's estate (see above), and Hannah Lyon's husband, Joshua Jennings, receipted to "mother Margaret Lyon" for his wife's portion. See also The American Genealogist, supra, 31:216-17.

John^2 Grumman and his family were concerned in the trial of Mercy (Holbridge) Disbrow, wife of Thomas Disbrow of Fairfield, for witchcraft. At a Court held at Fairfield, 6 June 1692, John Grumman Sen^r testified that "about five years ago he was at Compo [Westport] with his wife and child, and the child being very well to outward view was suddenly taken very ill. Thomas Bennett [nephew of Esther (Thompson) Grumman and the child's first cousin] bade Mercy Disbrow unbewitch his uncle's child; she stroked it and said 'God forbad y^t shee should hurt y^e child' and soon after it was well." Thomas Bennett, Jr., aged 27, testified the same "about his Unkle Grumman's child." "Hester Groment," aged 35, testified in later proceedings in the same trial, 15 Sept. 1692. This was Esther (Lyon)(Perry) Grumman, the second wife. It is pleasing to recall that, though Mercy Disbrow was convicted of witchcraft, she was reprieved. [Fairfield Superior Court Records.]

Shortly before 29 July 1692, John Grumman sold a house in Fairfield to John Mills of Milford [Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:411].

On 11 Apr. 1698, the estate of Moses Lyon late of Fairfield was ordered distributed, and the heirs included the deceased's sister Ester Gruman [Fairfield Probate Records, 4:151, 211]. When a share in the common lands of Fairfield was set out to the heirs of Richard Lyon, Sr., on 10 Mar. 1723/4, Esther's portion was set out to her three Perry children and to Samuel Grumman, "a representative of his mother Esther" [Fairfield Probate Records, 8:34]. This proves that Samuel^3 Grumman was the surviving child of both his father's and his mother's second marriages.

On 13 Feb. 1701/2, John^3 Grumman (who had apparently just come of age) received all the estate of his father, "John Gruman late of Fairfield, deceased," from the administrators, his uncle Sgt. John Thompson and Ezekiel Sanford, and gave bond to distribute same when his three brothers and sister became of age. Witnesses to this transaction were John Ward and John Wakeman. On 30 Nov. 1709, Joseph^3 Grumman was of age to receive his portion, and Sgt. John Odell and Joseph Jackson made distribution to him. On 8 Dec. 1709 the said distributors were released, and Robert Silliman and Ens. Richard Hubbell were appointed in their place. On 21 Feb. 1709/10, the Court ordered a jury of 12 to make a new appraisal of the estate. On 23 March following, "John Gruman, Administrator on the estate of his father John, set out lands, with the consent of [his brother] Joseph Gruman, to Ezekiel Sanford for the benefit of Thomas and Samuel Gruman," and it was stated that "Abegaile," a daughter of the decedent, had received her portion. This statement was signed by John Grumman, Joseph Grumman, Ezekiel Sanford (for Thomas Grumman) and David Sherman (for Samuel Grumman). On 24 Mar. 1709/10, the final settlement of the estate of John^2 Grumman was made and the administrator discharged [Fairfield Probate Records, 6:283].

Children by first wife, probably born at Fairfield:

5 i. John^3, b. ca. 1680.

ii. Abigail, b. 1 Aug. 1685; d. after May 1768; m. at Fairfield, 20 Jan. 1709/10, Joseph^3 Jennings, son of Joseph^2 and Abigail (Turney) Jennings, and grandson of Joshua^1 Jennings of Fairfield. Joseph^3 Jennings d. at Fairfield between 9 May 1768 (date of will) and 2 Aug. 1768 (probate). Eight children. (Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 2:532-3.)

6 iii. Joseph, b. ca. 1688.

Children by second wife, born at Fairfield:

iv. Thomas^3, b. ca. 1692, bapt. at Fairfield (with his brother Samuel) 16 Sept. 1694; d. unmarried at Newark, N.J., between 26 Mar. and 26 July 1714. Thomas Grumman's maternal great-uncle, Henry Lyon, settled at Newark before 1675, and presumably Thomas went there because of his Lyon relatives. As "Thomas Grumin of Essex Co., N.J., yeoman," he made his will on 26 Mar. 1714, bequeathing to his brothers Joseph and Samuel (the latter under age) his real and personal estate. He made his brother Joseph "Grumin" executor. Witnesses were Daniel Dod, Stephen Browne, and Nathan Foster. Will proved 26 July 1714. (N.J. Archives, 1st Series, 23:198.)

7 v. Samuel, b. ca. 1694, bapt. at Fairfield 16 Sept. 1694.

5. John³ Grumman (John², John¹), probably born at Fairfield, Conn., ca. 1680, was of age by 13 Feb.1701/2, when he became administrator of his father's estate, and died after 1737, perhaps after 30 March 1756 (when his son was last described as "John Grumman, Jr."), but the date is not known. In addition to the court records mentioned above in his father's biography, one important court record of John³ Grumman has been found. In 1714, John Grumman, Joseph Grumman, Gideon Morehouse and Mary his wife, and Joseph Jennings, Jr., and Abigail his wife, plaintiffs, sued John Sloss of Fairfield, defendant, alleging that defendant held land which rightfully belonged to plaintiffs through the will of Michael Try; verdict for plaintiffs [Fairfield Co. Superior Court Records, 1702-1734, p. 64]. In 1737, John Grumman of Fairfield conveyed to his son, John⁴ Grumman, then of Norwalk, land inherited from his uncle, Thomas² Grumman, deceased [Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1: 247-8].

John Grumman married, about 1703-4, Ruth ——, with whom he conveyed in 1710 land bounded by the land of his sister Abigail.

Children, born at Fairfield, Conn.:

i. Esther⁴, b. 1 Jan. 1704/5, bapt. 5 July 1713.
ii. Silence, b. 15 Apr. 1708, bapt. 5 July 1713.
8 iii. John, b. 3 July 1710, bapt. 5 July 1713.
iv. Thankful, b. 5 Jan. 1712/13, bapt. 5 July 1713; d. at New Canaan, Conn., 19 Oct. 1789; m. at Norwalk, 30 Oct. 1734, Ephraim⁴ Lockwood, b. at Norwalk 23 Aug. 1708, d. at New Canaan 16 Feb. 1786 "in his 78th year" (g.s.). He was a son of Joseph³ (Ephraim², Robert¹) and Mary (Weed) Lockwood of Norwalk. Ephraim and Thankful (Grumman) Lockwood joined the Congregational Church at New Canaan 30 May 1736. Nine children. (Frederic A. Holden and E. Dunbar Lockwood, Genealogy of the Lockwood Family, 1889, pp. 47, 89, with corrections.)
v. Elizabeth, b. 3 July 1717, bapt. 4 Aug. 1717.
9 vi. Ebenezer, b. 7 July 1720, bapt. 21 Aug. 1720.

6. Joseph³ Grummon (as his name was usually spelled) (John², John¹), was probably born at Fairfield, Conn., in 1688, for he had recently come of age on 30 Nov. 1709 [supra]. Lands from his father's estate were set out to him on 23 March 1709/10. He was admitted to the church at Fairfield in April 1713. In his half-brother Thomas's will, dated 26 March 1714, Joseph was named as executor and one of the legatees. He evidently moved to Newark in 1714, and proved the will there on 26 July 1714. He settled in a village called Lyons Farms, between Newark and Elizabeth, N.J. On 13 April 1716, Joseph Grummon "of Newark, yeoman," sold all his and his deceased brother Thomas's rights in their great-grandfather Michael Try's "Long Lot" in Fairfield.

On 27 Jan. 1725/6, Joseph Grumman and Margaret Johnson witnessed a quitclaim of Stephen Dod of Newark to John Harrison of the same for the grantor's right to a tract on the road from "Watsesson" [Watsessing] to Samuel Ward's mill [Newark Land Records, p. 156, N.J.Hist. Soc. Mss.]. On 29 Apr. 1730, inventory was taken of the personal estate of John Blanchard late of Elizabethtown, deceased, and it included bonds due from Joseph "Grummond" and many others [N.J. Archives, 1st Series, 30:48]. This is the last mention of Joseph3 that has been found, but it is not safe to assume that he was still alive on 29 Apr. 1730. Even if dead, his bond could still be carried as an asset on Blanchard's books.

Joseph³ Grummon was married, and his wife survived him by many years. She was buried as "Mother of Ichabod Grummon" in the First Presbyterian Churchyard, Elizabeth, N.J., 19 Sept. 1784 ["Record Book of the Sextons of the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabethtown, Essex Co., now Elizabeth, Union Co., N.J.," New England Hist. & Gen. Register, 45:44]. No tombstone remains in existence, so from these sources we cannot learn the given name of Joseph Grummon's wife. However, Mr. Charles Carroll Gardner informs us that the late Dr. S. R. Winans, a native of Lyons Farms and formerly a Dean of Princeton University, collected much data on Lyons Farms families, which, thanks to Mr. Gardner's efforts, were deposited in the library of the N.J. Historical Society at Newark. This collection contains a chart of the N.J. branch of the Grummon family, on which Dr. Winans noted the name of Joseph³ Grummon's wife as "?Mary ——." Mr. Gardner does not know where Dr. Winans found the hint that the wife's name might be Mary.

Both Joseph³ and his wife died intestate, so the list of his children given below is merely tentative. Quite possibly there were daughters whose names are unknown. The contributor wishes at this point to express once more his deep appreciation of the help given him by Mr. Charles Carroll Gardner, F.A.S.G., without which the account of Joseph^3 Grummon and his descendants would have been very meagre.

Sons of Joseph^3 Grummon, order of the two youngest uncertain:

10 i. Nehemiah^4, b. ca. 1718.

ii. Justus, b. ca. 1720, of age by 1741. In 1741 and 1746 he witnessed deeds now in the Roberts Collection, N.J. Hist. Soc. Library. Joseph Camp's Account Book (also deposited there) under date of Nov. 1756 charges Widow Mary Wheeler with work done by Justus "Gromon." In Jan. 1766, Justus and his brother Ichabod were members of the Scotch Plains (N.J.) Baptist Church. The date of his death is not known.

Justus m. ca. 1750 Joanna (Wade) Curry, dau. of Robert Wade of Connecticut Farms, N.J., and widow of Samuel Curry of Newark; she was b. ca. 1726, and d. at Newark 21 Feb. 1816 in her 90th year. She and Justus had no issue, at least no surviving issue, but by her first husband she had a son, Samuel Curry, Jr. (1744-1788), who left a widow Hannah, and daus. Phebe, Joanna, and Elizabeth. Joanna (Wade)(Curry) Grummon left a will, dated 21 Sept. 1801, proved 26 Apr. 1816, in which she bequeathed to her daughter-in-law Hannah Curry, her three above-mentioned granddaughters, and to "Kezia Roberts, whom I brought up" (N.J. Archives, 1st Series, 42:181; see also Stuart Wade, Ms. "Wade Genealogy," vol. 4, N.Y. Public Library).

11 iii. Ichabod, b. ca. 1723.

iv. Aaron, b. (say 1725). A shadowy figure, he removed to Morris Co., N.J., and probably lived at or near Hanover in that county. On 28 Mar. 1753, there is record of a suit of Aaron Groman against Nathan Squire, of Livingston, Essex Co. (Morris Co. Court Records, Bk. A:486). In Joseph Camp's Account Book at the N.J. Hist. Soc., under the years 1753-4, the account of Widow Mary Wheeler shows an undated credit for cash received of "Aron Grommon." Aaron was probably the father of Joseph and Aaron Grummon of Morris Co., N.J., and if so, then Aaron^4 Grummon was still alive on 14 July 1782.

The will of Joseph Grumman of Morris Co. (presumed son of Aaron^4) was dated 14 July 1782 and proved 24 Jan. 1791. He bequeathed "to my father, all wearing apparel." To wife Sarah, 30 acres of land in the Great Swamp; all household furniture, weaving tackle, and remainder of movable estate. To brother Aaron, a silver watch. Executrix: wife Sarah. Witnesses: Foster Horton, Hannah Horton, Sarah Horton. Inventory, amounting to £54.05.06, was taken 23 Oct. 1784. (N.J. Archives, 1st Series, 37:156.) Joseph "Grummond" served as Private, Morris Co. Militia, in the Revolutionary War (William S. Stryker, Official Register of the Officers and Men of N.J., 1872, p. 612).

v. David, a wheelwright, lived in Newark, N.J., and served in the Revolutionary War as Private, 2nd Regiment, Essex County Militia, and also in Capt. Craig's Company, N.J. State Troops (Stryker, op. cit., p. 612). In 1787 he mortgaged 1 ½ acres of land on the west side of Broad Street, between Market St. and Clifton Ave., Newark (Essex Co., N.J., Mortgages, Bk. B, p. 180). He had an account at the store of Alexander Eagles, who lived in the vicinity of Broad and Orange Streets, Newark, in 1786-8 (C. C. Gardner Mss.), and did some work on the roads in Newark at the same time. Perhaps he was the father of Aaron Grummon (1773-1811), who is bur. in the First Congregational Church Cemetery, Newark.

NOTES, ADDENDA AND ERRATA

Date of Death of Jonathan^2 Gillett of Windsor, Conn. My attention has been drawn to a silly mistake in my article, "Jonathan Gillett of Dorchester, Mass., and Windsor, Conn., and Mary Dolbere or Dolbiar, his Wife," in The American Genealogist, supra, 15:211. There it was stated that Jonathan^2 Gillett, eldest son of the abovesaid Jonathan and Mary, "d. at Windsor (probably) 5 Sept. 1708." The late Miss Alice Lucinda Priest, in her very careful and painstaking study, "The Brothers Jonathan and Nathan Gillett and Some of their Descendants," in the New England Hist. & Gen. Register, 100: 275, caught my error and corrected it, pointing out that Jonathan^2 Gillett actually died 27 Feb. 1697/8, referring to Manwaring, Digest of Early Connecticut Probate Records, 1:557, as authority. It is right, however, that a correction should appear in the periodical in which the original mistake was made, and that acknowledgment should be made by the culprit (me).

For the remarriage of Jonathan^2 Gillett's widow, see page 143 of the present issue.

Smith of Lyme.—Miss Marjorie E. Case of the Conn. State Library has kindly called my attention to an inadvertent slip in my article on Smiths of Lyme, Conn., for in stating the marriage of Matthew^2 Smith (George^1) on 25 Feb. 1719, I called the wife Mary Rogers, whereas I should have written Sarah Rogers. The marriage of George^1 Smith to Rachel^2 (Rood) Blake, widow of Jeremiah Blake, and some listing of descendants is given by Robert Rood Buell in The Rood-Rude Record, 2:3-8.

The will was proved at Norwalk, 16 Sept. 1747, by the widow Rebecca Grumman, executrix. An inventory of the estate of Mr. Samuel Grumman late of Norwalk was taken 4 Feb. 1747/8 by John Belden and Thomas Betts. It amounted to £5087.09.03 and included 1 Large Bible (£5) and Sundry Books (£5.18.06). Another inventory, dated 24 Nov. 1747, showed a total of over 100 acres of land in Cornwall, Conn., worth £72.04.00. "Rebecca Grumman, Sam^{ll} Grumman, Matthew Keeler and David Comstalk, Executors to y^{e} Last Will and Testament of M^{r} Sam^{ll} Grum̄an late of Norwalk Deceased" appeared in Court 5 Apr. 1748, and distribution of the estate was made on 7 June 1748 and 4 Apr. 1749 by John Belden and Samuel Cluckston, distributors, "to y^{e} Widow, to Samuel Gruman, Thomas Gruman, Sarah, Rebecca, & Mary Gruman." [Fairfield District, File #2609, State Library, Hartford; Fairfield Probate Records, 7:344, 383 (distribution), 9:469 (will), 10:296 (inventory).]

Children, born at Norwalk:

i. Sarah^{4}, b. 28 Oct. 1722; d. apparently at Norwalk before 31 Aug. 1769, though her death was not recorded in Norwalk Vital or Church records. She m. (prob. at Norwalk) ca. 1740, Matthew^{4} Keeler, b. at Norwalk 14 Mar. 1716/17, living on 31 Aug. 1769. He, who was one of the executors of his father-in-law Samuel Grumman in 1747, was a son of Capt. Samuel^{3} (Samuel^{2}, Ralph^{1}) and Sarah (Betts) Keeler, and a grandson, maternally, of Thomas^{2} (Thomas^{1}) and Sarah (Marvin) Betts. Matthew Keeler and his wife Sarah Grumman were, therefore, second cousins by virtue of descent from Thomas^{1} Betts. They had 14 children: Samuel, Thomas, Sarah, Elizabeth, Matthew, Stephen, Rebecca, Hannah, Mary, Isaac, Anna, Abigail, Aaron, and William Keeler (Fairfield Probate District, File #3545, State Library, Hartford).

12 ii. Samuel, b. 8 May 1725.

13. iii. Rebecca, b. 24 Sept. 1727.

iv. Mary, b. 20 Oct. 1729; d. unmarried at Norwalk 13 Feb. 1801, "in the 73rd. year of her age" (g.s.), bur. with her brother Thomas in Town House Hill Graveyard, Norwalk.

v. Thomas, b. 22 Aug. 1731; d. at Norwalk 17 Sept. 1801, intestate, "in the 71st. year of his age," bur. in Town House Hill Graveyard, Norwalk (g.s.). On 5 Apr. 1748, Thomas "Gruman," son of Samuel Gruman late of Norwalk, made choice of his mother Rebecka Gruman to be his guardian (Fairfield Probate, 7:331). He m. at New Canaan, Conn., 27 Aug. 1772, Deborah^{5} "Deolf" (actually De Wolf), whose dates of birth and death have not been found, but who survived her husband and was alive on 10 Feb. 1802. She was a daughter of Gideon^{4} De Wolf (Stephen^{3}, Edward^{2}, Balthasar^{1}), for whom see Rev. Calbraith B. Perry, De Wolf Genealogy, 1902, p. 110. Thomas Grumman's tax was abated for losses sustained in the British raids on Norwalk, 1780-1784 (Conn. Military Records, vols. 18, 19, 20, 22, 27, State Library, Hartford; see also Public Records of the State of Conn., 4:180; 5:414; 7:454. His losses were accounted at £205.11.04 in May 1792). The Connecticut Census of 1790 has the record of the family of Thomas Grumman of Norwalk as 2 white males over 16 (he and his son William), 4 white females (his wife, 2 daughters, and sister Mary). In the Census of 1800, he was listed at Norwalk with a household of 1 male over 45, 1 male 26-45, 2 females over 45, 1 female 16-26. On 10 Feb. 1802, Deborah Grumman of Norwalk quitclaimed to her son William Grumman of Norwalk all her right in a piece of land in the center of said town, containing 7 acres and appurtenances, bounded North by the heirs of William St. John, deceased, East and South by the heirs of John Cannon, deceased, West by Town Street (Norwalk Deeds, 20:18). Children, born at Norwalk:

1. William^{5}, b. 20 Mar. 1774; received land from his mother, 10 Feb. 1802; living 31 Mar. 1804 when he witnessed deeds of his first cousins, Sarah^{5} and Betty^{5} Grumman.
2. Hannah, b. 5 June 1777.
3. Sarah, b. 15 May 1780.

8. John^{4} Grumman (John^{3}, John^{2}, John^{1}) was born at Fairfield, Conn., 3 July 1710, baptized there 5 July 1713. He became a clothier, and moved in 1736 or 1737 from Fairfield to that part of Norwalk which later became the town of Wilton. In 1760 (between 4 Apr. and 28 May) he moved to Sharon, Conn., and he may have died there, or may in his old age have moved elsewhere. There is no record of his death in Sharon Vital, Church or Cemetery records, and no record of probate of his estate in Connecticut. While living at Fairfield he married, about 1733, Damaris ——. It is conjectured that she may have been Damaris^{4} Smedley, born at Stratfield, Conn., 27 Dec. 1715, baptized there 19 Feb.1716, daughter of Samuel^{3} (Samuel^{2}, Baptist^{1}) and Abigail (Dimon) Smedley, and sister of James^{4} Smedley of Fairfield, with whom both John^{4} Grumman and his sons had dealings in real estate. Though there is no proof that John's wife Damaris was Damaris Smedley, it may be noted that they named their eldest daughter Abigail, which was the name of Damaris Smedley's mother.

John^4 Grumman was already living in Norwalk when, in 1737, his father conveyed land to him. On 14 July 1744, Joseph Thomas, son of John Thomas, late of Fairfield, made choice of "John Grumon, Jr.," of Norwalk, as his guardian [Fairfield Probate Records, 7:278]. He bought a good deal of land in Norwalk, most of it in that part of the town which later became Wilton, and he was named as John Grumman (or Grummon), Jr., grantee, in deeds dated 25 Apr. 1738, 8 Apr. 1745, 1 Jan. 1745/6, 23 Mar. 1747/8, 9 June 1748, 10 Mar. 1749/50, 14 May 1754, and 30 Mar. 1756 [Norwalk Deeds, State Library, Hartford]. The deed of 14 May 1754 is interesting, as it may indicate a relationship. It was a division of land between John "Grommon," Jr., and Isaac Everitt, both of Norwalk, who were jointly seized in fee of a tract of land in Norwalk bounded South by Buck Meadow, North and West by the highway, South and East by Joseph Platt. Witnesses: Joseph Platt, Hannah Platt, Jr. Recorded 14 May 1754 [Norwalk Deeds, 11:139].

By two warranty deeds, dated 4 July 1759 and 4 Apr. 1760, John Grumman of Norwalk (no longer called "Jr.") sold to [his son-in-law] Daniel Marvin of Norwalk, his dwelling house, barn, orchard, fulling mill and dam, clothier's shop and clothier's tools, and land adjacent to the dwelling house. Witnesses to the first deed were Joseph Platt and "Abigaill Grum̄on"; to the second, Isaac Everitt and Joseph Platt. The deeds were recorded 20 July 1759 and 21 Apr. 1760 respectively [Norwalk Deeds, 11:367, 401]. By 28 May 1760, he had moved to Sharon and, as "John Grumon of Sharon," he bought of Simeon Smith five parcels of land in Sharon, containing 60 acres, for £490 [Sharon Deeds, 5:24]. On 25 July 1760, as "John Grumon of Sharon," he sold his three remaining parcels of land in Norwalk to Joseph Miles, Isaac Everitt, and John Abbott, Jr., all of Norwalk [Norwalk Deeds, 11:417, 451; 13:106]. "John Grommon" of Sharon on 20 Mar. 1765 sold to James Smedley of Fairfield two pieces of land in Sharon, totaling about 24 acres, for £330 [Sharon Deeds, 5:402].

Partial list of the children of John^4 Grumman (there may have been more, and the order of the younger ones is uncertain):

i. David^5, bapt. at Fairfield 21 Apr. 1734. As "David Growman" he served as Private, First Company, 2nd (Col. David Wooster's) Regiment, in the campaign of 1756, French and Indian War (Coll. Conn. Hist. Soc., 9:110). He m. at Wilton, Conn., 18 Mar. 1756, Sarah^5 Morehouse, b. ca. 1736, d. at Sharon 24 Nov. 1789, aged 53 (g.s.), daughter of Stephen^4 (Thomas^3, Thomas^2, Thomas^1) and Sarah (St. John) Morehouse (Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 2:669). On 28 May 1756, David "Grum̄on" and Sarah his wife, of Norwalk, sold to David Hurlbutt of Norwalk 12½ acres of land at Buckingham's Ride in Norwalk; witnesses were Elias Betts, John Hurlbutt (Norwalk Deeds, 11:233, 241). They doubtless moved from Norwalk to Sharon soon after this sale, but no record of David^5 appears in Sharon Deeds or Probates at the State Library, Hartford. It is possible but has not been proved that David^5 Grumman was the father of:

a. Mary "Grummond" who m. at Amenia, N.Y. (adjacent to Sharon, Conn.) 5 July 1781, Abel Merchant. (N.Y. Gen. & Biog. Rec., 33:92.)

b. David "Grum̄on," listed in the Town of Paris, Oneida Co., N.Y., in the Census of 1800, with a family of 3 males under 10, 1 male 26-45, 2 females under 10, 1 female 26-45.

c. Jedediah "Grummons," also listed in the 1800 Census in the Town of Paris, Oneida Co., N.Y., with a family of 3 males under 10, 1 male 26-45, 2 females under 10, 1 female 16-26.

ii. Jedediah, bapt. at Fairfield 12 Jan. 1735/6.

iii. Abigail, b. (prob. at Norwalk) ca. 1738; living at Ballston, Albany (later Saratoga) Co., N.Y., in Feb. 1790 (Norwalk Deeds, 17:85); date and place of death not yet found. She m. very soon after 4 July 1759 (on which date, as "Abigaill Grum̄on," she witnessed her father's deed to her future husband), Daniel^5 Marvin of Norwalk, clothier, b. there ca. 1735-6, d. there 1780, son of Josiah^4 (Samuel^3, Matthew^2, Matthew^1) and Elizabeth (de Forest) Marvin of Norwalk. Daniel Marvin bought the dwelling house and clothier's establishment of his father-in-law in 1759 and 1760 (see above). He served from 23 Aug. to 8 Oct. 1777 as Private in Capt. Skinner's Co. at Saratoga Springs in the Revolutionary War. Daniel and Abigail (Grumman) Marvin had six children, Abraham, Betsey or Betty, Aaron, John, David, and Hannah, who moved with their mother from Norwalk to Ballston, N.Y., and of whom at least Abraham, Aaron, and David later settled at Cooperstown, N.Y., near their uncle Nathaniel Grumman (cf. George Franklin Marvin and William T.R. Marvin, Descendants of Reinold and Matthew Marvin, 1904, pp. 350, 396-8). Widow Abigail Marvin and her children, of Ballston, N.Y., sold their land in Norwalk by deeds dated Dec. 1789 and Feb. 1790, "widow's dower excepted." In the New York Census of 1790, p. 18, column 2, Betty Marvin is listed at Ballston, Albany Co., with a household of 2 females. This was the spinster elder daughter of Daniel and Abigail (Grumman) Marvin, and Abigail must have lived with this daughter.

iv. Damaris, b. at Norwalk 1 Oct. 1740, d. in the Town of Washington, Dutchess Co., N.Y., 13 Aug. 1813; m. at Sharon, Conn., 15 May 1765, Isaac^5 Hamlin, stone-cutter, b. at Wareham, Mass., or Sharon, Conn., 10 Jan. 1742, d. in the Town of Washington, Dutchess Co., N. Y., 10 Aug. 1810; both bur. at New Lenox, Mass. He was a son of Isaac^4 (Ebenezer^3, James^2, James^1) and Mary (Gibbs) Hamlin, successively of Barnstable and Wareham, Mass., Sharon, Conn., Lenox and Springfield, Mass. Isaac^5 and Damaris (Grumman) Hamlin had four children, and Isaac's estate was administered in Columbia Co., N.Y., by his son Stephen, 4 Dec. 1810 (H. Franklin Andrews, The Hamlin Family, 1902, p. 155, where, however, it is erroneously stated that Damaris Grumman was b. at Spencertown, N.Y.).

v. Joseph, b. (prob. at Norwalk) say 1742; m. at Sharon, Conn., 6 July 1766, Phebe Elderkin. No further record of this couple has yet been found. A Phebe Elderkin was b. posthumously at Killingworth, Conn., 30 Mar. 1739, daughter of James Elderkin (d. at Killingworth 17 Sept. 1738) by Phebe his wife (Killingworth VR, 2:151). Whether this Phebe Elderkin subsequently became the wife of Joseph Grumman is not known, but no other Phebe Elderkin of the right age has been found.

vi. John, b. (prob. at Norwalk) say 1744; m. at Sharon, Conn., 19 July 1767, Lydia Elmer. He was presumably the John "Grommon" of Sharon who on 10 Aug. 1791 sold to George King for £4 his rights in a lot on Town Street in Sharon (Sharon Deeds, 10:253). No further record. Lydia was perhaps daughter of Martin Elmer (d. 8 Aug. 1780 ae. 73), or Eliakim Elmer (d. July 1758 ae. 44, or of David and Jemima (Curtice) Elmer (of whom the latter d. 11 Dec. 1784 ae. 54), all of whom lived and died at Sharon.

vii. Nathaniel, b. (prob. at Norwalk) say 1746. On 28 Aug. 1767, James Smedley of Fairfield sold to Nathaniel Grommon of Amenia Precinct, Dutchess Co., N.Y., 17 acres in Sharon with a dwelling house and barn, bounded by William Boland, Samuel Hitchcock, and the highway, and another parcel of 6 acres lying East of the first parcel, being land said James Smedley had bought of John Grommon. Witnesses: David Strong, John Canfield. Recorded 28 Aug. 1767 (Sharon Deeds, 6:282). On 19 May 1768, Nathaniel Grommon of Amenia Precinct conveyed to Samuel Spencer of Sharon the two aforesaid parcels of land, for £120; witnessed by David Strong, John Williams; recorded 19 May 1768 (Sharon Deeds, 6:323). On 26 Mar. 1772, Nathaniel Grommon and Elizabeth Grommon (presumably his wife, though not so described in the deed), of Amenia Precinct conveyed for £10 to William Boland of Sharon one parcel in Sharon; witnesses: William Marvin, Uriah Lawrence; recorded 1 Apr. 1772 (ibid., 7:53). Nathaniel did not appear in the Census of 1790, but in that of 1800 he was listed as "Nath^l Grummond" at Cooperstown in the Town of Otsego, Otsego Co., N.Y., with a household of 1 male 10-16, 1 male over 45, 2 females under 10, 1 female 10-16. Immediately next to Nathaniel in the Census were his nephews Abraham and Aaron Marvin, and just beyond them was a John "Grummond," with 2 males under 10, 1 male 26-45, 2 females under 10, 1 female 26-45. This John may have been a son or a nephew of Nathaniel. (Census of 1800, New York, vol. 9, p. 23, National Archives, Washington.)

ix. Silence, b. (prob. at Norwalk) say 1750 (and named for her father's sister, Silence^4 Grumman); m. at Sharon, 29 Nov. 1770, Francis Wilcocks of Amenia Precinct, doubtless brother of Daniel, above.

x. Ezekiel, perhaps not the youngest child, was in the Census of 1790 a resident of the Town of Otsego, Montgomery Co., N.Y., together with his nephew, Abraham Marvin. The Town of Otsego, containing the village of Cooperstown, was in that part of Montgomery County set off as Otsego County in 1791. Ezekiel Grummon does not appear in Otsego County in the Census of 1800.

9. Ebenezer^4 Grumman or (more usually) Grommon (John^3, John^2, John^1) was born at Fairfield, Conn., 7 July 1720, baptized there 21 Aug. 1720, moved by 1742 to Ridgefield, Conn., and about 1752 to Salem (that part later called South Salem), Westchester Co., N.Y., where he died 29 Aug. 1793 ["Records of the Church of Christ in Salem, Westchester Co., N.Y.," New York Gen. & Biog. Record, 31:83; 33:116]. He was a farmer, and married at Ridgefield, 12 Nov. 1742, Deborah ———, whose maiden name does not appear in the Ridgefield records. She died at Salem 25 Oct. 1793. "Ebn^r Grommand & his wife Deborah" were members of the church at Salem about 1752, and many references to them will be found in the church records [supra, NYGBR, vols. 31-35].

On 3 Apr. 1776, Ebenezer "Grummun" of Salem deeded to his son Ephraim "Grummun" land in Salem; witnessed by Ebenezer "Grummun," Jr. [Deeds, K:489, Westchester Co., N.Y.]. Ebenezer was not listed in the Census of 1790, probably because he and his wife were living with their son Ephraim. Ebenezer's will, dated 19 Apr. 1793, proved 29 May 1794, named son Ebenezer Grummon, Jr.; wife Deborah; daughters Mary Grummon and Deborah Grummon; daughter Betty Miller; son Ephraim Grummon; daughter Sarah Brook; executors were sons Ebenezer and Ephraim; witnesses, Benjamin Chapman, Zebulun Newman, Abijah Gilbert [NYGBR, 55:333].

Children:

i. Betty^5, b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 15 Mar. 1743/4; m. at Salem, N.Y., 7 Nov. 1762, Elisha Miller, a physician. Their unnamed child d. at Salem 18 July 1768. The Elisha Miller family was not listed at Salem in the Census of 1790.

ii. Ebenezer (called Grummon or Grummun), b. at Ridgefield, Conn., 25 June 1746, d. at Harpersfield, Delaware Co., N.Y., 4 June 1835. He m. at South Salem, N.Y., (Rev. Solomon Mead, Presbyterian minister, officiating), 19 May 1774, Johannah Brooks of South Salem. She survived him and was living, probably with one of her children, in the Town of Nelson, Madison Co., N. Y., in March 1841. Much information about this man comes from his Pension Record, W-16591, in the National Archives, Washington. He entered service in the militia of Westchester County under Capt. Henry Slawson in March 1775, and served 3 months; again enlisted Sept. 1776, and served in Capt. Abijah Gilbert's Co., Col. Thomas Thomas' Regiment, marching to Kingsbridge, helping to build Fort Independence, and fighting in the battle of White Plains (28 Oct. 1776) and was discharged March 1777. He reenlisted April 1777 as volunteer in Capt. David Pardee's Co. of militia, Col. Thaddeus Crane's Regt., marching to Danbury and being present when it was burnt by the British. He was also present when Gen. David Wooster was mortally wounded at Ridgefield, Conn., 27 Apr. 1777. Later his unit followed the British to Compo, and was stationed in Westchester County, guarding the seacoast. Discharged in Oct. 1777, he reenlisted in Apr. 1778 in Capt. David Pardee's Co. of militia, Col. Hyatt's and Col. Drake's Regt., and was again discharged in Aug. 1778. He reenlisted in Apr. 1779 in Capt. Benjamin Stevens' Co., marched to North Castle, N.Y., and was discharged in July 1779. In Sept. 1779 he reenlisted as volunteer in Capt. David Pardee's Co., which was stationed at South Salem, then at Krompound, Peekskill, and North Castle, and he was discharged in Jan. 1780. From then to 1783 he served again as volunteer under Capt. David Pardee at Redding, Conn., and South Salem. After the war, he continued to live at South Salem until June 1803, when he moved to the Town of Jefferson, Schoharie Co., N. Y., and thence on 10 Dec. 1831 to Harpersfield, Delaware Co., N.Y., where he applied for a pension as Revolutionary veteran, 23 Jan. 1833. He was granted a Certificate of Pension from 18 Mar. 1834 at the rate of $48 per annum. His widow Johannah had a pension from 3 July 1837, the last payment of which was made in March 1841, so she presumably died before June of that year. Ebenezer was not listed in the Census of 1790, but in that of 1800 Ebenezer "Grumman" was in the Town of Salem, Westchester Co., with a family of 1 male 16-26, 1 male 26-45, 1 male over 45, 2 females 10-16, 1 female 16-26, 1 female over 45 (NYGBR, 58:136). Ebenezer Grummon was listed in the Town of Jefferson, Schoharie Co., N.Y., with 1 male 20-30, 1 male 80-90, 1 female 80-90 (Census of 1830, New York, vol. 107, p. 184, National Archives, Washington). "Joanna Grummond," aged 90, pensioner, was in the household of John Simon, Town of Nelson, Madison Co., N.Y. (Census of 1840, New York, vol. 17, pp.87-8, National Archives). An "infant of Eben Grommon" d. at Salem, N.Y., 20 Oct. 1787. Perhaps Ebenezer and Johannah were parents of:

a. Lois Grummon, who m. at Ridgefield, Conn., 6 Oct. 1803, Timothy Sherwood, b. at Ridgefield 5 Sept. 1780, son of Benjamin and Sarah Sherwood.

iii. Ephraim (called Grummon, Grommon, or Grummond), b. (prob. at Ridgefield, Conn.), ca. 1748-9, d. at South Salem, Westchester Co., N.Y., 18 May 1814, aged 65 (NYGBR, 35:21). He m. at Wilton parish in Norwalk, Conn., 12 Nov. 1780 (by Rev. Dr. Isaac Lewis, Presbyterian minister), Rachel^5 Lockwood, bapt at New Canaan, Conn., 27 Jan. 1754, d. at South Salem 10 Dec. 1845, daughter of Job^4 (James^3, Ephraim^2, Robert^1) and Rachel (———) Lockwood (cf. Lockwood Family, 106). Ephraim Grummon served in the Revolutionary War. He enlisted first as volunteer in Capt. Joseph Benedict's Co., Col. James Holmes' Regt., N.Y. Militia, at South Salem, 1 Aug. 1775, for 5 months, and was promoted to Corporal. He marched from South Salem to Peekskill, then to Albany, Half Moon Point (now Waterford), then to Fort George, Ticonderoga, and Fort St. John's, where he was present at the capture of the fort. He reenlisted 1 Jan. 1776 as Corporal, Capt. Samuel Delavan's Co., Col. Thomas Thomas' Regt., and was stationed at Morrisania, N.Y., and discharged 1 Apr. 1776. Reenlisting immediately, he served as Corporal, Capt. Henry Slawson's Co., Col. Samuel Drake's Regt., from 1 Apr. to 1 Oct. 1776, serving on Long Island during that summer and being present at the battle of Long Island and the retreat of the defeated American troops to the mainland in August. Then he marched to White Plains and Peekskill, where he was discharged. Reenlisting on 1 May 1778, he served as Private, Capt. Benoni Platt's Co., Col. Thomas Thomas' Regt., was stationed at Bedford, White Plains, North Castle, and Tarrytown, N.Y., and discharged 1 Oct. 1778. He reenlisted 1 Mar. 1779 and served as Corporal, Capt. Jonathan Loder's Co., Col. Thaddeus Crane's Regt., till 1 Nov. 1779. Finally, he served as Private, Capt. David Pardee's Co., Col. Thomas Thomas' Regt., for a month in May and June 1781, and was stationed at Bedford, N.Y. After the war, he lived at South Salem until his death. His widow Rachel Grummon applied for a pension under the Act of 4 July 1836, and received one beginning 8 June 1840, for $22 per annum. Moses Bouton, of South Salem, aged 87, deposed on 27 Apr.1844 regarding Ephraim's war service. Merlin Grummon of Ridgefield, Conn., aged 55, deposed on 4 May 1854 that the surviving children of Rachel Grummon as of that date were Job L. Grummon, Sally Briggs, William Grummon, Mary Grummon, and Merlin Grummon (Pension Record W-17029, National Archives, Washington). In the Census of 1790, Ephraim "Grommon" was listed as resident of Salem Town, Westchester Co., with a family of 1 male over 16, 4 males under 16, 2 females. In the Census of 1800, he appears at Salem with a family of 1 male under 10, 2 males 10-16, 2 males 16-26, 1 male 26-45, 1 female 10-16, 1 female 26-45 (NYGBR, 58:17). Rachel, wife of Ephraim Grummon, was received into the church at Salem 30 Nov. 1806, and, as "Wd. Rachel Grummon" was listed as member of that church 7 Jan. 1818 (NYGBR, 33:162, 164). On 20 Apr. 1782, Ephraim Gruman & Rachel his wife, of Salem, for £50, sold to James Lockwood 3½ acres of land in Norwalk, West of Conner Hill, bounded East by highway & David Hoyt, South by sd. Hoyt, West by sd. Lockwood, North by highway; witnessed by John Jones, Nathan Rockwell (Norwalk Deeds, 15:16). On 16 May 1782, Ephraim Grummon of Salem bought 100 acres near and adjoining Long Pond in Salem, with dwelling house & shop, from John and Eunice Osborn of Salem (Westchester Deeds, I:173, in NYGBR, 62:382). Children, born and baptized at South Salem, N.Y.:

1. Job Lockwood^6, bapt. 3 Mar. 1782; living 1854.
2. Joseph, bapt. 22 Feb. 1784; d. before 1854.
3. Sarah, bapt. 10 Sept. 1786; living 1854; m. —— Briggs.
4. Ephraim, bapt. 9 Mar. 1788 (NYGBR, 32:244), but b. 6 Dec. 1788 by Bible record (see below), prob. a mistake for 1787. He lived at North Salem, N.Y., and d. 4 Aug. 1851. He m. ca. 1822 Clarinda Miller, b. 27 Oct. 1800, d. 30 Aug. 1861, dau. of Benjamin and Betsey Jane Miller. Children: 1-Betsy Jane^7, b. 5 Aug. 1823, d. 18 Oct. 1878. 2-Nelson, b. 23 Dec. 1825; m. and had: a-Martha Jane^8, b. 6 Mar. 1851, d. 1 Dec. 1866; b-Clara Joanna, b. 19 Mar. 1853; c-Frank Nelson, b. 2 Nov. 1855; d-William Blakeslee, b. 15 Mar. 1859. 3-Mary Eliza, b. 18 Nov. 1833, d. 13 June 1835. 4-Francis Eugene, b. 7 May 1839, d. 18 Jan. 1846. (Family Bible of Ephraim Grummon, Bible Records, 12:150-1, State Library, Hartford.)
5. Samuel, bapt. 3 Jan. 1790. "A child of Samuel Grummon" d. at Salem 13 Jan. 1823. Samuel himself d. before 1854.
6. William (Billy), bapt. 19 Aug. 1792; living 1854.
7. Mary Benedict, bapt. 12 July 1795; d. bef. 1854.
8. Merlin, b. ca. 1798-9; living, aged 55, at Ridgefield 1854 when he deposed (supra).

iv. Mary^5, bapt. at Salem 17 Feb. 1754; unmarried when her father's will was drawn in 1793.

v. Deborah, bapt. at Salem 24 Oct. 1756; living in Mt. Pleasant Twp., Wayne Co., Pa., 29 Aug. 1820, but d. before 8 Jan. 1822, probably in Mt. Pleasant Twp. She m. at Salem (as the second of three wives), 13 Mar. 1794, Wakeman^6 Hull, b. at Danbury, Conn., in Oct. 1755, d. at Tribes Hill, Montgomery Co., N.Y., 8 Mar. 1833, son of Stephen^5 (Nathaniel^4, Cornelius^3, Cornelius^2, George^1) and Hannah (Wakeman) Hull, widower of Rhoda Whitlock, who m. (3) 8 Jan. 1822, Esther Carr. He was a Revolutionary soldier; enlisted 11 Feb. 1777 in Capt. Josiah Lacy's Co., 5th Conn. Regt.; was present at battle of Monmouth and elsewhere; was later in Col. Heman Smith's Regt., and served till 9 June 1783, receiving Badges of Merit for 6 years' faithful service (Pension Record W-7816 to Widow Esther Hull, quoted in Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 3:159); (C.H. Weygant, The Hull Family in America, 1913, p. 66).

vi. Sarah, bapt. at Salem 25 Mar. 1759; m. there, 11 Jan. 1781, John Brooks. The family of John Brooks was listed at Salem, Westchester Co., N.Y., in the Census of 1790, with 1 male over 16, 3 males under 16, 2 females.

(The first instalment of the Grumman article appeared in Vol. 32, pp. 160-179, July 1956. The concluding instalment is planned for the next issue.)

CHURCH RECORDS OF ROXBURY, CONNECTICUT

Contributed by Donald Lines Jacobus, M.A., F.A.S.G.

Roxbury was established as a parish in the Town of Woodbury, Conn., in May 1743, and became a separate Town in 1796. The marriages and deaths entered in the church records were included in the third volume of Cothren's History of Ancient Woodbury. The baptisms have never been printed. For three years a record of births was kept, in which the father's name was placed first and the name of the child sometimes not entered. The baptismal record was started just a little later and for over two years overlaps the record of births.

It was in 1910, if I recall, that I was permitted to keep for one night the original record book. After a social call I repaired with the book late in the evening to the house where I was staying and copied the following records in bed by the light of a candle. The book was returned to its custodian the following morning. The copy has not been verified, but I believe it to be substantially correct.

band Lawrance Lichfeild lying on his Death bedd sent for John Allin and Ann his wife and Desired to give and bequeath unto them his youngest son Josias Lichfeild if they would accept of him and take him as theire Child..." (Mayflower Descendant, 12:134).

Children (Peakes):

5. Thankful, drowned on or about 15 Nov. 1655.
6. Israel, b. 22 Feb. 1655/6, Scituate.
7. Eleazer, b. 3 May 1657, Scituate.
8. William, b. 15 July 1662, Scituate.

THE GRUMMAN FAMILY

10. Nehemiah^4 Grumman (Joseph^3, John^2, John^1) was probably born in the settlement of Lyons Farms within the bounds of Newark, N.J., about 1718. He died at Wilton, Conn., 4 Apr. 1797, "in the 79th year of his age" [g.s. at Sharp's Hill Cemetery, Wilton]. He married at Wilton, 18 May 1744, Abigail^4 Keeler, born at Norwalk in 1720, died at Wilton 17 Nov. 1799, aged 79, and buried with her husband. She was the second surviving daughter of John^3 (John^2, Ralph^1) and Rhoda (Hoyt) Keeler of Norwalk [her father, John^3 Keeler, born at Norwalk 26 Dec. 1682, married 19 Apr. 1710 Rhoda Hoyt; see Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:356. John^3 Keeler died at Norwalk in 1764; see File #3557, Fairfield Probate District, State Library, Hartford, which is complaint of Nehemiah Grumman, administrator of John Keeler deceased, dated 1 Jan. 1771, against John Finch and others. Distribution was made of the estate of John Keeler, 29 Mar. 1771, to the heirs, including "Abigail wife of Nehemia Grummon of Norwalk."].

Nehemiah was still in New Jersey on 4 June 1739, when he witnessed the will of Joseph Foster of Newark, whose widow, Bethia (Lyon)(Winans) Foster, was later to marry Nehemiah's brother Ichabod Grumman (see below). But by the time the will was probated, 18 Aug. 1742, Nehemiah Grumman had left New Jersey and migrated back to his father's native colony of Connecticut [N.J. Archives, Wills, 1:185; Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 1:246]. We conclude that he moved to Connecticut about 1741, and settled in the parish of Wilton, then in the town of Norwalk. His name appears frequently in Norwalk Deeds.

On 25 Oct. 1744, he bought a house, barn, homestead, 6 acres of land and appurtenances in Norwalk (Wilton) for £260 from James Betts of Sharon, Conn.; the land was bounded by John Taylor, Daniel Betts, and the highway; witnesses were Thomas Betts, John Betts; recorded 18 Feb. 1744/5 [9:387]. On 31 Oct. 1748, Nehemiah "Grummon" witnessed the will of Samuel Weed of Norwalk [Fairfield P. R., 11:300], and on 4 Apr. 1749 he was appointed guardian of John Olmstead of Norwalk [ibid., 7:362].

On 4 Mar. 1769, there was a partition of land in Norwalk between Nehemiah "Gruman," Nathan Raymond, and Josiah Taylor, Jr., and Abigail his wife, all of Norwalk, who held as of fee in common a parcel of land in Wilton parish called the Great Swamp. Nehemiah was to receive 50 acres and 1 rood of this land; witnessed by Hannah Platt, Joseph Platt; recorded 4 Mar. 1769 [Norwalk Deeds, 13:263]. On 18 Mar. 1771, Nehemiah Grumman made a warranty deed to his son John Grumman [ibid., 14:32]. On 30 Dec. 1794, Nehemiah Grumman by a series of deeds sold his remaining lands in the Parish of Wilton, Town of Norwalk, to his sons John, Jeremiah, Ezra, Moses and Isaac Grumman, all of Norwalk; witnesses to all the deeds were Sam^{l} Comstock and John Gregory [ibid., 18:9, 11, 13, 17, 49]. Less than a month later, on 20 Jan. 1795, John, Ezra, Jeremiah, Moses and Isaac Grum̄an, all of Norwalk, "for love and filial affection to our hon'd father Nehemiah Grum̄an," leased to him a house, barn, 3 acres of land &c. in the parish of Wilton in Norwalk; witnesses were Sam^{l} Comstock, Joseph Green; recorded 30 Apr. 1795 [ibid., 18:21].

In the Census of 1790, Nehemiah Grumman was listed as an inhabitant of Norwalk, with a family of 1 male over 16 and 2 females. Letters of administration on the estate of Nehemiah Grumman late of Norwalk, deceased, were granted on 1 May 1797 to his son Jeremiah Grumman; his son John Grumman being bondsman [File # 2607, Fairfield District, State Library].

Children, born and baptized in Wilton Parish, Town of Norwalk, Conn.:

14 i. John^5, b. 8 Aug. 1744; bapt. 12 Aug. 1744.

ii. Mary, bapt. 17 Aug. 1746.

iii. Ezra, b. 8 May 1748, living at the time of the Census of 1810. There is no record of his service in the Revolutionary War, and the date of his death has not come to light. In the Census of 1790, he was listed at Norwalk, with a family of 2 males over 16, 2 males under 16, 2 females. He received land from his father on 30 Dec. 1794, and joined with his brothers in the lease to his father, 20 Jan. 1795. On 30 Apr. 1794, Ebenezer Betts of Waterford, N.Y., Eliphalet Betts of Stillwater, Saratoga Co., N.Y., and Abigail and Dorothy Betts of Norwalk, for £61-12-5, conveyed to Ezra Grumman of Norwalk land adjoining that of Nehemiah and Jeremiah Grumman (Norwalk Deeds, 17:396); on 10 Mar. 1795, Abigail Betts of Norwalk quitclaimed to Ezra Grumman, for £8, her right in 7 acres in the parish of Wilton, bounded by Jeremiah Grumman, Nehemiah Grumman, and the highway; witnessed by Ebenezer Betts and Eliphalet Lockwood (ibid., 18: 49). In the Census of 1800, Ezra Grumman was listed in Norwalk with 1 male 10-16, 2 males 16-26, 1 male over 45, 1 female 16-26, 1 female 26-45. In the Census of 1810, Ezra Grumman was in Wilton, with 1 male 16-26, 1 male 26-45, 1 male and 2 females over 45. The maiden name of Ezra's wife Rachel is not certainly known, but she may have been Rachel Betts, daughter of Ebenezer and Abigail Betts of Norwalk.

v. Nehemiah, bapt. 4 Oct. 1752; probably d. young.

vi. Aaron, bapt. 23 Feb. 1755; apparently d. before 1790, since he does not appear in the Census of that year, and certainly d. before 1794, since he was not a party to the deeds of his father and brothers. He was a Private in Capt. Nathan Gilbert's Co., Lt. Col. J. Baldwin's Regt., Conn. Militia, which marched on 5 Oct. 1777 to Fishkill for the relief of the Continental Army; the same Co. in which his brother Jeremiah was Sergeant, and, like Jeremiah, Aaron deserted on 7 Oct. 1777, two days after the march began (Connecticut Men in the Revolution, 522). As Aaron Grumman of Norwalk, he petitioned for relief from prosecution as a deserter in Jan. 1778 (Conn. Military Records, X, 13c, State Library). It is not known whether he was married.

16 vii. Moses, b. 17 Nov. 1757.

viii. Abigail, b. ca. 1759; d. at Wilton 15 Apr. 1813, in her 54th year, bur. Sharp's Hill Cemetery, Wilton (g.s.). She m. at Norwalk, 16 Sept. 1779, Alvan Hyatt, who d. at Wilton 26 June 1835, aged 84-7-7, and was bur. with his wife. "Elvin" Hyatt was listed at Norwalk in the Census of 1790 with 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16, 2 females. He is not to be found in the Census of 1800. In that of 1810, he was at Wilton, with 1 male 10-16, 1 male 16-26, 1 male over 45, 1 female 10-16, 1 female over 45. He received a pension for service in the American Revolution (Pension Record S-18049, National Archives, Washington, D.C.).

ix. Isaac, b. ca. 1761 or a bit later, d. after 1810. He m. at Norwalk, 16 Dec. 1784, Betsey Selleck. There is no record of his service in the American Revolution. In the Census of 1790, he was listed at Norwalk with a family of 1 male over 16, 2 males under 16, 3 females. He was "of Norwalk" when he received land from his father, 30 Dec. 1794, and joined his brothers in the lease to his father, 20 Jan. 1795. He was still of Norwalk in the Census of 1800, when he had a family of 2 males under 10, 1 male 10-16, 1 male 26-45, 1 female under 10, 2 females 10-16, 1 female 26-45. He was also of Norwalk when his brother Moses quitclaimed to Isaac and his brothers on 19 June 1802. In the Census of 1810, he was listed at Wilton, with 1 male under 10, 2 males 10-16, 1 male over 45, 2 females under 10, 2 females 16-26, 1 female over 45. Partial list of children, recorded at Norwalk:

1. Polly^6, b. 21 Nov. 1785.
2. Sabra, b. 13 Feb. 1788.
3. Henry, b. 4 May 1790.
4. Achsah, b. 24 Jan. 1793.
5. William, b. 28 July 1795.

It is evident from the Census records that there were more children.

11. Ichabod^4 Grummon (Joseph^3, John^2, John^1) was born about 1723, presumably in the settlement of Lyons Farms within the bounds of Newark, N.J. He died at Lyons Farms, probably 16 Dec. 1787, but possibly 16 Dec. 1788, and was buried with his wife, daughter and mother in the First Presbyterian Churchyard, Elizabeth, N.J. The "Record Book of the Sextons of the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabethtown...," [New Eng. Hist. and Gen. Register, vols. 44 and 45] was arranged chronologically. Therein appear the following references to the Grummon family:

NEHGR, 44:264	July 3, 1766	Bur. wife of Ichabod Grummon.
NEHGR, 44:265	Aug. 24, 1769	Bur. dau. of Ichabod Grummon.
NEHGR, 45:44	Sep. 19, 1784	Bur. mother of Ichabod Grummon.
NEHGR, 45:45	Dec. 17, 1787	Bur. Ichabod Grammon.

On the other hand, William Wheeler Ogden, Inscriptions from Tombstones...at Elizabeth, N.J. (1892), #519 and 520, gives these epitaphs, both of which evidently contain errors:

Ichabod Grummon, died Dec. 16, 1788, in the 65th year of his age.
Bethiah wife of Ichabod Grommon, died July 10, 1766, aged 53 years.

If the epitaphs (as printed) were to be believed, Ichabod would have died a whole year (minus one day) after he was buried, and Bethia a week after she was buried. Since the "Record Book" is presumably right and the epitaphs wrong, we conclude that Ichabod probably died 16 Dec. 1787 and was buried the following day in his 65th year, which puts his birth in 1723; while Bethia presumably died 1 (not 10) July 1766, and was buried 3 July, aged 53, which places her birth about 1713, ten years before her husband.

Ichabod Grummon married, about 1743, Bethia^3 (Lyon) (Winans) Foster, daughter of Capt. Ebenezer^2 (Henry^1) Lyon of Lyons Farms, by his wife Elizabeth^2 Winans, and widow, first. of John^3 Winans (b. 1708, d. 22 May 1733 aged 25, son of Jacob^2 and grandson of John^1 Winans, all of Elizabethtown, N.J.), and widow, secondly, of Joseph Foster (who d. 18 Aug. 1742) of Newark, weaver, son of Nathan and Mary (Lyon) Foster of Newark, and grandson of Joseph^2 (Henry^1) Lyon of Lyons Farms. These intricate relationships to the Lyons family appear in Sidney Elizabeth Lyon, The Lyon Memorial, vol. 2 (1907), 89, 96-97, 113. Bethia, as we have seen, was born near 1713 and died 1 July 1766, aged 53. Her second husband, Joseph Foster, made his will 4 June 1739, and it was witnessed by Nehemiah^4 Grumman (No. 10 above) before his departure for Connecticut [N.J. Archives, Wills, 2:185].

Ichabod Grummon was a blacksmith, and owned a house lot a quarter of a mile south of the bridge in Lyons Farms; the modern extension of Broad Street now passes through it. He signed the answer to a Bill in Chancery in 1750. On 17 Feb. 1761, he was fellow-bondsman in the administration of the estate of Nathaniel Lyon of Newark [N.J. Archives, Wills, 4:264]. He was appointed executor in the codicil to the will of Phebe Wood of Lyons Farms, dated 6 Dec. 1773 [ibid., 6:454]. Ichabod "Gruman" was one of the witnesses to the will of his brother Justus Grummon's stepson Samuel Curry, dated 22 Jan. 1786, but he was not a witness to the codicil thereof [ibid., 7:61].

The Scotch Plains Baptist Church records show a resolution passed 29 Jan. 1766, as follows: "That there shall be a Trial in order to build a Meeting House at Lions Farms and our Brethren Ezekiel Crane, Ichabod Gruman, and Justus Gruman shal, after Trial, do as they shal think best." This proves that Ichabod and Justus Grummon were Baptists. Why, then, were Ichabod and his family buried in the Presbyterian churchyard at Elizabeth? Mr. C. C. Gardner thinks it may have been because Ichabod's father, Joseph^3 Grumman, was previously buried there in an unmarked grave.

Bethia (Lyons)(Winans)(Foster) Grummon had by her first husband a daughter Bethia Winans, born in 1733; by her second husband she had two sons, Joseph Foster, born 1740, and Jacob Foster, born 1743 [Lyon Memorial, 2:96-97].

Children of Ichabod^4 and Bethia Grummon, probably born at Lyons Farms:

i. Bethia^5, b. ca. 1744; d. at Newark, N.J., 29 Aug. 1816; m. ca. 1767 Benjamin^5 Coe, b. at Newark 28 Dec. 1738, d. there 14 Oct. 1818, son of Benjamin^4 (Benjamin^3, Benjamin^2, Robert^1) and Abigail Coe of Newark. Benjamin^5 Coe was a farmer, commissioner of the poor for 18 years, overseer of highways, and trustee of the First Presbyterian Church in Newark. His will, dated 15 Mar. 1806, was proved 23 Oct. 1818. Five children; see J. Gardner Bartlett, Robert Coe, Puritan (1911), p. 142, where, however, there is a mistake about the parentage of Bethia (Grummon) Coe. Bartlett said she was a daughter of Ichabod Grummon, Jr., and Hannah Bruen, which is obviously wrong.

ii. A daughter, bur. in the First Presbyterian churchyard, Elizabeth, 24 Aug. 1769.

iii. Ichabod, Jr., b. ca. 1755, d. at Lyons Farms 29 Oct. 1794; m. Hannah Bruen, b. 1756, d. 13 Dec. 1835, daughter of Timothy Bruen, Sr., of Newark. Ichabod and Hannah (Bruen) Grummon were buried in the Baptist Churchyard, Lyons Farms. He was a weaver, served as an express-rider and as Private, Capt. Marsh's Troop, Essex Co., N.J., Light Horse, in the American Revolution; later was a U.S. Government mail contractor. Six children: Isaac^6, Mary, Abigail, Sarah, William, Phebe (Lyon Memorial, 2:113; Stryker, Official Register, 612).

iv. Aaron, b. ca. 1757; d. at Lyons Farms 20 Aug. 1801; m. his cousin Abigail^5 Lyon, b. at Lyons Farms 1760, d. there 4 Sept. 1828, daughter of Moses^4 (Benjamin^3, Benjamin^2, Henry^1) and Mary (Harris) Lyon of Lyons Farms. Aaron and Abigail (Lyon) Grummon are buried in the Baptist churchyard at Lyons Farms. They had no issue. Aaron's will, dated 31 Oct. 1799, proved 10 Sept. 1801, named wife Abby, nephew Dodd Grummon, niece Abigail Grummon (N.J. Archives, Wills, 10:186). Abigail's will, dated and proved in 1828, contained many bequests to her brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces (Lyon Memorial, 2:131).

12. Samuel^4 Grumman (Samuel^3, John^2, John^1) was born at Norwalk, Conn., 8 May 1725. He died at Norwalk 11 Jan. 1804, "in the 79th year of his age," and was buried in Town House Hill Cemetery, Norwalk [g.s.]. He married at Norwalk, 2 Dec. 1750, Elizabeth^4 Keeler, born at Norwalk 20 Apr. 1722, died there 15 Sept. 1795, "aged 73," and was buried with her husband [g.s.]. She was a daughter of Capt Samuel^3 (Samuel^2, Ralph^1) and Sarah (Betts) Keeler of Norwalk, and a sister of Matthew Keeler who married her husband's sister Sarah^4 Grumman [see above].

The will of Samuel^3 Grumman, dated and proved in 1747, benefited his elder son Samuel^4, who received therein the "Gregory Lot" as well as a share of the residue double the size of his sisters' shares. The younger Samuel was also appointed an executor of his father's will. Samuel^4 Grumman became a prominent citizen of Norwalk; he was for many years Town Clerk and Register of Deeds in the town, and often served as administrator of intestate estates. He was a member of a committee to establish a post-office in Norwalk in 1775.

During the Revolutionary War, he suffered from losses in the British raids [his losses were put at £30.8.6 in May 1792. Public Records of the State of Conn., 7: 454]. In 1781 and 1782 he was appointed administrator of confiscated Tory estates. He also served as arbitrator in the Lockwood-Wentworth controversy [Conn. Archives, Revolutionary War, vols. 6, 19, 23, 24, 29, 34, 36, 37, State Library]. There was a Samuel "Grummurs" listed as Private, Capt. Jabez Gregory's Co., 9th Regiment, Conn. Militia, who served 2 months and 0 days and was discharged 29 Dec. 1777 [Conn. Men in the Revolution.., p. 486]; it is thought that this was Samuel^4 Grumman, even though he was 52 years old in the fall of 1777, rather aged for a Private, and he was important enough to rate a commission. Capt. Jabez Gregory and all members of the Company were Norwalk men. Samuel^4 Grumman's surviving son Samuel^5 was only 13 in the fall of 1777, making it very unlikely if not impossible that it was he who served.

In the Census of 1790, Samuel^4 Grumman was strangely not listed, though his son Samuel "Grummon," Jr., was listed with a large household, and it is probable that the two families were living together. Samuel^4 Grumman was co-executor of the will of his brother-in-law David Comstock in 1784. He divided land belonging to his father's estate with his brother Thomas on 7 Oct. 1786 [Norwalk Deeds, 16:494]. On 6 May 1800, Thomas Belden and Samuel Grumman, both of Norwalk, conveyed to [his sister] Mary Grumman of Norwalk, for £20, all their claim to 4 acres of land on Dryhill in Norwalk, bounded by Thaddeus Betts and the highway; witnessed by John Belden, Buckingham Lockwood; recorded 15 Feb. 1802 [ibid., 20:493]. In the Census of 1800, Samuel "Grummon" was listed at Norwalk, with a family of 1 male 10-16, 1 male over 45, 1 female 16-26, 2 females 26-45; it is evident that Samuel Edwin^6 Grumman was living with his grandfather and aunts at this time.

Children, born at Norwalk:

i. Sarah^5, b. 15 Jan. 1756; d. unmarried at Norwalk 17 Feb. 1838, "aged 82 years 1 month 2 days," bur. Town House Hill Cemetery, Norwalk (g.s.). Sarah Grumman and her sister Betty, both of Norwalk, on 31 Mar. 1804, conveyed to Henry Belden of Norwalk 3 acres 26 rods of land on the hill west of the Norwalk River, for $237; witnessed by (their cousin) William Grumman, and Thaddeus Betts; recorded 18 Apr. 1804 (Norwalk Deeds, 20:376). Also on 31 Mar. 1804, Sarah and Betty Grumman conveyed to John Eversly of Norwalk a piece of salt meadow in the East Common Field in Norwalk for $37; same witnesses (ibid., 20:458). In the Census of 1810, Sarah "Grummand" was living at Norwalk with a household of 1 female over 45, 1 other free person.

ii. Betty (or Betsey), b. 6 Oct. 1757; d. unmarried at Norwalk 25 Oct. 1839, "aged 82 years 19 days," bur. Town House Hill Cemetery, Norwalk (g.s.).

iii. Samuel, b. 21 Mar. 1761, listed as "eldest son" of his parents in the Norwalk Vital Records; d. at Norwalk 1 June 1761; bur. Town House Hill Cemetery (g.s.).

iv. Samuel, b. 23 Aug. 1764, listed as "second son" of his parents in the Norwalk Vital Records. He was drowned in Long Island Sound, "near the Long Island shore," 15 June 1791. "Samuel Grummon, Jr.," was listed in the Census of 1790 as an inhabitant of Norwalk, with a household of 5 males over 16, 2 males under 16, 1 female. This enumeration must be wrong, for even supposing his and his father's family were living together, it does not agree with the known facts. Samuel^5 Grumman m. ca. 1789, Katharine^6 Benedict, b. at Norwalk 13 Apr. 1763, d. there 7 Apr. 1792 "in the 29th year of her age," bur with her parents in Pine Island Cemetery, Norwalk (g.s.). She was a daughter of Thomas^5 (Thomas^4, Thomas^3, Thomas^2, Thomas^1) and Hannah (Raymond) Benedict of Norwalk (Henry Marvin Benedict, The Genealogy of the Benedicts in America, 1870, p. 29). Child, b. at Norwalk:

   1. Samuel Edwin^6, b. 3 June 1790; d. at 55 Elm Street, New York, N.Y., 25 Dec. 1822, aged 32; listed as a "casualty, b. Norwich, Conn." in the New York Death Records (of course Norwich is a mistake for Norwalk). He m. Maria Cholwell, b. at Bound Brook, N.J., 12 Dec. 1796, d. at Red Hook, N.Y., 2 May 1881. Both are bur. in the Norwalk Cemetery, Norwalk (g.s.). Letters of administration on the estate of Samuel E. Grumman, deceased, were granted 3 Apr. 1823 to Jacob Cholwell (Liber 19 of Administrations, p. 143, Hall of Records, New York, N.Y.). Children:

      1) Samuel Edwin^7, b. 6 May 1818; d. 8 Feb. 1867, bur. Norwalk Cemetery, Norwalk (g.s.). He m. and had issue.

      2) Cholwell J., b. 1820; d. 1882, bur. Norwalk Cemetery (g.s.). He m. and had issue.

13. Rebecca^4 Grumman (Samuel^3, John^2, John^1) married David Comstock. It is planned to present their family in a separate article to follow.

14. John^5 Grumman (Nehemiah^4, Joseph^3, John^2, John^1), born at Norwalk (Wilton Parish), 8 Aug. 1744, died at Wilton, Conn., 13 Feb. 1822, buried at Sharp's Hill Cemetery, Wilton (g.s.). He married first, at Norwalk, 15 Jan. 1767, Sarah Nash, born at Norwalk 5 Oct. 1745, died at Wilton 9 Mar. 1820, daughter of John and Sarah (Jackson) Nash of Norwalk. He married second, Julia ———, who died at Wilton 13 Mar. 1829, aged 76, both buried at Sharp's Hill with their husband. John^5 is doubtless the John "Grumand" who served as Private, Capt. Samuel Comstock's Company, 9th Regiment, Conn. Militia, which marched to New York 12 Aug. 1776 and arrived there 16 Aug. 1776. He was discharged 11 Sept. 1776 [Connecticut Men in the Revolution...,1889, p. 458]. In 1778, Samuel Beers served one month in the Army as John Grumman's substitute [Jacobus, Old Fairfield, 3:48]. In the Census of 1790, John Grumman was listed as a resident of Norwalk with a family of 2 males over 16, 2 females. His father, Nehemiah Grumman, on 30 Dec. 1794 conveyed to John Grumman 5 1/2 acres on Chestnut Hill in the parish of Wilton for £117 [Norwalk Deeds, 18:9]. John joined with his brothers in leasing a home to their aged father on 20 Jan. 1795, and John acted as fellow bondsman in the administration of his father's estate in 1797. In the Census of 1800, he was listed as a resident of Norwalk with a household of 1 male over 45, 1 female under 10, and 1 female 26-45. In the Census of 1810, he was listed at Wilton (by then a separate town) with 1 male over 45, 1 female over 45. He and his children are mentioned in Edwin Hall, Historical Records of Norwalk (1847), p. 244.

Children by first marriage, recorded at Norwalk:

i. John^6, b. 22 Oct. 1772, bapt. at Wilton 19 July 1778; d. at Wilton 31 Mar. 1841, aged 68, bur. Sharp's Hill Cemetery (g.s.); m. Eleanor ———, who d. at Wilton 10 May 1834, aged 60 (g.s.). In the Census of 1800, John "Grummon," Jr., was listed in Norwalk, next door to his father, with a family of 1 male under 10, 1 male 26-45, 1 female 16-26. In the Census of 1810, he was listed at Wilton, still next door to his father, with a family of 3 males under 10, 1 male 10-16, 1 male 26-45, 1 female 10-16, 1 female 26-45.

ii. Sarah, b. 19 Feb. 1777, bapt. at Wilton 19 July 1778.

15. Jeremiah^5 Grumman (Nehemiah^4, Joseph^3, John^2, John^1), baptized at Wilton, then a parish in Norwalk, Conn., 24 Feb. 1750/1, was living in Wilton at the time of the Census of 1810; the date of his death has not been found. He married first, at Norwalk, 4 Mar. 1772, Sabra Stuart, who died there 14 Apr. 1785. He married second, at Norwalk, 27 Oct. 1785, Hannah Fitch. As "Jeremiah Grumand," he served with his brother John as Private, Capt. Samuel Comstock's Co., 9th Regt., Conn. Militia, which marched to New York 12 Aug. 1776, and was there 16 Aug. 1776; he was discharged 17 Sept.1776. As "Jeremiah Grummon" he enlisted as Sergeant, Capt. Nathan Gilbert's Co., Lt. Col. J. Baldwin's Regt., Conn. Militia, which marched on 5 Oct. 1777 to Fishkill for the relief of the Continental Army. Sgt. Jeremiah Grummon was recorded as having deserted on 7 Oct. 1777, two days after the march began [Connecticut Men in the Revolution, pp. 458, 522]. In Jan. 1778, Jeremiah Grumman of Norwalk petitioned for relief from prosecution as a deserter [Conn. Military Records, X, 13c, State Library, Hartford]. He was evidently forgiven, for in May 1783 he was appointed by the Conn. Assembly to be Ensign of the 7th Company, 9th Regt. of Militia, and in May 1784 he was made Lieutenant of the same Company [Public Records of the State of Conn., 5:133, 394].

In the Census of 1790, Jeremiah Grumman was recorded at Norwalk, with a family of 2 males over 16, 1 male under 16, 2 females. He received land from his father on 30 Dec. 1794, and joined his brothers in leasing a home to his father on 20 Jan. 1795. On 30 Apr. 1794, Ebenezer Betts, Eliphalet Betts, Abigail Betts and Dorothy Betts conveyed to Jeremiah Grumman of Norwalk a tract of land in Norwalk, containing 13 1/2 acres, adjoining the parcel which the grantors on the same date conveyed to Ezra Grumman [Norwalk Deeds, 17:395, and supra]. On 7 Nov. 1799, Jeremiah Grumman of Norwalk conveyed to his son Lewis Grumman of Norwalk, for £15, a parcel of land in Norwalk; witnesses were Buckingham Lockwood, Eliphatt Lockwood; recorded 17 Jan. 1800 [Norwalk Deeds, 19:178]. He was administrator of the estate of his father, 1 May 1797, and on 16 Mar. 1801 he served as bondsman on the estate of his eldest son Lewis Grumman [infra]. In the Census of 1800, he was listed at Norwalk with 1 male under 10, 1 male over 45, 1 female 16-26, 1 female 26-45. In 1810, his family consisted of 1 male 10-16, 1 male 16-26, 1 male over 45, 1 female 16-26, 1 female over 45, living at Wilton. His children are mentioned in Hall, Norwalk, 254.

Children by first marriage, recorded at Norwalk:

i. Lewis^6, b. 4 Nov. 1772, bapt. at Wilton 19 July 1778; d. shortly before 16 Mar. 1801, on which date letters of administration on his estate were granted to his widow Susanna; his father Jeremiah Grumman and her brother Silas Gregory being fellow-bondsmen. The inventory, taken 16 Mar. 1801 by Alvan Hyatt and Abijah Betts, amounted to only $388.58 (File 2605, Fairfield Probate District, State Library). Lewis Grumman m. Susanna^7 Gregory, b. at Norwalk 17 Apr. 1776, d. at Wilton 31 Mar. 1847, dau. of Stephen^6 (Nehemiah^5, John^4, John^3, John^2, Henry^1) and Mary (Benedict) Gregory. In the Census of 1800, Lewis Grumman's family, at Norwalk, consisted of 1 male under 10, 1 male 26-45, 1 female under 10, 1 female 16-26, 1 female 26-45. He was living next door to his father, Jeremiah Grumman, at the time of the Census. Susanna (Gregory) Grumman m. (2) in May 1802, Allen Hayes Betts, b. at Norwalk 21 July 1776, d. at Wilton 20

Mar. 1848, by whom she had four children (Betts, Thomas Betts, 95; Selleck, Norwalk, 90, 153; Grant Gregory, Ancestors and Descendants of Henry Gregory, 1938, 111). Lewis and Susanna (Gregory) Grumman had a son, Lewis Fitch^{7} Grumman, who m. at Norwalk, 21 Oct. 1820, Eliza Hurlburt, b. at Norwalk 24 July 1802, dau. of John and Anna (Adams) Hurlburt. They had 7 children, for whom and whose posterity see Selleck, Norwalk, 92.

ii. Jeremiah, b. 21 Oct. 1774, bapt. at Wilton 19 July 1778, d. unmarried at Norwalk 8 Nov. 1795.

iii. Uriah Smith, b. 16 May 1778, bapt. at Wilton 19 July 1778; d. at Wilton 9 Aug. 1864, in 87th year, bur. Hillside Cemetery, Wilton (g.s.). He m. Sarah ———, who d. at Wilton 18 Nov. 1854, aged 75-11-6. He was living at Wilton at the time of the Census of 1810, in which he was recorded as "Smith Grummond," with 1 male under 10, 1 male 26-45, 4 females under 10, 1 female 26-45.

iv. Joel Keeler, b. 23 July 1780; d. at Norwalk 7 Jan. 1784.

v. Lucretia, b. 22 Aug. 1782.

Child by second marriage, recorded at Norwalk:

vi. Lucy, b. 23 July 1791, according to Hall, Norwalk, p. 254; b. 23 July 1794, according to Barbour Index, State Library, Hartford.

16. Moses^{5} Grumman (Nehemiah^{4}, Joseph^{3}, John^{2}, John^{1}), born at Norwalk 17 Nov. 1757, living at Wilton at the time of the Census of 1810, date of death not ascertained. He married first, at Norwalk, 9 Dec. 1779, Hannah Finch, who died at Norwalk 9 Apr. 1797, daughter of Dan Finch of Norwalk, whose will, dated 29 Mar. 1799 [The American Genealogist, supra, 19:120] mentioned the testator's grandchildren, Anne, Hannah, and Aaron Grumman, children of deceased daughter Hannah Grumman. Moses Grumman married second, before the end of 1797, Dorothy ———, who died at Wilton, 13 July 1850, without issue.

Moses Grumman enlisted, 8 May 1775, as Private, Capt. Matthew Mead's Co., Col. David Waterbury's Regt., Conn. Continental Line, and was discharged 13 Dec. 1775. He enlisted again, with his brothers Jeremiah and Aaron, as Private, Capt. Nathan Gilbert's Co., Lt. Col. J. Baldwin's Regt., Conn. Militia, which marched on 5 Oct. to Fishkill for the relief of the Continental Army. Moses lasted a bit longer than his brothers; he deserted 12 Oct. 1777, five days after they had done the same [Connecticut Men in the Revolution, 67, 522]. Like his brothers, he petitioned in Jan. 1778 for relief from prosecution as a deserter.

At the time of the Census of 1790, he was living in the Harlem Division of New York [New York Census of 1790, 137, col. 3], and had a family of 2 males over 16, 2 males under 16, and 4 females. He must have returned to Norwalk by 1794, for he was "of Norwalk" when he received land from his father on 30 Dec. 1794, and joined his brothers in leasing a home to his father on 20 Jan. 1795. The land which Moses received from his father was called "the Barrack Lot," 5 1/2 acres. On 10 Apr. 1798, Moses Grumman and Dorothy his wife, of Norwalk, sold to Daniel J. Burchard [Norwalk Deeds, 19: 19, 21]. On 9 Jan. 1800, Moses and Dorothy quitclaimed a small lot to his brothers John, Ezra, Jeremiah and Isaac [ibid., 19:180]. On 19 June 1802, Moses and Dorothy Grumman, of Norwalk, sold 9 acres for £180 to his brother John Grumman. Dorothy signed as "Dolly" Grumman, and witnesses were Nathan Odell, Josiah Gregory; recorded 19 June 1802 [ibid., 20:261]. In the Census of 1800, Moses Grumman was listed in Norwalk with 1 male 26-45, 1 female under 10, 2 females 16-26, 1 female 26-45. In the Census of 1810, he was in Wilton, with 1 male over 45, 1 female over 45.

Children by first marriage:

i. Anne^{6}, b. ca. 1780; named in the will of her maternal grandfather, Dan Finch, in 1799.

ii. Hannah, b. ca. 1782; named in the will of her maternal grandfather, Dan Finch, in 1799. She was living, a spinster, "in very necessitous circumstances," at Norwalk on 5 Sept. 1854, and was then her father's only surviving child. On that date, Albert H. Byington of Norwalk wrote to the Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D.C., to inquire whether Hannah was entitled to a pension because of her father's services in the American Revolution, and was told that she was not so entitled (Pension Record R(ejected)-4373, in name of Moses Grumon, National Archives, Washington).

iii. Aaron, b. ca. 1784; named in the will of his maternal grandfather, Dan Finch, in 1799. He m. Sarah^{8} Gregory, b. at Norwalk 4 Aug. 1784, dau. of Silas^{7} (Stephen^{6}, Nehemiah^{5}, John^{4}, John^{3}, John^{2}, Henry^{1}) Gregory (Grant Gregory, Anc. & Desc. of Henry Gregory, 169). In the Census of 1810, Aaron Grumman was in Norwalk with a family of 1 male under 10, 1 male 16-26, 3 females under 10, 1 female 26-45. On 25 June 1812, Aaron Grumman and Sarah his wife, of Norwalk, conveyed to Joel Grumman of Wilton, 5 acres of land in Norwalk, near Toilsome (Norwalk Deeds, 21:500).

iv and v. Another son and daughter, indicated by the Census records; they presumably d. young.

An additional inventory of $212.95 was made 6 Mar.1824, and distribution was made, 14 Oct. 1824, to Rebecca Comstock the widow, and to children Cornelia, Andrew, Sally Maria, Wm. Starr, Betsey, and Lucy Lavinia [File 1259, Danbury District, State Library]. Brief sketches of "Billy" Comstock appear in C. B. Comstock, Comstock Genealogy, 1907, p. 62, and J. A. Comstock, Comstock Family, 1949, p. 95; his wife is in B. P. Starr, Starr Family, p. 394.

Children, born at Redding, Conn.:

Cooley (the Comstock genealogies, loc. cit.; these Cooleys do not appear in either Mortimer Elwyn Cooley, The Cooley Genealogy, 1941, or Arthur Stoddard Cooley, The Descendants of Dr. Asahel Cooley, 1952).

ii. Andrew, b. 23 Jan. 1803, hat manufacturer, first at Redding, then at New York, N.Y.; d. at the Hotel Oesterreichischer Hof, Innsbruck, Austria, 9 Oct. 1866; bur. at New Milford, Conn. He m. at New Milford, 20 Aug. 1827, Julia Maria^6 Booth, b. at New Milford probably 29 Aug. 1802, d. at 266 Fourth Avenue, New York, N.Y., 3 Jan. 1865, bur. at New Milford, dau. of Gerardus^5 (Reuben^4, David^3, Joseph^2 Richard^1) and Sarah (Clark) Booth of New Milford and later of New York. This couple were the contributor's great-grandparents. For a detailed study of this entire family, see Donald Lines Jacobus, The Genealogy of the Booth Family, 1952, pp. 94-102.

iii. Sarah Maria, b. 25 Apr. 1806, d. at Danbury 29 Oct. 1885, bur. there; m. there, 24 June 1829, Ezra P. Bennett, M.D., b. at Weston, Conn., 31 Aug. 1806, d. at Danbury 27 Oct. 1882, son of Ezra and Esther (Godfrey) Bennett. They had three children: (1) Sarah L. Bennett, who m. Rev. John Hanford^8 Lockwood, b. at Troy, N.Y., 17 Jan. 1849, son of Charles Nichols^7 (Hanford Nichols^6, Isaac^5, Isaac^4, Joseph^3, Ephraim^2, Robert^1) and Mary Elizabeth (Fry) Lockwood (Lockwood Family, p. 505). John H. Lockwood was ordained minister of the Reformed Church at Canastota, N.Y., 5 Nov. 1871, became Congregational 1873, Pastor of the New England Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1873-79, of the First Church, Westfield, Mass., 1879-1906, Pastor Emeritus, 1906-28, d. at Springfield, Mass., 20 Oct. 1928, without issue; (2) Andrew Comstock Bennett (twin), b. at Danbury 7 Mar. 1836, d. at sea in May 1850; (3) William Comstock Bennett (twin), b. at Danbury 7 Mar. 1836, B.A., Yale, 1858, M.D., Coll. of Physicians & Surgeons, 1860, d. unmarried at Danbury 12 July 1886. The Bennett family is extinct.

iv. William Starr. b. 12 Dec. 1810, d. unm. in New York; hat manufacturer in partnership with brother Andrew.

v. Elizabeth, called Betsey, b. 29 June 1813, date of death not found; m. at Redding, 20 Aug. 1835, Alonzo Byington, dates not found, son of Collins Byington (b. 4 June 1794) and grandson of John Byington, of uncertain ancestry. They had two children: (1) George Collins Byington, b. at Georgetown, Conn., 1836, m. Sarah Morris, and had no issue; (2) Julia Rebecca Byington, b. at Georgetown, Conn., 7 Oct. 1839, d. at Wilton, Conn., m. at Georgetown, 23 Oct. 1855, Luzon Jelliff, b. 14 Sept. 1833, son of Luzon and Deborah (Banks) Jelliff. No issue. The Byington family is extinct. (John Farnham Boynton and Caroline (Harriman) Boynton, The Boynton Family, 1897, p. 284; D. H. Van Hoosear, The Fillow Family, 1888, p. 51.)

vi. Lucy Lavinia, b. 8 Dec. 1820; d. unmarried.

GRUMMAN ADDENDA

We are grateful to correspondents for the following addenda to the article on "The Grumman Family," which appeared in The American Genealogist, supra, 32:160-179; 33:14-25, 156-167.

Vol. 33, p. 16, lines 29-36: Miss Vera C. Halstead of the New Canaan Historical Society, New Canaan, Conn., points out that the late Lester Card (who made transcripts of all the epitaphs in Norwalk graveyards in 1933) noted the following inscriptions in Pine Island Cemetery on Crescent Street, Norwalk: "Sarah wife of Matthew Keeler died 3 Feb. 1764 in the 45th year of her age," and beside this there is a flaked-off stone, the footstone of which is marked "M.K." We have here the graves of Sarah^4 Grumman (b. at Norwalk 28 Oct. 1722) and of her husband Matthew^4 Keeler (b. there 14 Mar. 1716/17, living on 31 Aug. 1769). It will be noted that Sarah^4 (Grumman) Keeler was not in her 45th, but in her 42nd, year at the time of her death. Whether the mistake was made by the stonecutter or by Mr. Card in his copy, we cannot say. Miss Halstead further states that beside the graves of Matthew^4 and Sarah^4 (Grumman) Keeler are those of Matthew Keeler's parents, "Capt. Samuel Keeler, died 8 Aug. 1763, aged 80," and "Sarah wife of Capt. Samuel Keeler, died 12 Jan. 1777, aged 90."

Vol. 33, p. 164: Mr. Van Buren Lamb of New York, N. Y., has kindly pointed out that the will of Jeremiah^5 Grumman of Wilton was dated 23 Mar. 1814 and proved at Norwalk 18 Dec. 1815. In this will, the testator named his [second] wife Hannah, son Uri Smith Grumman, daughter Lucy Whitney, and grandchildren Lewis Fitch Grumman (son of deceased son Lewis) and Jehiel Grumman (son of deceased daughter Lucretia Grumman) [Norwalk Probate Records, vol. 3, pp. 45, 80].

Vol. 33, p. 166, lines 5-7: Mr. Van Buren Lamb informs us that "Susanna wife of Allen Betts was appointed guardian of 'Fitch Lewis' Grumman, aged 5, on 5 Nov. 1805" [Norwalk Probate Records].

Vol. 33, p. 166, line 22: Mr. Van Buren Lamb points out that Lucretia^6 Grumman (b. 22 Aug. 1782) had a son Jehiel^7 Grumman, who was b. in Dec. 1799 and was named in the will of his grandfather Jeremiah^5 Grumman in 1814. On 22 Jan. 1816, Eliphalet Taylor was appointed guardian of Jehiel Grumman, aged 16 [Norwalk Probate Records]. Jehiel^7 Grumman lived in Wilton and d. there 28 Feb. 1875, aged 75-2-2, according to his gravestone in St. Matthew's Cemetery, Wilton. He m. Lydia Beers, b. at Westport, Conn., in 1795, daughter of Samuel and Anna (Raymond) Beers. Lydia d. at Wilton 3 Feb. 1879, aged 83 yrs. 5 mos., and was buried with her husband. Two of the children of Jehiel and Lydia (Beers) Grumman are buried with them in St. Matthew's Cemetery: Julia Ann, d. 7 Aug. 1844, aged 18 yrs. 24 days, and Charles, d. 1 Jan. 1844, aged 10-6-9. Distribution of the estate of Jehiel Grumman of Wilton, deceased, was made on 3 Aug. 1879 (after Lydia's death) to: son George; heirs of son Edwin deceased; son Jehiel Jr.; heirs of deceased daughter Lucretia wife of William Reed Curtis, Jr.; son Sylvester; son Abijah Betts Grumman deceased [Norwalk Probate Records]. Sylvester^8 Grumman, son of Jehiel, was b. at Wilton 20 Jan. 1823 and d. at Norwalk 20 Dec. 1892, having married at Norwalk, 16 Nov. 1845, Betty Ann Moore, who was b. at Danbury 4 Aug. 1822. They had issue.

NEW HAVEN COUNTY COURT RECORDS
MARRIAGE AND BIRTH EVIDENCES

By Donald Lines Jacobus, M.A., F.A.S.G.

The early court records in New England provide genealogical data of many kinds, and probably they are the most neglected source of such data. Amateurs rarely seek them out, and since they are often unindexed (that is not invariably true), professional genealogists frequently are not paid sufficient to make a page by page search on what is usually a "fishing expedition" since it means spending a great deal of time on the bare possibility of striking information of value to the client.

So far as Connecticut records are concerned, I can think of few that would be of greater value to put into print, even in abstract form, than the early County Court Records of Hartford, New Haven and New London Counties. Those of Fairfield County prior to 1700 are missing, but they are complete from that date. The other counties in the state were erected at later dates but are valuable for the periods they cover.

The County Courts were set up after the union of New Haven with Connecticut Colony in 1664, and for many years these Courts sat part of the time as a Court of Common Pleas, and part of the time as a Probate Court, so that the early record volumes contain much probate action, such as proving of wills, granting of administration, appointments of guardians, and orders of distribution. Separate books were used for the recording of wills and inventories, but we lose much information if we rely on the probate record volumes alone for this period. In 1698 the General Assembly took further action with regard to the probate courts, and soon after the counties began recording all probate matters in books separate from county court matters.

Both during and after the time when probate records are found in the county court volumes, one finds much other matter of genealogical importance. People were tried for petty offenses and sometimes relationships were mentioned. There were suits brought to recover debt. Sometimes one of the parties to the action had removed and his new residence is stated. Very occasionally a suit involved the ownership of land, and we get an important list of claimants who were heirs and descended from the original owner unless it is stated that some of the claimants obtained their interest by purchase.

The records here abstracted are those in Volume III of New Haven County Court Records relating to cases of fornication, a large majority of them "fornication before marriage." It may well be asked, what is the purpose of making records of this kind public? They are of value in establishing the fact and approximate date of marriage in a period when many marriages were not recorded in the town vital statistics. They are also of value in accounting for some of the "strays" who appear in every family and who are a puzzle to the genealogist unless they can be identified as children who were born out of wedlock. Since the records in this volume deal with the period from 1713 to 1739, well over two centuries ago, it is felt that no descendant several generations later should resent the publication of what were considered minor misdemeanors at the time, especially when no connection of a living descendant with those named in the following list is shown. We have precedents in the publication of the early colonial records of Connecticut and New Haven, in which such

#. 94

Grant, Widow, at Hanwell near Banbury; brother John Groves in parish of Leget Grove three miles from Bristol; Rebecca Andrews that formerly lived with me; Nathaniel Humiston my servant; overseers, Mr. Israel Chauncey, Capt. William Curtis, and Mr. Joseph Hawley. Codicil 25 Jan. 1676; dau. Elizabeth Porter* and her child John Porter; friend John Pickett, Sr., to be an overseer. Inv. 14 Feb. 1675/6.

Child:

Hannah, m. Nathaniel Porter.

Grover Samuel.

Came in Truelove, 1635, ae. 16. He had a lot in Fairfield, which was sold to Alexander Bryan, and by him to Roger Knapp before Oct. 1654.

Grumman, John.

Settled in Fairfield and d. in 1685; m. Sarah Try, dau. of Michael, who d. in 1691. In 1653/4 he entered land and dwelling house purchased from Richard Lattin which was sometime Timothy Ford's.

---

* She of course was the second wife of his son-in-law.

Grumman, John, s. of John.

Married (1) Esther Thompson, dau. of John, b. about 1654.

Married (2) Esther, widow of Nathaniel Perry, and dau. of Richard Lyon. When common lands were set out to the heirs of Richard Lyon, Sr., 10 Mar. 1723/4, Esther's portion was set to her three Perry children and to Samuel Grumman "a representative of his mother Esther." This proves that Samuel was the only surviving child by Esther Lyon; as there is proof that the eldest son John was by the first wife, she must have been mother of the other children unless there was an intervening unknown wife between Esther Thompson and Esther Lyon.

"Hester Groment", aged 34, testified 1692 in the Disbrow witch trial; this was the second wife.

Inv. 20 May 1695; left a widow, four sons and a dau. On 13 Feb. 1701, John Gruman represented to the Court that his uncle Sergt. John Thompson together with Ezekiel Sanford were adm'rs of the Est. of his father John. Joseph, son of John, was of age to receive his portion, 30 Nov. 1709. On 23 May 1710, John Gruman (who had succeeded Thompson and Sanford as adm'r), made a division with the consent of Joseph Gruman, Ezekiel Sanford in behalf of Thomas Gruman, David Sherman in behalf of Samuel Gruman, "my sister Abigail having received her portion."

+John, b. abt. 1680.

Abigail, b. 1 Aug. 1685; m. 20 Jan. 1709, Joseph Jennings.

Joseph, b. abt. 1688; sold 13 Apr. 1716, calling himself yeoman, all right in Try's long lot, his own share and that of his brother Thomas; soon after removed to Newark, N. J., where he was living 1730; m. and had children, including Nehemiah (1718-1797) of Wilton and Ichabod (1723-1789) of Newark.

Thomas, b. abt. 1690, d. at Newark, N. J., 1714; yeoman, will 26 Mar. 1714, named brother Joseph (Exec'r) and brother Samuel (under age).

Child [by second wife]:

Samuel, b. abt. 1694, d. at Norwalk, 21 Aug. 1747 ae. 53 (g. s.); m. (called "late of Fairfield") at Norwalk, 10 Jan. 1721/2, Rebecca Betts, dau. of Daniel. She d. 24 May 1790 in 94 yr. (g. s.).

Thompson, Jane, and John.

Married (1) Esther Thompson, [illegible] Thompson [illegible]

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ried), she was the second wife.

Nov. [illegible] May, 1806 [illegible] [illegible] 12 Feb. 1801. Grumman, Samuel, s. of John.

Died at Fairfield, 12 Mar. 1690/1.

Married Mary Hubbard, dau. of William; she m. (2) Jacob Patchen. Mary Grumman, dau. of Mary wife of Jacob Patchen, was bapt. at Fairfield, 24 Mar. 1694/5.

Inv. 25 Mar. 1690/1; left widow.

Child:

Mary, b. abt. 1690, d. in 1780; m. Gideon Morehouse. She and her husband joined other Grumman heirs in a law suit 1714, for possession of land claimed under will of Michael Try.

Grumman, Thomas, s. of John.

Died at Fairfield, 10 Mar. 1690/1.

Married Mary Couch, dau. of Simon. She m. (2) James Bennett, shipwright, of Stratfield; and (3) by prenuptial contract dated 24 Oct. 1727, Samuel Jennings, Sr. [widower of Sarah Grumman].

Inv. 8 Apr. 1691 presented by widow Mary. The widow was to have what remained after payment of debts, except the entailed part of the Est.

On 11 Aug. 1697, James Bennett, shipwright, of Stratford, sold land which was granted by the town to John Grumman. On 19 Sept. 1704, Mary Bennett, formerly the wife of Thomas Grumant, approved a bill of sale made by Samuel Couch. [Fairfield Deeds.]

Child:

Sarah, b. 6 Mar. 1690/1, d. 30 Mar. 1690/1.

Grumman, John, s. of John 2d.

Born at Fairfield about 1680.

Married Ruth ———, with whom he conveyed 1710, land bounded on land of sister Abigail.

John Grumman of Fairfield conveyed 1737 to son John of Norwalk, land inherited from his uncle Thomas Grumman dec'd.

Children, recorded at Fairfield (first four bapt. 5 July 1713):

Esther, b. 1 Jan. 1704 [1704/5].

Silence, b. 15 Apr. 1708.

John, b. 3 July 1710; settled in Wilton; m. Damaris ———, by whom he had two children bapt. at Fairfield: David, 21 Apr. 1734; and Jedediah, 12 Jan. 1735/6.

Thankful, b. 5 Jan. 1712/3; m. (rec. Norwalk) 30 Oct. 1734, Ephraim Lockwood.

Elizabeth, b. 3 July 1717, bapt. 4 Aug. 1717.

Ebenezer, b. 7 July 1720, bapt. 21 Aug. 1720, d. at South Salem, Westchester Co., N. Y., 29 Aug. 1793; m. at Ridgefield, 12 Nov. 1742, Deborah ———. He had two children recorded at Ridgefield, and others bapt. at South Salem.

Guire, Luke.

The surname is also spelled Guyer and Wire.

His mother was Mary Adams, dau. of Edward; she m. (2) ——— Merwin and (3) Stephen Sherwood. The will of Mary Sherwood, 22 Mar. 1711/2, proved 7 May 1712; gr. son Luke Guire; gr. daus. Hellinah, Mary, Hannah Guire; gr. son Ebenezer Guire.

He m. Rebecca Odell, dau. of John; she m. (2) Robert Turney. Rebecca Guire renewed Covenant at Fairfield Church, 14 June 1696.

Inv. 11 Apr. 1699. Ages of children: Luke 10, Ebenezer 6, Elinah 7½, Mary 4, Hannah 2, John 9 months. Widow Rebecca to administer with her brother John Odell, Jr.

Samuel Hall, Jr., of Chestnut Ridge [Redding] conveyed 3 Feb. 1715/6 to Luke Guire of Fairfield, land from wife's father Luke Guire, referring to wife's brother Ebenezer Guire.

Children, bapt. at Fairfield:

×Luke, b. abt. 1689, bapt. 14 June 1696, d. at Westport, 10 May 1751; m. abt. 1711, Mary Adams, dau. of Nathan.

Dear Mrs. Read:

Enclosed is the copy of the Milford Quad you requested.

I spent quite a little time bringing the Grumman property forward. I don't have a great deal of time to spend doing something like this and as a result I was not overly sucessful. If you have additional information send it to me and I will take another stab at it.

As near as we can figure the property you are interested in should lie on or near Day Road. Day Road is near the Hamlet of Fly Creek in the Town of Otsego. That is the road we believe Cheney's Mill was on. Grumman sold to A. Wentworth a parcel less than five acres. Wentworth sold to N. Marvin in 1815. There is mention of Marvin's Mill so it appears perhaps Marvin added the two together.

On the old map in the office there are a number of Cheneys around Day Road. That is the sum total of our research. I am sorry I am unable to help you further at this time.

When we are able to determine more exactly where the property is located we will send the map along at no further charge.

Sincerely,

Steven R. Child, cw

Helen Hunt Read

Toledo Ohio 43623

Dear Helen,

Upon return from the LA Library yesterday your SHORT genealogy material had arrived and was lying on the table, thought I would die of suspense before opening the "big fat" package. That always means lots of new material. Thank you so very much for your time and expense; will gladly pay for the zeroxing and postage but know I could never ever repay the time spent gathering so much material. My husband zeroxs for me out at Cheyron, that helps. It really shames me that I hadn't even sent for Sarah Ann's death certificate. My only excuse is I am lazy (ha!) but other than that I have been working steady on my early Dutch lines in New Amsterdam. They seem to create more of an interest and is more readily available in the libraries; sending for documents and materials is not one of my strong points.(by the looks of the mistakes, typing needs to be improved too!!)

With your expertise in researching, you most likely aready have this GRUMMOM material but sending it on anyway; I have so little to offer to you and Linda but I promise I will try to do better now that I have that "shove" in the right direction. It is most likely that Clarissa Ruth Grummon was the daughter of Nathaniel or John Grummon living in Otsego Co. Ny 1800 (p.20) Wish I was going with you & Linda to Otsego. In March, six of us genealogy gals went to Salt Lake on the train; had a great time but not much luck genealogy-wise.

We are planning a long week end in Fremont for Father's Day June 17. My Dad is 87 yrs old and I try to get back at least once a year since he is older. I was born and raised in Sandusky County and didn't come to CA till after graduation in 1943. We will be bringing our trailer; have 3 weeks vacation only, since we are saving the other 3 weeks for camping with friends this fall in the Northern CA wine country. Next April is retirement time so Barney promises me lots of research time back in New England/East coast area. He is good help at libraries but really would rather be fishing!

Our phone is (213) 545 0309 but in Ohio I will be with my brother, Bill Hampsher, 1650 Emmett Drive, Fremont (419) 332 4903. We park our trailer in their yard.
Will be looking forward to seeing you and Linda, tell Linda I have a Earl/Erle/Earle line back in New York 1715, Neeltje (Eleanor) Earle.

Will check with operator for your phone number and give you a call or you may call me at my brother's house.

While shopping today, bought a new family book to keep all the Short/Grummon material in; that was number 15 book. Thanks again, special thanks to Linda too and will see you soon for a good long visit.

With love and sincere thanks,

Betty

Otsego Co Spy & Bocon

H-94

The first grant of land to white settlers in this region was made in the year 1738, and consisted of about 8,000 acres, located in the northeast part of the present county of Otsego. It was granted by George Clark, the lieutenant governor of New York, to four men—John Lindesay, Jacob Roseboom, Lenelet Ganesvoort, and Sybrant VanSchaick. The originator and leader of this settlement, Mr. Lindesay, was a Scotchman, a man of wealth and culture. The others, judging from their names, must have been of the old Dutch stock. Their settlement was at Cherry Valley.

These pioneers, with their families, suffered many privations during the first years of their settlement, and in the winter of 1740-41, would have perished but for the assistance of a friendly Mohawk who came to them from the Mohawk valley on snow shoes and, learning their destitute condition, made repeated trips to his home, bringing back provisions. This kindness was the result of Mr. Lindesay's generous treatment of the Indians from the beginning. He had made them his fast friends and received in turn the same kindness that William Penn and all other settlers experienced who were just and friendly to these trusting children of nature.

In 1741 the little settlement was increased by the arrival of five families originally from the north of Ireland. The heads of these families were Rev. Samuel Dunlop, David Ramsay, William Gallt, James Campbell and William Dickson. They added about thirty persons to the community. During the next ten years only four new families came. Mr. Lindesay had retired from the settlement, having gone into the military service, and trouble had broken out with the Indians so that progress was retarded by constant fear of an Indian war. In 1762 there were only eight families, and during the French and Indian war it became necessary to build a fort at Cherry Valley, at which a company of soldiers was stationed. But no serious hostilities took place, and at the beginning of the Revolution the settlement numbered three hundred persons.

The town of Edmeston was settled about 1770 by Col. Edmeston, a former officer of the English army, who received a tract of 10,000 acres for his services in the French war.

Hartwick dates from a grant made to John Christopher Hartwick, in the year 1761.

In Laurens the first settlement was made by Joseph Mayall in 1774.

Middlefield was settled in 1755 by Wm. Cook and others. In 1773 Ebenezer Knapp from Dutchess county settled on Butternuts creek in the town of Morris.

Increase Thurston and Benjamin Lull settled in New Lisbon in 1773.

Henry Schramling and families bearing the names of Young and Alger settled in Oneonta township before the Revolution, but the exact date is not known.

There were several other small settlements within the present limits of the county before the Revolution, as at Milford, Exeter, Unadilla, and Richfield Springs; but they assumed no importance until after the war.

Otsego County During the Revolution.

Up to the time of the Revolution the settlers in this region had managed to keep on tolerably good terms with the Indians, but with the outbreak of the war of independence a great change occurred. It was a question which side the Indians would take in the impending conflict. They would perhaps have sided with the colonists or remained neutral had it not been for the opposing influence of one man, Sir William Johnson, who had long been among them as the agent of the British government, and who had dealt very justly with them. This man found means of uniting five of the "Six Nations" against the patriot settlers. The Oneidas, although friendly to the British, refused to fight against the colonies and consequently their territory was ravaged by the tories. Throughout the struggle the Indians, encouraged by the English loyalists and tories, carried on a merciless warfare against the scattered and feeble settlements of central New York and Pennsylvania.

In July, 1778, occurred the great massacre of Wyoming, a village on the Susquehanna river in Pennsylvania, and in the following November a like fate befell the settlement at Cherry Valley. This latter disaster might have been averted if the warnings given had been promptly heeded by the officer in command of the small garrison stationed at that place, for a fort had been built and all the inhabitants might have been brought within it. But the commander, Col. Alden, seemed to doubt the truth of the warnings although they came in an official communication from the officer in command at Fort Schuyler. He was one of the first to be killed as he retreated, bravely defending himself, toward the fort. In this massacre thirty-two of the settlers together with sixteen soldiers acting as a guard outside of the fort were slain. The fort itself, being defended with cannon, held out against the several assaults made upon it. Failing in these attacks, the savages set fire to all the dwellings outside the fortifications, and retreated down the Cherry Valley creek taking with them as prisoners about seventy of the inhabitants, though nearly all of these were soon released and permitted to return in safety. The military post was maintained until the next summer, when it was abandoned. A second attack and massacre in 1780 compelled the remaining inhabitants to flee for safety, and the place was thus entirely deserted until after the close of the war.

These and other Indian massacres aroused the general government to an act of terrible retribution. A campaign of destruction was organized under the command of Generals Sullivan and Clinton, who received orders to attack and destroy without mercy all the villages of the hostile tribes of the state. General Sullivan, who was chief in command, first marched from his camp on the Hudson (May 1st, 1779), to the scene of the late massacre in the Wyoming valley. From thence he moved to Tioga Point at the confluence of the Chemung and Susquehanna rivers and built a fort which he called Fort Sullivan. In the meantime Gen. Clinton with 1800 men ascended the Mohawk river, from the Hudson to Canajoharie. He thence made the portage to Otsego Lake with the intention of descending the Susquehanna river to Tioga Point, there to form a junction with Gen. Sullivan. He had transported a large number of boats across the country from the Mohawk for this purpose. In these he descended the lake, but found the river too low to float them, upon which he devised a very ingenious means of raising the water. He dammed up the outlet of the lake until the water rose nearly three feet, then having all in readiness, and his boats distributed along the banks, he cut the dam and so safely floated down on the swelling current.

The Indians along the course of the river were greatly astonished at this phenomenon. First the water fell, and then suddenly and without any visible cause, rose, bearing upon its bosom a hostile fleet. They regarded this as an interposition of the Great Spirit in favor of their enemies, and so fled in terror from their villages, leaving the invaders to make their journey unmolested. Only a portion of the force kept to the boats, the greater part marching along the banks of the river. The junction with Sullivan was safely made and the combined forces, now numbering 3,200 men, advanced northward on a mission of devastation through the rich Indian settlements of the Chemung and Genesee valleys. All the villages were burned, the numerous fine orchards cut down, and immense quantities of corn destroyed. The Indians, after making a brave stand and being defeated at Newtown, on the present site of Elmira, fled to the protection of the British forts at Niagara, around which they encamped and where they spent the winter in great distress, but their spirit was not broken and they were soon again upon the warpath, continuing their depredations upon the white settlements until the close of the Revolution.

But the field of conflict was changed from the Susquehanna to the Mohawk and Schoharie, for on the upper Susquehanna there remained nothing to fight for and no one to fight. Successive conquests by both parties had given the whole region back to nature and to the wild beasts. Almost the only human beings who now traversed it were those who followed the ancient trails on their way to the new battle grounds beyond.

It was thus that Otsego county, which had nearly a dozen white settlements at the beginning of the Revolution, was an uninhabited wilderness at its close, but with peace a new era was soon to dawn upon it.

The Formation of Townships.

Gen. Sullivan's devastating march made Central New York better known to the whites than ever before, and as soon as released from military service many of his officers and men hastened to return as peaceful settlers to a region through which they had so recently passed as destroyers. A great tide of emigration also set in from the New England states.

The settlements made before the war and abandoned during the Indian troubles were also quickly revived as soon as peace returned, and from that time the population rapidly increased, as is apparent from the formation of new townships immedibecame a hostile force. They regarded this as an interposition of the Great Spirit in favor of their enemies, and started in terror from their villages, leaving the invaders to make their journey unmolested. Only a portion of the force kept to the boats, the greater part travelling along the banks of the river. The junction was safely made and the combined forces, now numbering 5,000 men, advanced northward on a mission of devastation through the rich Indian settlements of the Chemung and Genesee valleys. All the villages were burned, the numerous fine orchards cut down, and immense quantities of corn destroyed. The Indians after making a brave stand and being defeated at Newtown, on the present site of Elmira, fled to the protection of the British forts at Niagara, around which they encamped and where they spent the winter in great distress, but their spirit was not broken and they were soon again upon the warpath, continuing their depredations upon the white settlements until the close of the Revolution.

But the field of conflict was widened from the Susquehanna to the Mohawk and Schoharie, for on the upper Susquehanna there remained nothing to raid for and no one to fight. Successive campaigns by both parties had given the whole region back to nature and to the wild beasts. Almost the only human beings who now traversed it were those who followed the migrant Indians on their way to the new Indian grounds beyond.

It was thus that Otsego county, which had nearly a dozen white settlements at the beginning of the Revolution, was at its conclusion a wilderness again, but with peace a new era was soon to dawn upon it.

Hartwick

Area, 25,980 Acres. Population, 1,800.

HARTWICK was formed from Otsego in 1802. Its surface is hilly, the highest summits being 200 to 350 feet above the valleys. It is drained by several small streams that flow into the Susquehanna and the east branch of the Otego creek. The township was named in honor of the Rev. John Christopher Hartwick who, in 1752, purchased from the Indians for the sum of 100 pounds, a tract of land embracing nearly all of the present township and amounting to 21,500 acres. Mr. Hartwick was a native of the dukedom of Saxe-Gotha in the province of Thuringia in Germany, and had come as a Lutheran missionary to this country. He was for many years a noted preacher throughout the country from New England to Virginia, and it was not until after the Revolution that he settled down upon his purchase and established a colony. Through the agency of Judge William Cooper he let a great part of his land to settlers at an annual rental of one shilling per acre, with the privilege of purchasing at fourteen shillings per acre.

HARTWICK SEMINARY.—In his will Mr. Hartwick left his whole fortune for the establishment of the Seminary that bears his name. The school was opened on the 15th of December, 1815, with the Rev. Dr. Ernest Lewis Hazelius as principal. It now has three departments—Regents, Collegiate and Theological. The buildings have recently been remodeled and enlarged. The institution is located four miles south of Cooperstown on the Cooperstown and Charlotte Valley railroad.

Conspicuous among the natives of Hartwick was William H. Bissell who was born in this town in 1811, but early removed with his parents to Milford where he grew to manhood. He prepared himself for the medical profession, but abandoned it for the law. In 1837 he removed to Illinois, from which state he served as a colonel in the Mexican war. He also represented his district in congress from 1849 to 1855. In 1856 he was elected governor of the state, was re-elected and died at Springfield, Ill., in 1860, while serving his second term.

Among the early settlers were the brothers John and Nathan Davidson, William and Nathan Field, Jerry Potter, Jedediah Ashcraft, Joseph Marsh, Nicholas and Rufus Steere, Amos and Joseph Winsor, Benjamin and Nicholas Camp, John and Philip Wells, Hopkins Burlingham, Isaac Bissell, Deacon Ziba Newland, Amasa Peters, Uriah Luce, Stephen Ingalls, David and Josiah Maples, Daniel Murdock and Col. Henry Wheeler. The first supervisor was Philip Wells, and the first town clerk was Rufus Steere who built the cotton factory at Toddsville.

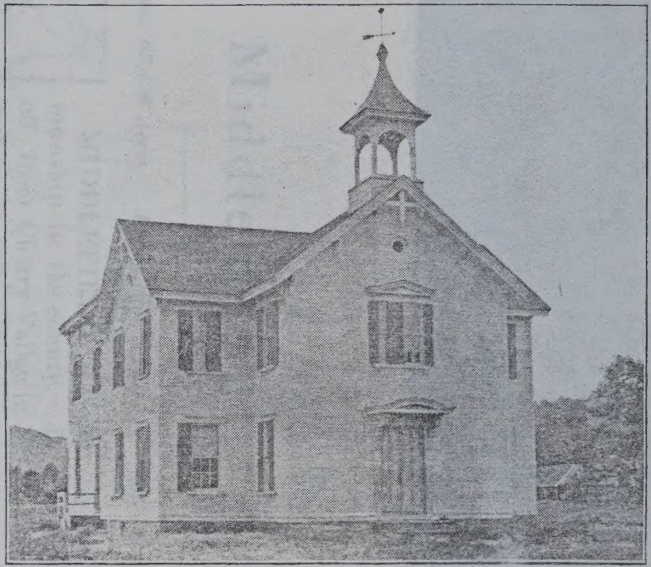
VILLAGES: There are five villages in this township, viz: Hartwick (population 605), Hartwick Seminary (population 124), South Hartwick (population 63), Toddsville (population 302), and Hyde Park (population 150). Chase is a rural postoffice. Clintonville, formerly a cotton cloth manufacturing village, has now only an electric lighting plant, from which Cooperstown is supplied, postoffice at Milford. On the Fourth of July, 1902, Hartwick village celebrated its 100th anniversary.

SCHOOLS: Number of districts, 16; number of teachers, 17; number of children of school age, 342. The Hartwick Union Free school has a commodious building, newly furnished and provided with a good library, natural history and chemical apparatus, and other appliances for teaching. It is a school of four grades and confers Regents' diplomas on its academic graduates.



HARTWICK UNION FREE SCHOOL

CHURCHES: There are eight churches in this township, viz: At Hartwick, Baptist, Christian and Methodist; at Toddsville, Union and Methodist; at Hartwick Seminary, Lutheran; at Hyde Park, Methodist; and a Christian church near Christian Hill in the northern part of the township.

NEWSPAPERS: There are two weekly papers, the "Hartwick Review" and "Hartwick Visitor," published at Hartwick village. The "Hartwick Seminary Monthly and Eastern Lutheran," the organ of Hartwick Seminary, is edited and published at the Seminary.

Middlefield

Area, 37,456 Acres. Population, 2,100.

MIDDLEFIELD is the largest township in the county. It was set off from Cherry Valley in 1797. The surface is hilly, the summits being 400 to 500 feet above the valleys. It is well watered by the Cherry Valley and Red creeks, which flow into the Susquehanna.

The first settlement was made at Newtown-Martin, now Middlefield, (locally Clarksville), about 1760; but during the Indian wars of the Revolution the place was exposed to great danger, and all the more so on account of the patriotic spirit that sent its best men to the Continental army. The town was, in the end, completely depopulated, but at the close of the war its fertile lands were rapidly taken up by old and new settlers, among whom were William Cook, the four McCollum brothers, Reuben Beals, Bernard Temple, Gardner Blair, Levi H. Pierce, John Parshall. David Anderson, Benjamin Gilbert. James Bradley, Capt. Thomas Ransom and Major Jothan Ames.

VILLAGES: There are three villages in this township, viz: Middlefield (population 243), Middlefield Center (population 108), and Phoenix Mills (population 150). Lentsville is a rural postoffice. Bowerstown is a hamlet (population 70), with postoffice at Cooperstown. Westville is partly in Middlefield, with postoffice and churches in Westford. The "Index Knitting Mills," at Phoenix Mills, employ (including branch at Hope Factory), about 400 hands.

The County Poor House and Farm are situated in this township, on the railroad, three miles south of Cooperstown.

SCHOOLS: Number of districts, 19. Teachers, 18. Children of school age, 322. The village schools are graded and efficiently conducted.

CHURCHES: There are three churches in this township, viz: At Middlefield, Baptist and Methodist; at Middlefield Center, Presbyterian.

OTSEGO is the oldest township in the county. It was organized as a part of Montgomery county in 1788, and included nearly all that portion of the present county west of Otsego lake and the Susquehanna river, which rises therein.

Its surface consists mainly of a hilly upland, divided into ridges by Fly and Oaks creeks. The first white man who passed through this region was Cadwallader Colden, surveyor general, in the year 1737. Sixteen years later, in 1753, Rev. Gideon Hawley was sent to this locality as a missionary to the Indians. The next noted visitor was Gen. George Washington who passed through on an exploring expedition in 1783, and "viewed the Lake Otsego at the source of the Susquehanna."

The Indian wars of the Revolutionary period desolated this whole region, but with the return of peace a tide of emigration set in, and the portion now known as Otsego township was especially attractive.

This influx of settlers dates from 1788. Among the first were William and Asel Jarvis, who became prominent citizens. William was a physician, and Asel erected at Fly Creek, in 1813, the first foundry and machine shop. His three sons, Chester, Dwight and Kent, were leading men and active in the old military organizations. Other early settlers at Fly Creek were John Adams, Ebenezer Cheeney and Oliver Bates.

In 1788 came also George Scott from Yorkshire, England, and about the same time John Patton from Perthshire, Scotland. Other pioneers were Abner Pier, for whom Pierstown was named, and Major George Pier, a celebrated musician. Hon. Isaac Williams came in 1793. He occupied various important offices. In 1813, 1817 and 1823 he represented his district in congress. Darius Warren came here from Connecticut in 1788, and was the first man who received a deed of land from Judge William Cooper. Erastus Taylor came from Bennington, Vt., and raised a family notable for longevity.

Other early settlers whose names have been perpetuated in this vicinity are George Roberts, Ira Tanner, Jesse Teft, Norman and Bingham Babcock, Martin Coates, Reuben Hinds, Platt St. John, Andrew Scribner, Levi Pierce, John Badger, Russell Williams, John Baldwin and Eleazur Loomis.

VILLAGES: There are four villages in this township, viz: Cooperstown (population 2,368), Fly Creek (population 238), Oaksville (population 149), and Hope Factory (population 130). Snowdon and Bourne are rural postoffices.

SCHOOLS: Number of school districts, 18; number of teachers, 32; children of school age, 803.

CHURCHES: There are ten churches in this township, viz: At Cooperstown, Baptist, Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, Universalist. At Fly Creek, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Universalist. In the Hinds neighborhood north of Fly Creek, Methodist.

NEWSPAPERS: "Freeman's Journal," "Otsego Farmer," and "Otsego Republican," all published at Cooperstown.

COOPERSTOWN.

Cooperstown was founded by Judge William Cooper, the father of J. Fenimore Cooper, who in 1785 purchased from Colonel George Croghan (who had purchased it from the Indians), a tract of 100,000 acres of land lying on the west side of the river and embracing the site of the present village and extending both north and south of it. He purchased this land before seeing it, but in the fall of the same year, he came with a party of surveyors, and in January, 1786, took formal possession of his property, afterwards known as the "Cooper patent." William Ellison, a surveyor, came the same year, and in 1788, under Mr. Cooper's direction, he laid out the village.

In 1789, a large house having been built for them, Mr. Cooper brought his family from Burlington, N. J., their former home. The youngest member of this company was the child James, aged two years. The name Fenimore, the mother's maiden name, was later added by himself. This child was destined to become the most famous of American novelists, and the place to which he thus came to be famous as the scene of his romantic tales. The following is from a graphic description of Judge Cooper's arrival written in 1871 by G. Pomeroy Keese esq. of Cooperstown:

"One bright October afternoon eighty years ago, as the sun was drawing lengthened shadows over the landscape, bathing in rich autumnal light the hills which surround the limpid waters of Otsego lake, there came around the base of Mount Vision a lumbering family coach, bearing, with its attendant vehicles, the founder of Cooperstown and his household to their new home. All the glorious beauties of the changing foliage which have since charmed so many thousands who have visited this still rural retreat, were in their virgin splendor, and as the new comers looked upon the scene and beheld in the reflection of the lake below the dark shades of the evergreens contrasted with the gold and crimson hues of the maple and the beech, they must have been sadly insensible to the chief attraction of their future abode if they failed to see in it one of the most perfect combinations of hill and valley, lake and forest, which the hand of painter could portray. The party, numbering fifteen in all, with the family domestics, was an imposing cavalcade in this primitive region just emerging from the wilderness. . . . . The whole population of the place—thirty-five in all—were drawn up to receive the 'lord of the manor,' who, from henceforth, as the first judge of the county and its largest landed proprietor, became the leading spirit of all that region."

The village thus begun more than a century ago, although of slow growth, has always prospered and kept pace with modern progress. Its streets are broad and well kept; its driveways along the lake and river delightful, and its camping and boating facilities unsurpassed. It has an electric lighting plant, is supplied with pure water, and its spacious hotels and dwellings invite summer guests, of whom a great number are received every season. The work of the public authorities has been generously supplemented by Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark, a distinguished resident, to whom the place is indebted for a beautiful park and gymnasium, and for the splendid edifice of the Young Men's Christian Association.

To its natural beauty of situation and its advantages as a summer resort, Cooperstown adds the romantic interest that is associated with the "Leatherstocking Tales." Cooper excelled in his descriptions of natural scenery, and the reader who bears his vivid pictures in mind will easily recognize the localities along the lake made classic by his genius.

Cooperstown has been at times the permanent or summer home of some famous men, among whom, beside the great novelist, are Samuel F. B. Morse, Thurlow Weed, Gen. John A. Dix, Gen. Abner Doubleday, Gen. Geo. C. Starkweather, Hon. Samuel Nelson, Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and Col. Wm. L. Stone, editor of the New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Otsego County Agricultural Society holds an annual fair at Cooperstown, which is largely attended.

Important benevolent institutions at Cooperstown are the "Thanksgiving Hospital," in the establishment of which Miss Susan Fenimore Cooper, a daughter of the novelist, was largely instrumental, and the "Orphan House of the Holy Savior," which is under the control of the Episcopal diocese of Albany, but which receives inmates regardless of denominational lines.

The Cooperstown High School.

This institution is fully equipped for thorough instruction. It is supplied with all needed apparatus, and with a library of 4,000 volumes. The academic department, under the Regents, prepares for college and for law and other special courses. The faculty consists of a principal and eleven assistants.

Cooper's Grave and Monument.

James Fenimore Cooper died at his home in Cooperstown on the 14th of September, 1851, at the age of sixty-two years. Cooper sleeps in the churchyard beside his kindred, an unpretending slab marking the site of his grave. His monument is at Lakewood cemetery, on the eastern shore of the lake, just beyond the site of the panther scene in the "Pioneer." It is of Italian marble, twenty-five feet high, with a figure of Leatherstocking on the summit. Natty is represented as loading his rifle and gazing off on the lake spread out beneath him, while his dog by his side watches his master with eager interest.

MATTHEW MARVIN

Norwalk, Conn.

MATTHEW¹ MARVIN, baptized at Great Bentley, Essex, England, 26 Mar. 1600, died at Norwalk, Conn., (before 12 July) 1680; married first, about 1622, ELIZABETH ———, born about 1604, died at Hartford, Conn., in the early 1640's; married second, about 1647, Alice, widow of John Bouton, Sr.

Matthew and Reinold Marvin, the immigrants, were sons of Edward and Margaret Marvin, and their ancestry for several generations in Essex, England, has been traced.

Matthew, aged 35, with his wife Elizabeth, aged 31, and five children, came to New England on the Increase in 1635. Matthew had been "Sydeman" of St. Mary's Church, Great Bentley, in 1621, overseer in 1627, and senior warden in 1628. He was an original settler of Hartford, Conn., in 1635, and of Norwalk, Conn., in 1650. His home lot in Norwalk was next to the meeting house, and he was frequently called "Mr.," the prefix of respect. He was a wheelwright.

He served as Deputy for Norwalk to the Conn. General Court, May 1654. He was freed from watching and training, 19 May 1659. [Conn. Col. Rec., 1-256, 335.] Qualifying ancestor, Society of Colonial Wars.

His will was dated 26 Dec. 1678, and the inventory of his estate was taken 13 July 1680.

RICHARD MATHER

Dorchester, Mass.

(REV.) RICHARD[1] MATHER, born at Lowton in Winwick Parish, co. Lancaster, England, about 1596, died at Dorchester, Mass., 22 Apr. 1669; married first, at Bury, co. Lancaster, 29 Sept. 1624, CATHERINE HOLT, born , died 1655, daughter of Edmund Holt of Bury; married second, 26 Aug. 1656, Sarah (Hawkridge) (Story) Cotton, widow of William Story and of (Rev.) John Cotton.

He was son of Thomas Mather and Margaret Abrahams who were married at Warrington, co. Lancs, 30 Sept. 1591. He learned Latin in his youth in Winwick School, and was master of the grammar school at Toxteth Park near Liverpool. He was admitted to Brasenose College, Oxford, 9 May 1618. After less than a year at Oxford, Mather took holy orders and became minister at Toxteth, preaching also at Prescott and Liverpool.

In 1634 he was suspended for non-conformity, and in 1635 came in the James to New England. He became teacher of the Church at Dorchester in 1636, and as such an Overseer of Harvard College from 1642 until his death in 1669.

Qualifying ancestor, Society of Colonial Dames of America.

At the time when the county began to settle, its territory was embraced in two towns of Oneida County. All south of Black River was a part of Mexico, and all north of the river belonged to Leyden. The subdivisions that had preceded these, were briefly as follows: In 1788 (March 7), Whitestown was formed as a part of Montgomery County, embracing all north, south, and west, to the bounds of the state, from which, by successive divisions, many hundred towns have since sprung. Steuben was formed April 10th, 1792, from which Leyden was erected, March 10th, 1797, embracing besides its present limits, all east and north of the river in this county and Lewis. By the same act the town of Mexico was formed, with most of Oswego, the south part of Jefferson, and west half of Lewis for its limits, and from this town, Champion, Watertown, and Lowville, were formed, March 14th, 1800, by one act; Adams, April 1st, 1802, and Ellisburgh, February 22d, 1803. Simeon De Witt in his map of the state east of the preëmption line, published in 1802, adopted the following names to the towns in the county.

ADAMS.

Was formed from Mexico, embracing townships No. 7 and 8, on the 1st of April, 1802, the first town meeting being held at the house of Eliphalet Edmonds. The town derived its name from president John Adams.

Notes from the town records.—Wolf bounties of $5 were offered in 1803; of $10 from 1804 to 1814; of $15 in 1815. In the latter year a bounty of $10 was offered for wild cats, and $1 for foxes. A special meeting was held December 20th, 1815, and these bounties were rescinded. In 1818, a wolf bounty of $10 was offered. Panther bounties of $10 offered in 1811, 1813.

In 1822–3, the poor upon the town were voted to be sold at auction, to the lowest bidder. In 1823, the town voted against adopting the poor house, and house of industry, recommended by the supervisors. In 1812, a penalty of $5 voted for allowing Canada thistles to go to seed. At a special town meeting, passed November 29th, 1842, the sum of $500 was voted for repairing the state road from Rome to Sackett's Harbor in the towns of Redfield and Boylston.

At the first town meeting of Adams, held March 1, 1803 the following town officers were elected: Nicholas Salisbury supervisor; Phineas Keith, clerk; D'Estaing Salisbury, John W. Smith, David Grommon, Jr., Thomas White, assessors; Isaac Baker, collector; Thomas White, David Comstock, overseers of the poor; Paul Stickney, Jacob Kellogg, Simeon Hunt, commissioners of highways; Isaac Baker, and Anson Moody, constables; Daniel Comstock, David Smith, George H. Thomas, George Cooper, fence viewers; Jacob Kellogg, Benjamin Thomas, pound keepers; Abraham Ripley, James Perry, Enan Salisbury, John Cowles, Consider Law, Solomon Robbins, Hezekiah Tiffany, Thomas White, Daniel Mansfield, Asa Davis, Squire Read, Abel Palmer, overseers of highways; David Comstock, Simeon Hunt, deer reeves.

Supervisors. 1803–12, Nicholas Salisbury; 1813, Jacob Kellogg; 1814–17, N. Salisbury; 1818-20, Eliphalet Edmonds; 1821–26, Wm. Hart; 1827–28, Isaac Baker; 1829–30, Cyrus Eddy; 1831, Chauncey Baker; 1832, Isaac Baker; 1833, Cyrus Eddy; 1834, Wells Benton; 1835, David J. M. Howard; 1836, Isaac Baker; 1837, Samuel Bond; 1838, D. J. M. Howard; 1839–40, John H. Whipple; 1841, Robert B. Doxtater; 1842–43, Rufus Herick; 1844, Abram Sheldon; 1845–47, Joseph L. Green; 1848, Charles Potter; 1849–52, John C. Cooper; 1853, Joseph C. Green.

Adams, or No. 7, fell to the share of Nicholas Low, in the subdivision of the eleven towns, by ballot, and was surveyed by Benjamin Wright in 1796, into 56 lots, numbered from west to east, and from north to south, commencing near Henderson Bay, and ending on the line of Lorraine. Mr. Wright complained of local attractions, that rendered it impossible to run straight lines. The lots varied in contents from 240 acres to 676 acres, and the whole made an aggregate of 26,505 acres.

In June, 1799, a company consisting of Nicholas Salisbury, Robert Fulton, Caleb Ellis and son Daniel, Joel Guile, Abram Wilcox, John and Gideon Howard, and Elihu Phillips, followed up the creek from Ellisburgh, through this town and Rodman, and the former was so struck with the probable fertility and value of the town that he went to New York the same fall, and purchased a tract one mile below the village. About a dozen, whose names are given in the following list, took up lands the same fall. This list is taken from the land books of Nicholas Low, in the hands of I. W. Bostwick, Esq., of Lowville, the agent under whom the town was mostly settled. 1798, Elisha Phillips; 1799, Oct. 29, Stephen Shippey, Enon D'Estaing, Nicholas and Alex. Salisbury, Solomon Smith, Daniel Comstock, David Smith, Abram Ripley and Jonathan Cable; Nov. 6, Eliph't Edmonds, Alexander Dewey; Nov. 14, Geo. Cooper, Jehoida Page, Solomon Truman, John W. Houseman, Peter Dockstader, Paul Stickney, Elias Avery, James McCumber, Russell Smith, Eben'r Brown, Amos Claflin, Joshua Comstock, Matthew Wilkie, Consider Law. In 1801, Abijah Miller, John Freeman, Josiah Godfrey, Daniel Talcott, Hezekiah Tiffany, Joseph Cook, Phineas Rose, Robert, Solomon and Asher Robbins, Simeon Meacham, Timothy Pond, Barnabas Wellman, Wm. Thomas, Abel Hart, Henry H. Walrodh, Chauncey and Roswell Mills. In 1802, Nathan Loveland, Cornelius Hinds, Sylvanus P. Daggart, Abel Loveland, Roswell Taylor, Roswell Coe, John Richard, David Higgens, Aaron Farr, John C. Toll, John C. Scott, James Streeter, John Kudder, Joseph Landon. In 1803, Truman and Theodore Bunce, John Jones, John Wentworth, Sylvanus Barney, James Randolph, D. G. M. Gaylord, James Henderson, Thomas James, Absalom Price, David Gardner. In 1804, Job Taylor, Eliphalet Adams, Abel Myrick. Darius Markham, John C. Dickinson, John Weaver, Aaron Webster, and subsequently many others. Although in the fall of 1799, many parties were in looking for lands, yet no settlement was made until April 16, 1800, when Nicholas Salisbury,* from Western,

 Mr. S. died in town, Dec. 11, 1834, aged 71.

N. Y., found his way into town through Lowville, by a tedious journey of 26 days, bringing with an ox team and sled, his family and goods, fording the streams with great peril, and camping at night wherever necessity compelled them. Solomon Smith and son accompanied, as hired men. John Smith, Francis McKee, Consider Law, David Smith, Peter Doxtater[*] and others, several with families, came into town, and begun small clearings, mostly in the valley of Sandy Creek. The terms of purchase were $3 per acre, and an obligation to clear two acres, and build a house within a certain time. A tract of 500 acres, where Adams village now is, was taken up by David Smith,[†] who in 1800, built and got in operation a saw mill, and the same season witnessed the arrival of numerous settlers, mostly from Oneida County. Those on foot, came by way of Redfield, but this route was then impassable for teams. The first acre of clearing was cut in May and June, 1800, by Samuel Fox, three miles above the village. Mr. David Smith, where Adams Village now is, in 1801 or 1802, got in operation a very small grist mill, that superseded the stump mortars of the first season, and relieved the settlers from the long and tedious journeys to Coffeen's Mill in Rutland, or voyages in open boats from the mouth of Sandy Creek to Kingston. From the first prominent settler at the village, the place acquired and long retained the name of Smith's Mills, by which it is still sometimes known by the old inhabitants. In 1801, Jacob Kellogg, John Cole, and many others, moved in, and in the second or third following years, a flood of immigration soon filled up the town, which every where presented small patches of clearing, rude huts, blind paths through the forest, destined to become roads, and from every side echoed the woodman's axe, that gradually prepared the way for cultivation.

The first deeds of land to actual settlers, were given Aug. 20, 1802, to George Houseman, Peter Doxtater, Francis McKie, Robert Myrick, and David Smith.

In 1802, a bridge was built near Smith's Mill, which has been swept off several times by the floods to which Sandy Creek is peculiarly liable, and their maintenance has cost the town considerable expense. A tax of $500, upon the town of Adams was authorized April 13, 1839, for the purpose of building a bridge across the north branch of Big Sandy Creek at the village. The first death in town, was that of Alexander Salisbury, who was drowned, March 21, 1801, while attempting to cross the creek above the dam, in a scow. The first marriage is said to have been his widow, to Daniel Ellis, June 8, 1802. In 1803, schools were begun at Smith's mills. The first innkeeper in town, was Abel Hart: the first merchant, Jesse Hale.

On the first occasion in which the services of a physician were needed, in the winter of 1801-2, C. Smith went on snow shoes to Western Oneida County 25 miles, through a forest, and returned the second day. This mode of communication was common from necessity at that period. Dr. Green is said to have been the first physician who settled in town. Dr. Eli Eastman, located at an early day and resided till his death, Sept. 6, 1844, aged 77. The early history of this town presents few incidents worthy of special notice. During the war a company of Silver Grays, or old men not liable to military duty, and mostly revolutionary patriots, was formed in town, and once or twice repaired to Sackets Harbor, but were never taken into the service of government. In 1828, the sickness which prevailed so extensively in the vicinity of the lake, extended to this town, and proved very severe. Great numbers were attacked and many died. The location of David Smith, gradually became the centre of business, and has become one of the largest and neatest villages in the county. Adams Village is located mostly on the north bank of North Sandy Creek, near the south line of the town, and contains a bank, a weekly newspaper, churches of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, and Episcopal orders, and for thrift, enterprise and progress, will compare favorably with most villages in the state. A visible impulse has been given to it by the rail road, which here receives and discharges a large amount of freight for this and the adjoining towns. The water power of the village is adequate for its ordinary wants, and the surrounding country is remarkably fertile and well cultivated. The village was incorporated under the general act, by the court of sessions, Nov. 11, 1851, and confirmed by a vote of 79 to 51, on the 19th of Dec. in the same year. The village plat includes 812 acres. An attempt had been made in 1823, to obtain an act of incorporation, but failed; the notice of application was signed by Elihu Morton, David Smith, Benjamin Wright, and John Burch. The trustees of the village have been: Feb. 1852, John H. Whipple, Samuel Bond, Calvin Skinner, Calvin R. Totman, and Wells Benton. March 1852, Jeremiah Grisworld, J. H. Whipple, C. Skinner, C. R. Totman, W. Benton, March 1853, Thomas P. Saunders, J. H. Whipple, Justice Eddy, Wm. Grenell, Julius K. Bartlet.

On the 27th of May, 1852, the village was divided into five wards, and a code of by laws adopted. A fire company was formed, May 24, 1853. About twenty-five years since, an effort was made towards establishing a female seminary here, of which Mr.

Thomas C. Chittenden was one of the most active promoters. A small academic building was subsequently erected by individual enterprise, and the aid of Universalists, who stipulated the right of holding meetings in it on the sabbath. The building has since been generally used for private schools, under the name of the Adams Seminary, and is now occupied as a session room by the Presbyterian Society. The project of founding an academy at this place, has lately come up for discussion.

The Adams Library was formed April 12, 1831, with Cyrus Eddy, Wm. Chittenden, Walter Webb, Forester Dexter, and Wells Benton, trustees. It has long since been dissolved.

A Rural Cemetery Association was formed under the general act, Jan. 17, 1848, of 33 citizens, who have laid out a neat and quiet lot, for the purpose, near the village.

Adams Centre, ten miles by rail road from Watertown, and 3½ from Adams Village, is situated on the upper lake ridge, which extends many miles southward and around into the Black River Valley. Its first growth as a village commenced in 1818, and since the location of the rail road it has increased rapidly, containing in August 1853, two Seventh Day Baptist, and one Baptist churches, 2 hotels, 4 stores, 2 carriage shops, 1 tin shop, the usual variety of mechanics, and about 40 dwellings. It was formerly known as Adams Five Corners. This place is 5 miles from Smithville, 4 from Rodman, 10 from Brownville, 11 from Dexter, and 8 from Sackets Harbor.

On the west line of the town, and partly in Henderson, is the village of Smithville, which derives its name from Jesse Smith, one of the most energetic and active business men, who have lived in the county, and who, from a small beginning, arose to affluence, and controlled a business, which, for extent and importance, has had few parallels in the country. He first settled in Rodman, when the town was new, and began life as a jobber, in clearing land and making potash. At Smithville, he engaged in milling, distilling, and merchandise, and gradually became interested in the lumber trade, and commerce of the lakes, to a great extent. He removed about fifteen years since to Newark, Ohio, where he now resides. Settlement was begun here in 1804, by Daniel Hardy. In 1805, Abel Myrick, Henry Knapp, Samuel and Andrew McNitt, and soon after others located in the vicinity. The first public house was opened by D. Hardy. Brooks Harrington was the first post master. The village contains now fifty families. It has a limited water power on Stony Creek, and is surrounded by a rich dairying country. The Sackets Harbor and Ellisburgh rail road passes near the village. The Smithville Library was formed Feb. 16, 1824 and dissolved in 1845, having collected 362 volumes. The first trustees were Abel L. Crandall, Henry Keith, Daniel Hall, Jr., John M. Bart, C. M. Adams, Roswell Bosworth, and Brooks Harrington. In Feb. 1827, a post office was established near the line of Watertown, and named Union Post Office; E. M. Howard first post master. It has since changed to Appling, in honor of the intrepid officer who took the chief command in the battle of Sandy Creek. Adams, Adams Centre, and North Adams are names of the other post offices in this town.

Religious Societies. The Presbyterian Church of Adams Village, was formed as a Congregational one, July 1804, by Rev. E. Lazell, of 4 males, and 2 females. In 1801, divine worship had been established on the sabbath, and in 1802, the first sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Woodward, missionary. Mr. John Taylor was hired a short time after, and in 1806, Rev. Phelps was hired to preach a few months. On the 31st of July 1811, Rev. Chauncey Cook was installed first pastor, in which year 25 were added. In 1815 the pastor left, and in the spring of 1816, Mr. Burt was hired 3 months. Rev. Mr. Porter was then employed 2 years, and in 1818 Rev. Enos Bliss, 6 months. In 1819, 40 were added, and in April Rev. Geo. W. Gale was employed. Oct. 25, 1819, he was installed by the St. Lawrence Presbytery, and in 1823 resigned. During Mr. Gale's ministry, a general revival of religion occurred, and in 1822, 63 united with this church, among whom was Charles G. Finney, who has since acquired a national celebrity as an evangelist, and is now president of Oberlin College. He had previously been a law student, under Judge B. Wright, and evinced an ability and sagacity, that would doubtless have made him eminent in that profession. His attention is said to have been turned to religious subjects, under the preaching of the Rev. Jedediah Burchard, who has attained a distinction not less general as a revival preacher, and of whose labors we shall have repeated occasions to mention in the following pages. The preaching of Mr. Finney has been remarkable for the boldness and originality of his logic, and the strength and clearness of his arguments, which seldom fail to secure the undivided attention of his audience, without those extraneous aidsto excitement, which, in the hands of some, have produced analagous results. His first ministerial labors were performed in Lorraine, and, previous to his commencing his career as a revival preacher, he was employed at Evans Mills and elsewhere, as a stated supply. This church became Presbyterian Jan. 29, 1821, and has since so remained. On the 25th of Jan. 1825, the Rev. John Sessions was installed pastor and remained till the spring of 1830. Rev. J. Hart was hired the same fall, and in 1831, a period of great religious interest occurred, and many were added to the church. David A. Clark was in 183 installed, and left the next year. Joseph Myers, Chas. Jones, Dexter Clary, J. H. Carr, R. Richard Kirk, and P. C. Headley have since been employed, the latter being the present pastor. The First Congregational Society of Adams was formed Aug. 28, 1805, with Jacob Kellogg, Eliphalet Adams, Elijah Fox, Daniel Comstock, Preserved Redway, and Simon Meacham, trustees. A church, 30 by 40 feet, was built soon after the war, and opened 1818; it was afterward used by the Methodists, until burned about a year since. In 1825 the present church was commenced, and dedicated in 1827; cost $7000. The total number who have united with this church is about 600.

A Baptist church was formed at the house of David Grommon, in September, 1802, and on the 13th of October, 1805, the Lord's Supper was first administered. In June, 1806, Elder Timothy Heath was employed, and meetings were for some time held at his house and barn; and on the 14th of December, 1824, a society was formed, with Daniel Talcott, Jacob Heath, and Asa Lewis, trustees. In the same year a church was built one mile from Adams Centre, on the state road, and in 1838, their present church was erected at a cost of about $3,000. Timothy Heath, Joshua Freeman, Charles Clark, Thomas Bright, and J. J. Teeple, have been successively employed as pastors of this church. In 1853, a portion of the members erected a meeting house at Adams Centre, and have organized a separate society. On the 30th of March, 1837, a Baptist church and society were formed at Adams village, with Jesse Wright, Hannibal Miller, and Spencer Woodward, trustees; but no church was built until 1847, when the present one was erected at a cost of $3,500, and dedicated in January, 1848; the Rev. Charles Clark, ——— Hartson, and M. C. Manning, have been employed as ministers by this church.

The First Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Adams, was formed October 24, 1828; the first trustees being Laban Ross, Philip Younge, David Wright, Zephania Jacker, Chester McKee, Daniel Dikeman, and John Adams. For some time the Methodists occupied the edifice first erected by the Presbyterians, but this being burned, they, in the summer of 1853, erected in Adams village a house 44 by 80 feet, at a cost of about $6000, including the site. In point of elegance and taste this edifice will compare favorably with any of the class in the county. A parsonage was built adjoining, the same season. The society had been reorganized May 14, 1838.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church and Society in the village of Smithville was formed October 31, 1844, with Horace Ivory, John Shanley, John D. Gillett, James Morton, and John Briley, trustees. A small church was built about 1845.

In 1817, one or two families of Seventh Day Baptists, removed from Berlin, N. Y., to Adams Centre, and soon held meetings. On the 5th of June 1822, Wm. B. Maxson, and David Coon, sent for the purpose from Brookfield, N. Y., ordained Wm. Green, and June 9, formed a church of 10 males and 11 females. January 3, 1836 a society was formed, with Edward Whitford, Elihu Cleveland, Joseph S. Maxson, Asa L. Maxson, Benjamin Maxson, Charles Greene, Joseph Greene, Jr., Job Spencer, and S. Burdick trustees, who erected a church at Adams Centre, soon after. This body belongs to the Central Seventh Day Baptist Association of New York. The clergy have been, Wm. Greene, Eli S. Bailey, Giles M. Langworthy, Joel Greene, Alexander Campbell, and James Summerbell; and by their report of 1853, the church contained 196 members. During the ministry of Mr. Campbell, the church was divided.

In March, 1852, seventeen members who had withdrawn and had been excommunicated from the latter, were formed by Rev. Alexander Campbell into the Independent Seventh Day Baptist Church of Adams, who, the same year, built at a cost of $1,300, a church in the south part of Adams Centre Village, which was dedicated December 15, 1852. The Evangelical Seventh Day Baptist Society was formed January 3, 1853, with H. Bunce, Job Spencer, and Joel Saunders, trustees. Present number of church (August 1853), eighty-two. The Second Congregational Church of North Adams was formed by Rev. D. Spear, at the house of Roger Reed, November 1, 1809, of five males and eight females; and their first pastor was Edward W. Rossiter, who was installed November 11, 1818, and has been followed by Abel L. Crandall, D. Spear, Austin Putnam, P. Cook, and Lewis M. Shepard; the most of whom preached alternately here and at Smithville. The latter was installed July 19, 1848, and remained till September 5, 1850, since which there has been no minister. The Society of this church was formed at the house of Asher Robbins, December 5, 1816, of which John Barnard, Asher Robbins, and Ruel Parsons, were trustees. January 28, 1817, Simon Read, Daniel Hall, Jr., and Amos Bosworth, were added to trustees.

The centre of the society being found to be a mile west of North Adams, a church was built in 1818, and in August, 1823, the society was divided; the Smithville Church leaving the meeting house with the Adams portion, who removed it to North Adams, its present place. Upon removing and repairing their church, a new society was formed, November 19, 1839, with Heman Colton, Elisha Reed, and Ephraim Reed trustees.

Emanuel Church (Episcopal), in the town of Adams, was legally formed February 18, 1849, the Rev. J. M. Bartlett being rector. Henry B. Whipple, and Wm. Morton Johnson were John Gregory, administrator of her estate. Richard Webb, Jr., of Stamford, left wife Margery and children Richard, Joseph, Joshua, Samuel, Caleb, Sarah and Jonathan. The youngest was born April 12, 1675.

HOME-LOT X.

Matthew Marvin, Sr., of Home-lot No. x, was one of the most distinguished of the Norwalk fathers. He was born in England in 1600, and died in Norwalk in 1680. With his wife Elizabeth and five children, Matthew, Jr., Elizabeth, Maria, Sarah and Hannah, he embarked in 1635 for the New World, and after a residence in Main Street, Hartford, where were born Abigail, Samuel and Rachel, he came, accompanied by several of his children, to Norwalk. Here he was assigned the New England home-lot of honor, the lot viz., nearest to the sanctuary, (H. M. Prowitt 1896). He was "assistant" magistrate and an influential citizen. His daughters Elizabeth, Maria and Sarah had elsewhere married, and did not, consequently, accompany their parents hither. Elizabeth had married Dr. John Olmsted of Hartford,[1] Maria, Richard Bushnell of Saybrook,[2] and Sarah, William Goodrich[3] of Wethersfield, and were non-Norwalk located. Matthew, Jr., the oldest child, had set out to him the home-lot that adjoined his father's on the rear, and extended south to the present Fort Point Street. The children of Matthew, Sr. became at once identified with the new settlement. Hannah, who was an infant of twelve months when her father and mother stepped from Capt. Lea's ship "Increase" upon American soil, and who was a miss of about sixteen when the family reached Norwalk, married Thomas, son of Richard Seymour. As every one of the early Seymours, except Thomas, left the new Norwalk colony, Hannah Marvin, wife of Thomas Seymour, became ancestress of the town's Seymour constituency. Abigail, sister of Hannah Marvin, married in Norwalk, on the first day of June, 1657, the supposed Huguenot, John Bouton, and was an American progenitress of that numerous and notable family. Rachel, youngest of Matthew Marvin, Sr's. children, and who was about three years old when the Marvins located in Norwalk, grew to marry Samuel Smith of Norwalk. These were all of Matthew, Sr's. girls, and they constituted a "host". Of the two boys, Matthew, Jr. and Samuel, the second probably filled a

[1] Dr. John Olmsted is supposed to have been own brother to Richard Olmsted, the Norwalk settler. Dr Olmsted was a Hartford settler, but he removed to Norwich where he died. His wife, Elizabeth Marvin, survived him, and at death left two thousand Norwich acres to her two Norwalk nephews, Lieuts. James and John Olmsted, the founders of so many of this town's families to-day.

[2] Maria Marvin was twice married. On Oct. 11, 1644, she married Richard Bushnell, and had four children. She was nineteen years old at her first marriage. In 1660, she married, second, Deacon Thomas Adgate of Saybrook. She survived her last husband five years and died at the age of eighty-four.

[3] From this union sprang a goodly portion of the large Goodrich family. Sarah Marvin was married just before her father came to Norwalk. Her son, David$^{\text{1st}}$, born May 4, 1667, married Hannah Wright. Their son, David$^{\text{2d}}$, born Dec. 8, 1694, married Hepzibah Boardman, who had Elizur, born Oct. 18, 1734, who married Katharine Chauncey, who had Samuel, born Jan. 12, 1763, who married Elizabeth Ely, and had Samuel G., born August 19, 1790, who was the noted PETER PARLEY.

child's grave, but the family did not permit him to altogether die, and the old house,[1] still standing, (the late Daniel Fitch house in East Norwalk) preserves the child's scriptural and excellent name. Little Samuel's brother, Matthew, Jr., lives all over Norwalk to-day. Matthew Marvin, Sr., married, late in life, Alice Kellogg. All his children, however, were by Elizabeth, his first and English wife. His homestead went to his namesake grandson, Matthew 3d., son of Matthew 2d., which Matthew 3d. married Rhoda, daughter of Mark and Elizabeth (Stanley) St. John. Of the father of Matthew 2d., viz., Matthew Marvin, Sr., the founder of the Norwalk Marvin house, it may safely be affirmed that he was one of the colonial "Roll of Honor" men; men concerning whom it has been justly said:

> "They had no model, but they left us one;
> On their strong lines we base our social health;
> The man, the home, the town, the commonwealth."

A NORWALK-MARVIN DESCENT.

Samuel Marvin 2d., son of Matthew 2d., and grandson of Matthew Marvin, Sr., who was the "Assistant Magistrate" settler, had a son Matthew who was born in the autumn of 1702-3. At about the age of thirty said Matthew married Elizabeth Clark of the old town of Ripton. He was not destined to long life and on Dec. 3, 1744-5 drew his will. He will-named five sons, and intimates a posthumous birth. This birth occurred in the family shortly after the father's decease, and the name of Ichabod was given to the child. To Matthew and Elizabeth Marvin was born Jan. 29, 1737, a boy who was to fill out seventy years of human life and to be a character in his day. When this lad, Osias, had reached twenty-four years of age he sought a bride in the old Joseph Lockwood family of "Pudding Lane" (now Main Street) and on Nov. 26, 1761, Osias and Sarah were married. Deducting seven years of palsy on the part of Ozias (Capt.), there was still left nearly forty years, after reaching majority, of active service, and although his father had on Dec. 3, 1744 bequeathed his "silver headed sword" to his (Ozias) brother Matthew (probably for his name) yet was Ozias, himself an ardent patriot in Revolutionary days. With his Norwalk wife, Sarah, who overlived him twenty-one years, he resided on the site of the present John Marvin house on the Connecticut turnpike, two or three-quarter miles west of the Westport carriage bridge. In the days of "76" he there kept a hotel. The house at that day was just at the southwest turn of the road towards Norwalk (the shortened cut through Peat

[1] Matthew Marvin 2d., son of Matthew 1st. and brother of the young Samuel 1st. who met an early death, named his second son for this departed brother. This son Samuel 2d. was, in 1718, a member of the Connecticut Court. He had a son, Samuel 3d., who married, Nov. 25, 1735, Deborah Clark. These had a daughter, Rebecca, born March 19, 1738-9, who married Daniel, son of Samuel and Susannah Fitch, brother and sister-in-law of Gov. Thomas Fitch. Daniel and Rebecca (Marvin) Fitch were the parents of the three brothers, Samuel M., Henry and Jonathan Fitch. The late Daniel Fitch (father of the 1896 Daniel Warren Fitch) lived upon his Marvin ancestors property, and the Marvin association of the venerable still remaining building is a worthy one. The house occupies a site neighbor to the old Thos. Barnum home.

Swamp was not then built) and it was a convenient spot for an inn. Washington on one of his eastern trips called at the house and after partaking of refreshment one of the landlord's daughters, Esther (afterward Mrs. Isaac Church) came into the apartment. The soldier advanced to warmly greet the little lady, but his uniform or military appearance or something of the sort seemed to frighten her and she shrank back from the general. "Tut tut, my little miss," exclaimed the future President, humorously adding that she might live to be sorry for her shyness.

Capt. Ozias built for his son Joseph L., born on the last day of the year 1772, and named for the boy's maternal grandparent, the house standing in 1896, a litle south of the old Capt. Ozias home and occupied to-day by George Nash. Here was born on Nov. 20, 1804, to Joseph L.[1] and Clarissa Meeker Marvin, one of Norwalk's good and just men, the late William Marvin of East Norwalk. When William, son of Joseph L. Marvin was thirty-one years of age, he left Westport and established himself upon his original ten acres on the east Side of Charles Creek, "Down Town." The day that he drove with his wife and one child, Josiah R., to his new home, in which he was to prove a man of industry and unswerving integrity, was the date of the great fire in December 1835, in New York city. He married, 1832, Amanda, daughter of Josiah and Clara (Mott) Raymond and had:

Josiah Raymond; William E.

Josiah Raymond, son of William and Amanda Marvin, married, Sept. 5, 1861, Mary Matilda, daughter of James and Matilda (Keeler) Wallace, and had:

Clara Elizabeth, born Nov. 20, 1862;
James Wallace, born Sept. 6, 1865;
William Raymond, born Jan. 6, 1870; died Aug. 23, 1870.

William E., son of William and Amanda Marvin, married, Dec. 27, 1882, Orie Anna Louisa, daughter of Albert J. and Julia M. (Jones) Steele, and had:

Mary Louise, born May 7, 1887;
Orie Anna, born May 5, 1890.

[1] Those who recall the fourth church built by the Norwalk First Congregational Society, which edifice stood on the lower portion of the Norwalk Green, and was taken down in about 1849, may remember the vehicle that, during the hours of morning and afternoon service, occupied the green sward immediately in the rear of the structure and between the church and the roadway. This was Joseph Lockwood Marvin's conveyance. Hither, from his Saugatuck home, he came, on Sunday, to worship. Between the two services there was a noon intermission of one hour in winter, and five quarter hours in summer. This recess afforded opportunity for the members of the congregation to greet each other. The thoughtfulness of Mr. Marvin was evidenced by the bunch of hay, brought from home, and placed in the spot referred to, for beast use.

On the north-west corner of this church stood an allighting-block of native granite. Miss Phœbe Comstock of Silver Mine, accompanied by her slave, Onesimus, would, as did others, drive up to this stone and dismount preparatory to sanctuary-entrance. "Onesimus" sat in "Miss Phœbe's" corner pew and was, in the last years of his long life, a patriarch picture. The view from the Phœbe Comstock homesite is to-day commanding.

HOME-LOT XXXI.

MATTHEW MARVIN, Jr.

As the proprietor of this home-lot has, necessarily as well as naturally, name-connection with his father, Matthew Marvin$^{1st.}$, of home-lot x, reference is made to this latter home-lot description on page 150. From Matthew Marvin, Jr., of the home-lot under treatment directly descend the 1896 "Marvin Brothers" of East Norwalk. Samuel Marvin$^{1st.}$, (Representative to General Court) son of Matthew Marvin$^{2d.}$ or Jr., had a son Matthew, born 1702. This son married Elizabeth Clark (see pages 151-2-3), and had Ozias, born Jan. 29, 1737, who married Nov. 26, 1761, Sarah, daughter of Joseph Lockwood. To Capt. Ozias and Sarah Marvin was born, Dec. 11, 1772, a son (named for his grandfather), Joseph Lockwood Marvin, who was the grandfather of the present brothers J. R. and W. E. Marvin, whose line runs thus :

Gen. I.—Hon. Matthew Marvin$^{1st.}$.
" II.—Matthew$^{2d.}$ and Mary Marvin.
" III.—Samuel and Hannah (Platt) Marvin.
" IV.—Matthew and Elizabeth (Clark) Marvin.
" V.—Ozias and Sarah (Lockwood) Marvin.
" VI.—Joseph L. and Clarissa (Meeker) Marvin.
" VII.—William and Amanda (Raymond) Marvin.
" VIII.—Josiah R. and William E. Marvin.

(See pages 151 and 152).

HOME-LOT XXXII.

DANIEL KELLOGG.

This settler has Norwalk registry in 1655. He came, it is probable, either at or about the time of the arrival of the other settlers, and seems to have been a splendid specimen of physical development (see note page 273). He had been in Norwalk a few years when he married, about 1661, Bridget, sister of John Bouton$^{1st.}$ of Norwalk. His liam, was son of Enos, who was son of Nathan$^{1st.}$, who was son of Henry, who was son of Richard and Elizabeth (De Bois) Lounsbury, the settlers. Monmouth Lounsbury$^{2d.}$ (son of Monmouth$^{1st.}$), and his sister Elizabeth (Mrs. Phineas Waterbury) were gr.-nephew and niece of Henry, from whom Nathan Lounsbury$^{2d.}$ more immediately sprang. Henry Lounsbury, who married Mercy, born October 30, 1690, daughter of John and Hannah (Mead) Scofield, was also the more immediate Lounsbury foreparent of the Broadway, N. Y., Fitch Brothers, mentioned in the text.

The Lounsbury family is claimed to be of Scotch origin. Richard, the father, appeared first in that portion of the New York province near to which the Norwalk Beldens, in after years, planted themselves. He removed to Rye as early as 1672, where he owned a no mean slice of the territory (Rye was at one time a part of Fairfield County, Conn.,) which was a belonging of the Sachem Ponus, of the Ponus Wekuwuhm, Canaan Parish, and which was probably named for that chieftan, "Peningoe Neck". He then went to Stamford, where his descendants have registration.

"Louns" or Lounds is reputed to signify seclusion, shelter, serenity, and its suffix "bury", a table-elevation or height-level.

JOHN GRUMMAN I is first noted in Fairfield, Connecticut in 1653/4 when "he entered land and dwelling house purchased from Richard Lattin, which was sometime Timothy Ford's."

Main source of data, in addition to the GRUMAN Family Bible in possession of Mrs. W. V. McKie in 1948, is "The Ancient Historical Records of Norwalk, Connecticut" by Edwin Hall (1847); "History and Genealogy of the Families of Old Fairfield" by D. L. Jacobus (1930); "The History of Fairfield, Fairfield County, Connecticut 1639-1818" by Mrs. E. H. Schenck; and "Norwalk" by Rev. Charles M. Selleck (1896).

GRUMMOND Mrs. Emily T. (Hod Grummond, of Bingha ton, descends from the Ho land family of Race, and the English family Hodge. The first Race to appear in Centr New York was Derrick, son of Nicholas Ra born June 24, 1770, died June 17, 1857. He said to have come to the town of Gree Chenango county, from Egremont, Massac setts, in 1794. The name Race is given Chamber's "Early Germans of New Jersey," as having been originally spelled Rees, but pronounced Race. Jacob Race is mentioned as early as 1656, and the presumption is strong that the family is from Holland and a part of the earliest Dutch emigration. All biographers of the Rees family claim they were of Welsh ancestry. Many of the name served in the revolution from New York, both as Rees and Race, and other varied forms of spelling.

(I) Derrick Race was a surveyor, and, on coming to New York state, settled in Greene, Chenango county, on a farm two miles from the village of Greene, later owned and occupied by his son, Derrick (2), known as the Race farm, where he died. He was a very religious man and one of the active, influential members of the Episcopal church. He married Hannah Smith, born July 2, 1770, died January 7, 1861. Children: 1. Nicholas, died April 24, 1873, aged seventy-nine years. 2. William B., married a Miss Tillotson, and at the age of eighty-four years was living in the town of Oxford, Chenango county. 3. Lucretia, married Erastus Tremaine. 4. Abigail, married William Race. 5. George T., married Hannah Bates, and died June 2, 1850, aged forty-nine years. 6. Derrick (2), married Catherine Sholes, and had the homestead farm. 7. Samuel S., of further mention. 8. Christina, married Erastus Brown. 9. Charles T., married Melissa Wheeler. 10. Stephen A., married Lucy Ann Gray.

(II) Samuel Smith, fifth son of Derrick and Hannah (Smith) Race, was born on the Race homestead, in Greene, Chenango county, New York, in 1804, died July 31, 1877. He followed the occupation of a farmer all his active years, and was a member of the Baptist church. He married, about 1828, Urana Vose, born 1806, daughter of Henry and Urana (Barlow) Vose. Henry Vose was a sea captain, and, during the revolution, his vessel carried arms and supplies for the continental troops. Children: 1. Emily T., born October [illegible], 1830, died 1856; married Hial Hodge. 2. Henry Derrick, born November 24, 1832; married Ann Maria Moore. 3. Ann Eliza, of further mention. 4. Charlotte Lucretia, born June [illegible], 1840. 5. Ethan Clark, born November 17, [illegible]; married Martha Sholes; child, Ernest. 6. Harriet Elizabeth, born May 17, 1845; married Peter Wheeler; child, Emily.

(III) Ann Eliza, daughter of Samuel Smith and Urana (Vose) Race, was born October 8, 1835, died April 16, 1911. She married Hial Hodge (second wife). Children: 1. Emily T., of further mention. 2. Hial Cecelia, married William Colan Willis; she died April 13, 1908.

(IV) Emily T., daughter of Hial and Ann Eliza (Race) Hodge, was born in Greene, Chenango county, New York. She married Fred W., son of Nathaniel and Harriet (Barrows) Grummond. He was born September 14, 1854, at Kattleville, town of Chenango, Broome county, New York; died at Binghamton, New York, April 27, 1902. When but five years of age, upon the death of his mother, he was sent to live with his grandparents, at McDonough, Chenango county, where he remained until 1863, when he removed to Binghamton and secured his education in the public schools. Of industrious and exemplary habits he early laid the foundation, broad and deep, upon which he built a model and successful career in business, social and masonic life. He began his business life as traveling salesman for Charles Butler, cigar and tobacco manufacturer, covering the territory known as southern New York and northern Pennsylvania, at a time when the horse and wagon was the method of travel. So successful was he in this enterprise that the then large firm of Westcott & Kent eagerly received his services, and he enjoyed the distinction of being the first trading salesman to leave Binghamton with cigars for the wholesale trade. Upon the dissolution of that firm he remained with the junior partner until he was taken in as a member of the firm of Westcott, Son & Company. He remained with them until 1886, when, in company with John Hull Jr. and Charles A. Hull, he formed the copartnership of Hull, Grummond & Company, with whom he continued until his death.

He received the degree of Master Mason in Otseningo Lodge, No. 435, November 21, 1889, at the city of Binghamton, New York, and, September 9, 1890, was made a Royal Arch Mason in Binghamton, Chapter No. 139. At Ithaca, New York, he was made a Royal and Select Master, April 29, 1892, in Ithaca Council, No. 21. On September 30, 1890, Malte Commandery, No. 21, of the city of Binghamton, New York, made him a Knight Templar. He received the degrees in the Scottish Rite, February 20, 1891, in Otseningo Bodies Valley, of Binghamton, New York, and later had conferred upon him the thirty-third degree, the highest in the gift of the order. * WILLIAM REYNOLDS, SR., mentioned in the note on page 628.

† DAVID MARVIN was born about 1710 at Norwalk, Fairfield County, Connecticut, the son of John Marvin. Matthew Marvin, Sr., was one of the earliest settlers at Hartford, Connecticut, where he was an original proprietor in 1635. His eldest son was Matthew, Jr., born about 1627, who married in Hartford and removed to Norwalk, where he died in 1712. John Marvin, born September 2, 1678, third son of Matthew, Jr, was a Representative in the General Assembly of Connecticut in 1734 and 1738. In 1752 he removed from Norwalk to Sharon, Connecticut, where he died February 9, 1774. He was twice married —(1st) to Mary Beers of Fairfield, and (2d) to Rachel, daughter of Matthias St. John—and had seven children by each wife. David, mentioned above, was one of these children.

David Marvin was married about 1733, and settled in New Canaan (an adjoining town to Norwalk), Fairfield County, Connecticut. A number of years later he removed with his wife and children to Goshen, Orange County, New York. He was one of the body of New Englanders who in 1762 and '63 attempted to establish a settlement at Mill Creek (see page 404, Vol. I), and was there at the time of the massacre in October, 1763. Prior to 1762 he had gained the title of "Captain"—by service in the militia of either Connecticut or New York. Accompanied by his sons Uriah and Samuel he returned to Wyoming with the body of settlers led by Major Durkee in the Spring of 1769, and they continued here during the Summer of that year. (See pages 498 and 510.) Captain Marvin and his sons Uriah and Matthew were members of the expedition commanded by Captain Butler which in July, 1771, marched to Wilkes-Barré and besieged and captured Fort Wyoming (see pages 691 and 694); and the original receipts of David and Uriah Marvin, given for the "bounty' of five dollars (see page 710) paid to each of them for their services on that occasion, are now in the possession of The Wyoming Historical and Geological Society. Captain Marvin settled in Plymouth Township, where he died in 1778, prior to June. He was the father of the following-named children:

(i) Matthew Marvin, who died prior to April 8, 1782, when Timothy Hopkins of Plymouth was appointed administrator of his estate.

(ii) David Marvin. He was baptized at Ridgefield, Fairfield County, Connecticut, August 5, 1739. He was married to Sarah ——. He was a member of the 24th Regiment, Connecticut Militia, and his name appears in the list of the men of that regiment in service under Colonel Butler at Wyoming in the Autumn of 1778. (See Chapter XVI.) David Marvin died before April, 1782, being survived by his wife and the following-named children: David, Nathan (who in 1800 was living in Orange County, New York) and Isaiah (who died prior to March, 1801, leaving a son Ira, a youth under age).

(iii) Isaiah Marvin. He was baptized at Ridgefield, Fairfield County, Connecticut, May 29, 1737. He left Wyoming after the battle of July 3, 1778, and never returned to the valley again. He was dead in 1801.

(iv) Sarah Marvin, who became the wife of Amariah Cleveland, and, with her husband, removed from Wyoming prior to July, 1778.

(v) Hannah Marvin. She was living in 1790, unmarried.

(vi) Ruah Marvin. She was baptized at Ridgefield, Connecticut, June 4, 1738. She became the wife of —— Allison, or Ellison, and in 1800 was living at Goshen, New York.

(vii) Mary Marvin. She was baptized at New Canaan, Connecticut, November 16, 1735, and was, undoubtedly, the eldest child of Captain Marvin. She was living in 1790, unmarried.

(viii) Samuel Marvin. He settled in Plymouth Township, and, according to testimony produced before the Compromise Commissioners (see page 25, Vol. I), left Wyoming "immediately after the Indian battle [July 3, 1778] and returned in about three years, when he took out letters of administration on the estate of his father." In 1800-'02 Samuel Marvin was living in Northmoreland, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

(ix) Esther Marvin. She was married (1st) about 1770 to —— Taylor, to whom she bore one child—Ebenezer Taylor (born about 1773). After the death of her husband Mrs. Esther (Marvin) Taylor became the wife of Ephraim McKay, or McCoy, of Plymouth, to whom she bore a daughter, Sarah, who, prior to March, 1797, became the wife of James Marvin. Mrs. Esther (Marvin) McKay died before 1801. Ephraim McCoy was a member of the 24th Regiment, Connecticut Militia, and his name appears in the muster-roll of the detachment commanded by Colonel Butler at Wyoming in the Autumn of 1778. (See Chapter XVI.) He was wounded while in the military service, and became a pensioner. He was one of the earliest settlers within the bounds of the present township of Dallas, and several references are made to him in the history of Dallas printed in the "Proceedings and Collections of The Wyoming Historical and Geological Society," VI: 146, &c.

(x) Uriah Marvin, born in Connecticut about 1742, and married at Plymouth, Pennsylvania, in 1774 to Phebe (born February 18, 1759), daughter of James and Phebe (Harrison) Nesbitt of Plymouth. Uriah Marvin died at Wilkes-Barré in 1779. For further references to him and his family see "The Harvey Book," page 296, et seq.

(xi) Daniel Marvin, who died prior to January, 1794, leaving several children.

in like manner for the lower end of Plymouth, and Seth Marvin* for the township of Wilks Barre; Capt. Obad^{h} Gore & Mr. Elisha Swift for the township of Kingstown & the upper end of Plymouth. Mr. Anderson Dana to warn the guard in the lower district in Wilks Barre, and Mr. Daniel Gore in the Upper District.

"Voted, That Kingstown & the upper end of Plymouth keep the guard at the fort in Wilks Barre two days, and Wilks Barre keep it three, and so continue until otherwise ordered.

"Voted, That there be a ferry-boat kept on both sides of the river against the fort in Wilks Barre; and that Mr. Partial Terry be appt^{d} to keep that on the west side of the River, & that the fare be stated at 3 pence per man & horse, and 1½d. for a single man, in the Summer season; and 4d. for man & horse in the Winter season, and 2d. for a single man; and that the ferry-man be obliged to carry the guard across on free cost, and the people across on Sunday to meeting on free cost. Voted that Mr. Thomas Robinson is appt^{d} in like manner to keep the ferry on the East side of the River."

The General Assembly of Connecticut met at Hartford May 12, 1773, for the Spring session. On the opening day Capt. Timothy Smith and Obadiah Gore, Jr., were in attendance to present—in pursuance of the instructions of the Wyoming settlers—the memorial mentioned on page 760, ante. Col. Elizur Talcott and Samuel Gray, Esq., were also present to represent The Susquehanna Company, and they presented a petition† in which the history of the Company and its efforts to settle the Wyoming lands was concisely set forth. The petition concluded with a prayer for the erection of the Wyoming region into a county of the Colony of Connecticut. One paragraph of this petition reads as follows:

"In the year 1769 said Company sent out a part of their number to settle. * * Many of them were, under pretence of authority from the Province of Pennsylvania, arrested, and their horses, cattle and other property taken from them to the amount of many hundred pounds, and their persons carried to Easton in said Province and there closely imprison'd and fetter'd with heavy iron fetters, in an inhuman manner, and fed with only bread and water till almost famish'd with hunger; and, upon the most illegal and unfair pretended trial, convicted of a pretended riot for attempting to settle their own lands; * * and were also fined, and large sums extorted from them, which they were obliged to pay before they could procure their inlargement and discharge from said gaol."

The Assembly was in session for a week or more, but, apparently, it took no action with respect to either the memorial or the petition abovementioned. In the meantime Timothy Smith had had printed in proper form a petition to the Assembly, asking that action might be taken in regard to the jurisdiction, title, etc., of the Susquehanna Purchase. Numerous copies of this petition he distributed in various parts of Connecticut among the shareholders of The Susquehanna Company and their friends, to be signed by them and forwarded to the Assembly. He busied himself chiefly in this manner until June 2d, when he returned to Hartford to be present at the important meeting of The Susquehanna Company begun there on that day. He, Obadiah Gore, Jr., Capt. Zebulon Butler, Capt. Caleb Bates and others from Wyoming were present; Maj. John Durkee was there from Norwich, while a large number of the members of the Company from various other localities attended the meeting—which continued over two or three days.

*SETH MARVIN was born in Lyme, New London County, Connecticut, July 12, 1733, eldest child of Capt. Matthew and Mary (Beckwith) Marvin. Capt. Matthew Marvin (who kept a tavern in Lyme) was a son of "Deacon" Samuel Marvin, who was the fourth child of Lieut. Reinold and Sarah (Clark) Marvin of Lyme. Both Capt. Matthew Marvin and his wife died of small-pox at Lyme on Christmas-day, 1760. Seth Marvin was Constable of the town of Lyme in 1759. He came to Wyoming in the Spring of 1772, but in the Autumn returned to Lyme. About March 1, 1773, he came again to Wyoming, bearing from Samuel Mather, Jr., of Lyme, to Capt. Zebulon Butler, a letter reading in part as follows: "Uncle Seth has served in ye character of Chief Judge [in the Court held by the Justices of the Peace of the town of Lyme] this winter to very good acceptance, & think you would do well to employ him that way among you." Seth Marvin continued in Wyoming Valley for a number of years, and his name is mentioned several times hereinafter.

†The original is now "No. 27" in the collection of documents in the State Library at Hartford, as described in paragraph "(3)", page 29, Vol. I.

"Voted, That Kingstown & the upper end of Plymouth keep the guard at the fort in Wilkes Barre two days, and Wilkes Barre keep it three, and so continue until otherwise ordered.

"Voted, That there be a ferry-boat kept on both sides of the River against the fort in Wilkes Barre; and that Mr. Hurlbut [illegible] be appointed to keep that on the west side of the River; & that the ferry be stated at 1 penny per man & horse, and [illegible] for a single man, in the summer season; and [illegible] for man & horse in the Winter season, and [illegible] for a single man; and that the ferryman be obliged to carry the guard across on free cost, and the people across on Sundays to meeting on free cost. Voted, That Mr. Thomas Robinson be appointed in like manner to keep the ferry on the East side of the River."

The General Assembly of Conn. then met at Hartford May 12, 1770, for the spring session. On the opening day Capt. Timothy Smith and Obadiah Gore, Jr., were in attendance to present—in pursuance of the instructions of the Wyoming settlers—the memorial mentioned on page 499, ante. Col. Elizur Talcott and Samuel Gray, Esq., were also present to represent The Susquehanna Company, and they presented a petition in which the history of the Company and its efforts to settle the Wyoming lands was concisely set forth. The petition concluded with a prayer for the erection of the Wyoming region into a county of the Colony of Connecticut. One paragraph of this petition reads as follows:

"In the year 1769 said Company sent out a part of their number to settle. [illegible] Many of them were, under pretence of authority from the Province of Pennsylvania, arrested, and their houses, cattle and other property taken from them to the amount of many hundred pounds, and their persons carried to [illegible] gaol and there closely imprisoned [illegible] with heavy iron fetters, in an inhuman manner, and fed with bare bread and water till almost famish'd with hunger; and upon the most illegal and unjust pretences [illegible] convicted of a pretended riot for attempting to settle their own lands, * * * and were also fined, and large sums extorted from them, which they were obliged to pay before they could procure their enlargement and discharge from said gaol."

The Assembly was in session for a week or more, but, apparently, it took no action with respect to either the memorial or the petition abovementioned. In the meantime Timothy Smith had had printed in proper form a petition to the Assembly, asking that action might be taken in regard to the jurisdiction, title, etc., of the Susquehanna Purchase. Numerous copies of this petition he distributed in various parts of Connecticut among the shareholders of The Susquehanna Company and their friends, to be signed by them and forwarded to the Assembly. Dear Mrs Reed:

Being the third Town Historian in the past year, your letter has been unanswered because of sickness and death.

I have checked the county deeds and property records, the Ontario County Historian, the cemetery records of all Phelps cemeteries, and the Phelps Historical Society records and I could not come up with the name of Grummond, Gummond.

Sorry I cant be of more help.

Dear Helen,

I sent to Yates Pub. for the Grummon name and they sent me your sheet.

My g-Grandfather was A. Judson Grummon born 13-Apr-1839 in Chautauqua, N.Y. His parents were Geo. and (A)manda Davis. In the 1860 Ill Census, Geo and Amanda are Grummond". Judson married Frances A. Town in Lee Co, Ill. in 1866, moved to Nebr in 1872 (approx)

Grummon is such an un-common name, but other then Judson I have not located any family.

Thank you for any help you may be able to pass on to me.

Sincerely
Madeline Spurlock

Dear: Helen Read,

I've got your name out of the genalogical newsletters at the downtown library. You were looking for any information on Grummon, Grommond's. families New York, Michigan and Ohio. My great grandmother was a Grommon from Oswego County, New York. Her father was a David Grommon (Gorman) and mother Lydia Brumley. both from New York. I got that information from her death certificate. Her name is Ellen Josephine (Grommon) Herbster. Her husband John George gave the information for the death certificate.

ept. 86 Vol.5

I have different last names on records I have found. Gorman - death certificate hers

Grommond - her daughter's death certificate. Effie

Grommon - her son's marriage Record George

↳ and daughter's marriage Record Hazel

she married a John George Herbster ca. 1876.

born ca. 1861 in Oswego County, New York.

died: July 2, 1916 Toledo, Ohio buried: Collingwood Cemetery.

children:	Effie Marie Daoust	b July 2, 1878	d. Jan. 1, 1941
	George H. Herbster	Jan. 16, 1881	d. July 1, 1947
	Arthur E. Herbster		d. July 7, 1961
	Grace Huff		d. Aug. 26, 1954

Hazel Crampton Dec. 2, 1892 d. Nov. 9, 1977
Hazel was my grandmother.

I have nothing else on her father and mother. I need to go to New York to look up their information.

Her Husband John George Herbster was born: March 4, 1849 in Baden, Baden Germany. died March 21, 1933 Toledo Ohio buried Collingwood Cemetery next to his wife Ellen. he was a Private in 8th US calvary Indian Wars in 1870 - 1875.

If you know of these Grommon's please write and send me your information on them. I would appreciate it. I hope I helped you. If you would like any more information from my grandmother Hazel to me. I would gladly tell you about it.

Sincerely
Jennifer L. Snoderly

[*] Called by one informant, dau. of Samuel and Rebecca (Betts) Grumman, but Betts Gen., 40, names no such dau.

34 JARED,^{5} son of Josiah^4 and Elizabeth (DeForest) Marvin, born after 1737, in Norwalk, Ct.; died probably in Chazy, Clinton co., N. Y.; married 1 Dec., 1768, Hannah Dunning, of Weston, Ct. He removed to Ballston, Saratoga co., N. Y., not very long after his marriage, and was living there 26 Nov., 1788, when he sold land in Norwalk, which he had received from his father's estate. He served in the Albany co. militia during the Revolution, under Col. John McCrew.

Children, born in Norwalk:

i. A daughter,^{6} name illegible on the Church rec., appears to have been bap. 1770.

80. ii. Michael, b. 13 Aug., 1776.

There were probably others.

35 WILLIAM,^{5} son of Josiah^4 and Sarah (Bennett) Marvin, bap. 24 March, 1740/1, in Wilton parish, Norwalk, Ct.; died 4 March, 1810, in Malta, Saratoga co., N. Y.; married 10 Nov., 1767, Susannah, daughter of Dennis and Susannah Wright, born 20 April (N. S.), 1746, in Eaton's Neck, Suffolk co., N. Y.; died 10 Dec., 1825, in Malta. 11 April, 1768, he sold land in Norwalk, and in the deed is called of Norwalk; he must have removed soon afterward to Dutchess co., N. Y.

Children, all but the eldest born in Malta:

81. i. William,^{6} b. 19 Oct., 1768, in Fredericksburg.[*]

ii. Dennis, b. 11 Oct., 1773; d. 30 June, 1845, in Malta; m. (1), 5 Feb., 1811, Charlotte, dau. of Jacob Carneff, b. 28 Dec., 1784, in Dutchess co., N. Y.; d. 29 Sept., 1815, in Malta; m. (2), 8 June, 1817, Jerusha, dau. of Dennis and Lois Wright, b. 13 Aug., 1783; m. (3), 17 March, 1835, Lydia Barrett. Children, b. in Malta, by first wife: 1. William Dennis,^{7} b. 6 Jan'y, 1812; m. 19 March, 1846, Olive S. Gates: 2. George Washington, b. 6 April, 1813. Re: Genealogy Research - GRUMMOND

Dear Ms. Read:

Just today, a friend gave me her collection of "Heritage Quest" magazines and I found your GRUMMOND query in the May/June 1993 issue.

To further enhance the "fateful" events that occur in doing genealogy research - just yesterday I copied several pages from the "American Genealogist" magazine (Vol. 32 & 33) on the GRUMMAN family which concludes that Nathaniel Grummond at Cooperstown in the Town of Otsego, NY in 1800 descends from John(1) Grumman of Fairfield, CT. John Grummond is mentioned as possibly a son or nephew of Nathaniel.

The 1956 article's author, John Insley Coddington, was a noted genealogist and his extensive research has concluded that, although there is a great variation in the spelling of the name, the Connecticut and New Jersey Grummans descend from Grommet/Grummant/Grummunt of Bedfordshire, England, briefly as follows:

John(1) bapt. 25 Feb 1626/27 Cranfield, Co. Bedford, Eng.
son of John and Elizabeth (Wheeler) Grummant

John(2) b. ca 1652 probably Fairfield, CT
son of John(1) and Sarah (Try) Grumman

John(3) b. ca 1680 probably Fairfield, CT
son of John(2) and first wife Esther (Thompson) Grumman

John(4) b. 3 July 1710 Fairfield, CT son of John(3) and Ruth(?) Grumman

Nathaniel b. ca 1746 probably Norwalk, CT son of John(4) and Damaris (possibly Smedley) Grumman

If all of the above is new information for you and you would like copies of the articles (over 30 pages) I would be happy to forward them to you. It is fascinating reading which includes wills, land records, etc. as documentation.

Sincerely,

Olive G Kuschel

Olive Gruman Kuschel

P.S. I descend from John^{2} and his second wife Esther Lyon. (John^{1}, John^{2}, Samuel^{3} Samuel^{4} Samuel^{5}, Cholwell^{6}, Samuel^{7}, Samuel^{8}, Frederick^{9} (my father)

Dear Helen,

Thank you for your message. This Grummon family is quite the puzzle for me. I started tracing my genealogy about 4 years ago and am no further along than when I started. Horace B. Grummon is my great-great grandfather. I am of the belief that he was born in Mayfield, Fulton County, New York. Unfortunately I have been unable to find any records to date. On the 1880 census it states that his mother and father were born in Connecticut but who knows. I "think" that he and George are brothers as they are about the same age, both lived near each other in Chautauqua, both migrated to Illinois and later the sons of both of them migrated on to the same town in Iowa.

I am familiar with Clarissa but do not have any more information than what you have. I am sure you have seen Roger's information on the Long and Short of It on the Internet. I, too, have quite a bit of information on the Michigan Grummon family. Do you know which John Grummon? What his date of birth is? Jedediah Grummond is listed in the 1850 census in Michigan and his age is 40 born in NY, too. We also have Alanson Grummons, Nathaniel Grummond, George Washington Grummond, etc.

What is your relationship to Clarissa? I would sure love to be able to give you a new clue if I have it in my information. Have you ever contacted Bill Grummons. He is my rock for information and is so good with all of this.

I'll look forward to hearing from you.

Susan

I was born in Wayne Co., Michigan, but only ever passed through Ottawa Co. on my way to Lorain Co. to do research on my other Ohio families, Avery, Gifford, Stone. Now I'm so far away I discover that I should have been looking much closer to home!

I have run across that marriage record for a Solomon Streeter and Clarissa Grummon Short, but that Solomon may be the son of the Solomon for whom I'm looking. The Streeters did live in NY at some point...Greene Co., Madison Co. are two places that have been mentioned...but another record mentions their being "of New Hampshire".

Appreciate your getting back to me so quickly. If I ever find a connection to the individuals in your database, I'll be sure to let you know.

I found your name on the list of Ottawa Co., Ohio researchers and thought I'd get in touch with regards to the Arnold family.

I'm currently trying to determine the origins of my 3rd-gr-grandfather, Benjamin Streeter, b. ca. 1823, NY. He was married to Mary Ann McNelly in Ottawa Co. in 1844. Not far from the couple lived another Streeter, David A., b. ca. 1822, NY (Greene Co.). David was married to Ellen McNelly, also in 1844. I have been able to find more out about David than about Benjamin, who I am guessing is either a brother or first cousin to my Benjamin, so have been following that line to see what I could dig up. This research -- helped immensely by other online Ottawa Co. and Streeter family researchers -- led me to David's parents, Solomon Streeter and Sarah Arnold. I have also found a sister of David's, Julia, who married James Wonnell in Ottawa Co.. A publication that mentioned the 1890 2nd marriage of Julia to E. Lockwood mentions that Solomon and Sarah (Arnold) Streeter were "of New Hampshire."

Can you tell me if your Ohio Arnolds are from New Hampshire or have connections to Greene Co., NY? I'm wondering if your Arnolds are related to possible 4th-gr-grandmother Sarah Arnold.

Dear Mrs. Read;

Hope this letter finds you well, The reason I am writing to you is that I am working on my family history. I was in the Marine City Library looking through the reference papers and other local history, when I came across the letter you had sent in April of 1985. You were looking for information on Stephen Grummond I am looking for some of the same information. My connection with him is through his wife, for I am researching the Harrow family History.

I have inclosed a copy of the information you had at this time. If you have any more info that you could add to this I would greatly appreciate it. Also if there is any searching that you might need done in the St. Clair County area I would be more then happy to lend a hand.

What I am interested in finding is who his parents were and where they came from. Also any additional info that you have on his children.

I have followed the Harrow Line back to Alexander Harrow's parents and sisters in Scotland and forward through Mary's Brother George whom my family descended from. I have only been working on this project for about two months but have managed to accumulate quite a lot of info.

As I said any light that you can shed on this family would be a great help and please let me know if I may assist you in any way.

Best Regards,

Karen O'Reilly

To. Helen Hunt Read:

We'll I surprised you with my first letter back in 1989, and I'm sure you thought I'd long forgotten you. I hadn't, time as you know has a way of slipping away from you. My daughter who was just a year old when I wrote you, is now 7 years old, and been a hand full all the way, smarter then I ever thought of being at that age.. We also made a small move since 1989, all the way around the world to Saudi Arabia. We've been here since April of 1993. Fortunately it offers a chance to do a bit of traveling and lots of time to do a lot of research.
Anyway, probably by now you've managed to unearth everything that I've come across but you never know so I'm sending you copies of what I have.. At the time you asked me to check for Grummond's in Kent Co. The Harrows I don't think ever really resided in Canada. Alexander had acquired land from serving as a Loyalist during the Revolution but he built the family mansion in Clay Township Mich. At the time I didn't have any plot numbers or concession lines to really search. In Canada if you don't already know the parcel numbers it's next to impossible to find anything. Since then I've come across some info and some things have been indexed making it a little easier. so I have someone checking on it for me.
In Jan. of 1991 I was in Lansing at the State Library and came across a index showing Alexander's wife with a maiden name that I'd never heard of. When I'd contacted the Sterling Heights Genealogical Society where the information originated they sent me some photocopies of surname index cards that had been done by John Horton a member of the society. The cards that were for the Grummond side listed as reference a bible in possession of a George Wakefield address listed at that time was 6444 West Lake Rd. Vermilion Ohio. I don't know if this is helpful to you or not. I've been curious about this bible for a while., but haven't been home long enough at any given time in the last few years to be able to do anything about it. Maybe you know of it already or could find out more about it.
I'm sending you a copy of a picture of Stephen Jr. and an article on him out of the Cyclopedia of Michigan sorry the copy isn't very good it was a thick book. I've found Stephen Sr.'s birthplace listed in one census as Connecticut. in one surname index as Michigan and in one local history book article as New York. So I hope over time you've had better luck then I have.
Speaking of articles I injoyed reading one of yours in the Ancestry Magazine. That's what jarred my memory and put me in front of the computer to write you. Two computers and three Genealogy programs later and I was lucky enough to be able to track down this address, hopefully its still the one.
I'll be back in Michigan at my folks for Xmas to collect my mail and enjoy the holidays, Hope to hear from you soon and Merry Christmas.

Mrs. William C. Graves Succumbs In Chicago

MRS. WILLIAM C. GRAVES.

Was Daughter of Stephen B. Grummond, Former Mayor of Detroit.

Mrs. William C. Graves, 62 years old, formerly Miss Marie Louise Grummond, member of a pioneer Detroit family and well-known Chicago and Detroit social figure, died at her home in Chicago Friday. An illness contracted last March, together with recent complications, was held responsible for her death.

Mrs. Graves gained prominence in Chicago by her welfare work carried on in connection with the University of Chicago Settlement league, Hyde Park Neighborhood club and the Cercle Francais. She was known as the friend and advisor of many homeless young people.

She was the wife of William C. Graves, Chicago business man, and the daughter of Stephen B. Grummond, former mayor of Detroit and pioneer Great Lakes marine man.

Mrs. Graves was born in Detroit and until her marriage, September 28, 1892, resided at the old Grummond mansion, which until recent years stood at 810 East Jefferson avenue.

Mrs. Graves was educated in Detroit public schools, Houghton Seminary, Clinton, N. Y., and Mrs. Reed's finishing school, New York. Before her marriage she was prominent in social nad church life in Detroit and Mackinac Island.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Schuyler C. Graves, Chicago; a sister, Mrs. John D. Hawes, Los Angeles; a brother, H. G. Grummond, Johnson City, Tenn.;— ? MD U.G. a nephew, N. P. Grummond, Detroit; a granddaughter, Mary Louis Graves.

Funeral services will be held a the Graves home Saturday an burial will be at Elmwood cemetery Detroit, Monday.

was made by President Cleveland in 1885. Mr. Shepard was appointed by President Harrison in January, 1890, to the same office, Mr. Black's term under the Democratic Administration having expired. Mr. Shepard discharged the duties of district attorney with entire satisfaction to the public and with credit to himself. He was for several years city attorney of West Bay City, and for over twelve years chairman of the School Board. He was president of the West Bay City Board of Waterworks, from its organization until June, 1888, over ten years, and has held several other important public positions in Bay County. In 1876 he was elected a delegate to the National Republican Convention, held at Cincinnati, which nominated R. B. Hayes to the Presidency. While Bay City belonged to the Eighth Congressional District he was chairman of the Congressional Committee for several years. He takes an active interest both in State politics and in local public affairs. Mr. Shepard is a gentleman of learning, pleasing and entertaining as a conversationalist, unostentatious in manner, plausible and convincing in argument, and of exemplary character. His marked success as a prominent member of the Michigan bar, with perhaps the largest and most valuable clientage in Bay County, is another instance of the Eastern boy reared on a farm and well educated (thoroughness and lack of cramming being special features of the good, old-fashioned schools of the East), coming rapidly to the front in the Western fields of opportunity constantly offering to ability, energy, and perseverance. In January, 1868, Mr. Shepard was married at Cuba, New York, to Mary M. Randolph, a daughter of S. S. Randolph, a native of New York State. Three children—Howell G., Lottie E., and Mamie E.—were born of this marriage. The first only is now living, the two daughters having passed away, the former in 1878 and the latter in 1900. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard are members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of West Bay City, of the Official Board of which Mr. Shepard was chairman many years. Mr. Shepard is now judge of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit of Michigan, having been elected to that position in the spring of A. D. 1899.

CAPTAIN STEPHEN BENEDICT GRUMMOND, representative vessel owner and operator, was born on a farm near Marine City, St. Clair County, Michigan, September 18, 1834, and died at his home in Detroit, January 2, 1894. His father, who also bore the name of Stephen Benedict, came to Michigan from New York State in 1807, and settled on the bank of the St. Clair River, where he engaged in farming, and conducted a general store, and eventually became one of the wealthiest men in the county, and died in 1856. His wife, the mother of Captain Grummond, who died in 1877, was Mary, daughter of Alexander Harrow, a Scotch gentleman, who came to Michigan when the Territory was under British rule, and who for several years was in the British naval service. Young Grummond, inheriting the nautical instinct from his maternal grandfather, at the age of fifteen went sailing on the lakes. Spending his winters at school, at the age of eighteen he had acquired a good education, both scholastic and nautical. Better yet, he had saved his earnings, and so, with a little financial assistance from his father, he was enabled to buy a small sailing vessel, in which he sailed for several years. This was the foundation of his fortune, and he lived to become the owner of a fine fleet of vessels. In 1855 he relinquished the command of this first vessel and removed to Detroit, where he ever since was engaged in buying, selling, and operating vessels of various description—sail, steam and tugs, passenger, and freight boats. From year to year his business extended and grew until he came to be recognized as one of the largest owners of lake craft. He owned the finest line of tugs on our inland waters, and did the largest towing and wrecking business upon them. He also was the owner of Grummond's Mackinac line of steamers, plying between Cleveland and Mackinac. His old friend, Captain J. W. Millen, when appealed to spoke as follows: "I have known Captain Grummond since 1852. Forty-one years is a large slice of a man's life; but in many respects those days are fresher in my memory than things which happened yesterday. I knew Grummond first as a watchman on steamers, a mere lad, but a bold and fearless one—ready to fight for justice or glory at the drop of the hat. I see him now as I saw him one bitter cold winter early in the fifties, when the big steamer on which he was watchman froze solid in the ice off Port Colburn. Faithful to his post that boy remained, no companion, no society of any sort, through those bitter cold days and long, wild nights, his only company the shrieking blasts which tore across the open lakes like a thousand demons let loose. Can you imagine anything more desolate? Yet never for a moment did the sailor lad think of leaving his duty for the warm firesides and cheerful companions which he knew were awaiting him at Port Colburn, which he might easily have reached by journeying across the ice. He drifted into port with his boat when she was loosened. As a young man he was full of life and fun. He was much sought after for his companionship, and feared and respected for his fearlessness and prowess. He first began in the vessel business for himself in the tug line. That was in the good old days, when there was a big profit in all sorts of towing and wrecking. I recall him now as the owner of the tug Dispatch, which he bought in Quebec. He was a great hustler, and got almost all the business in his line that was going. This naturally caused considerable feeling among those in the same line of business, and led to many personal encounters, in which young Grummond could generally be depended upon for coming out victorious. In the summer he went about as a rough dock walloper; but by this time he had reached a point where he was socially ambitious, and he cut quite a figure at balls and other social functions during the winter. Captain Grummond from this point accumulated vessel property with considerable rapidity, although there was a period during which he dropped out of sight, and I think he went to California, although I am not quite certain. When he once more got fairly down to business among us, he bought small vessels of all sorts, and was a prominent figure in the marine world. The bulk of his money—at least the early portion of it—however, was made in tugging. In those days, that was the most profitable business in which a man could engage. As he grew more independent, he hired men to operate his tugs, and spent more time on shore than before. Then he put on a line of barges, and went into the lumber trade. That was about the time the great Saginaw pine-forests were being opened up. Freights were high, and money came rolling in from every direction." His enterprise and straightforward business methods secured to him a good deal of business, and "his efforts resulted in the accumulation of a large fortune, which he invested in Detroit real estate and various business enterprises. Originally he was a member of the Democratic party; but ever since the election of Abraham Lincoln he had been an earnest supporter of Republican principles. Official trusts were only assumed by him upon the urgent request of friends, and when he honestly believed that the public good would be advanced thereby. In 1879 he was elected a member of the Board of Estimates, and at the expiration of his term in 1881 was elected a member of the newly-created City Council or upper house for the long term. After two years' service he was made, against his wishes, the unanimous choice of his party as its candidate for mayor. He was elected, and during his term of office fulfilled the duties of the position in such a manner as to win the approval of the best elements in the city. A practical business man, his administration was marked by the same good sense and sound business principles which in his private career had brought success. He used all his influence toward getting the city affairs into a sound financial condition, and against public clamor had the courage to veto measures that he believed to be against the public good. The result in almost every case proved that the course he favored was both wise and prudent. His administration met the approval of the people generally, regardless of party. As a business man, Mr. Grummond's main power lay in the spirit of perseverance with which he pursued his plans. He was independent and courageous, but modest and unassuming. His chief enjoyment was in the prosecution of his numerous business ventures. He was public-spirited and progressive in his ideas, and readily gave support to deserving public enterprises, and by his ability and integrity commanded the respect and confidence of his fellow-citizens." One of Detroit's most prominent lawyers, when asked for an opinion of Captain Grummond during his lifetime, wrote as follows: "Captain Grummond is a man of great sagacity and energy, is quick to grasp and comprehend a business proposition, and if it meets his judgment, is quick to act upon it. He is self-reliant, and very confident of the correctness of his convictions. He has a remarkably retentive memory as to his business matters, both in a general way and in detail. While his commercial, vessel and real-estate interests are large and varied, he gives personal attention to his deposits in banks, and draws checks, notes, and drafts himself. He is naturally distrustful, and, therefore, not easily deceived by statements of others as to the profit of investments; but carefully investigates for himself, and distributes in many ventures rather than in few. He is a kind husband and an indulgent father, is public-spirited, and is prominent in all public matters of the city. Although an active Republican, he is not a bit a partisan. He attends and is a liberal supporter of the Episcopal Church." Captain Grummond was married in 1861 to Miss Louisa B. Prouty, and they became the parents of seven children, the surviving being Mrs. Marie Graves, of Chicago; Nathaniel P., U. Grant, Edith, and Edna Ora. The illness that preceded his death was of several weeks' duration, and when the time came his end was peaceful, and he passed away surrounded by his family. At the time of his decease he was a member of the Police Commission, and also of Detroit Commandery No. 1, Knights Templars. The Detroit newspapers editorially paid him the following tribute—the Tribune saying:

> "Captain Grummond occupied a very large place in the esteem and affections of the people of Detroit, and his death will be widely and sincerely mourned. In both public and private life his was a sterling character. He was a successful and honorable man of business. He was a public official of singular devotion to the public welfare. He was a husband and father in whom his family delighted, and upon them he lavished a large soul's constant affection. Captain Grummond was well known throughout Michigan and the Northwest, and his connection with inland marine interests was of the most prominent and influential character. In all of the varied relationships of life, indeed, he was respected and esteemed most highly. The Tribune extends to his bereaved family and friends expression of its sincere sympathy, and it but utters a universal sentiment in saying that the community in which he lived can illy spare his useful and courageous citizenship."

And the Free Press:

> "The death of Captain Stephen B. Grummond makes a marked gap in the ranks of Detroit's active, energetic business men. He was essentially a man of affairs, with any number of irons in the fire; but he very rarely had so many in at any one time that he could not keep them all hot. Such public positions as he held he filled with great credit to himself and satisfaction to the people; his administration of the mayor's office in particular is remembered as that of one who understood the requirements of the place, and lived up to them conscientiously and faithfully. He was a positive man, and tenacious of his opinions when he had formed them; but he was as courteous in his deference to the opinions of others as he expected them to be in their treatment of his. Socially he was a man of broad and generous impulses, and always among the foremost in aiding every good and deserving work. He will be sadly missed."

HON. ALEXANDER LEWIS, Detroit. Detroit and Canada were in their early settlement so interwoven that their history is one. And even now, so long after their political separation, the people on each side of the beautiful Detroit River are united by bonds of kinship, and many are those who, born on the other and older side of the river, migrate to the more favored side, and cast in their lot under the folds of the Stars and Stripes. Among the many who have so done, is he whose name heads this sketch; for it was in the quaint, quiet, and sleepy little village of Sandwich, opposite Detroit, that he was born, on October 24, 1822, a son of Thomas and Jeannette (Villaire) Lewis. His father was born at Three Rivers, Quebec, and his mother near Windsor, Ontario.

ten years ago, and first opened an office in Buffalo, N. Y. He came supported with excellent recommendations from most of the principal shipbuilders and shipowners of England, amongst whom are included Sir James Laing, J. P. Lloyd's committeeman, Suez Canal commissioner, chairman of the River Wear Commissioners, etc.; Messrs. Palmer of Jarrow-on-Tyne, the superintendent of the Cunard Steam Ship Co., the Underwriters Registry for Iron Vessels, the Chief Surveyor of the Veritas, etc. His knowledge as a superintendent and consulting engineer soon created a demand for his services in this country. He remained in Buffalo but a short time, removing to Cleveland in 1888, where he has since resided, accepting a position in 1890 with the Globe Iron Works Company, for which company he designed such well known steamers as the Castalia, Republic, and others of equal size and prominence on the lakes. He has also been employed as special expert marine appraiser by the United States Government. Mr. Oldham is Lloyd's Agent, Underwriters' Surveyor, and is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the Civil Engineers of Cleveland, Ohio, the Mechanical Engineers and The Engineers Club of New York.

Mr. Oldham was united in marriage to Miss Annie E. S. Banks, of Liverpool, England, in 1874. Nine children have been born to them, five of whom are living: G. Ashton, Amy L., John L., Mabel A. and Annie J. It is the purpose of Mr. Oldham to have the eldest son, G. Ashton, follow the same line of business as himself, as he has been so successful as a workman in the shipyards, hence he will take a course of scientific training at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Mr. Oldham, though a quiet member of the Republican party, has done useful service with his pen for the protection of American shipping. He was one of the Republican reception committee of the National Republican League of 1895, and is a member of the Tippecanoe Club. As a writer on maritime matters, the subject of this sketch is well known, and we may mention the pamphlets "North American Lake Steamers versus Ocean Cargo Steamers," published in 1891; "Screw Steamships and Tow Barge Efficiency," and the "Great Lakes Register of Shipping," published in 1883. He has recently contributed several articles to Cassier's Magazine under the titles of "Structural Strength of Ships and Improved Arrangement for Repairing without Diminution of Strength;" "Shipbuilding and Transportation on the Great Lakes," and "Analysis of Lake and Ocean Steamship Models and Efficiency of Propelling Machinery."

Mr. Oldham is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce Maritime Committee; and he acts as a member of the vestry of Emmanuel Church.

CAPTAIN STEPHEN B. GRUMMOND, in his lifetime one of Detroit's foremost business men and vessel owners, was born September 18, 1834, near what is now Marine City, on the St. Clair river, Mich., a son of Stephen and Mary (Harrow) Grummond. The mother, who died in 1877, was of Scotch descent, and was a daughter of Alexander Harrow, who came to Michigan while it was under English rule, and for many years was connected with the British navy as commander of sloops of war. The father of our subject was born in the western part of New York State, whence, in 1807, he came to Michigan and settled on the right bank of the St. Clair river, where he kept a general store, and accumulated a competency, dying in 1856.

Capt. Stephen B. Grummond passed his early life in St. Clair county, and, early evincing a liking for the life of a sailor, at the age of fifteen years began his business career by securing a position on a lake vessel, his winters being spent in school. When eighteen years old, with the savings of his own industry, and with some aid from his father, he purchased a vessel which he sailed for several years, retiring from the command of her in 1855. He then moved to Detroit, bought another vessel, and ever after was more or less engaged in buying, selling and running vessels of various kinds. By enterprise and straightforward business methods he secured a vast deal of business, and among his many ventures may be mentioned a profitable tug and wrecking business, which is now one of the largest on the lakes. He was also owner of Grummond's line of steamers, his business extending from year to year until he became recognized as one of the principal owners of lake vessels. In fact, he succeeded in accumulating a large fortune, which he invested in Detroit real estate and various business enterprises. He died January 3, 1894, after a lingering illness.

On December 18, 1861, Captain Grummond married Miss Louisa B. Prouty, of Detroit, and by her had a family of eleven children, some of whom are deceased. In politics the Captain was a Democrat until the election of Abraham Lincoln, after which he was an earnest supporter of Republican principles. In municipal affairs he held several of the most prominent offices in the government of his adopted city, including that of mayor. Socially, he was a man of broad and generous impulses, and at all times among the foremost in aiding every good and deserving work.

CAPTAIN BENJAMIN BOUTELL stands as a just and upright man, and has ever lived and walked as such. He has hosts of friends, and is acknowledged to be one of the most deservedly popular citizens of Bay City, Mich. By good business methods, united with untiring industry, he has acquired an abundance of this world's goods, but does not set his heart upon them, as his courtesy and humanity to man are wide, though unostentatious.

The Captain is a son of Daniel and Betsey (Adams) Boutell, his mother being grandniece of John Q. Adams. She was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1808, a daughter of Benjamin Adams, while her husband was a native of New Hampshire, born in 1800, and a son of Henry Boutell. When quite a small boy Daniel Boutell removed with his parents to Syracuse, N. Y., where he met and married Miss Betsey Adams, in 1824, after which they lived for some years in that city, Mr. Boutell being engaged in building and selling canal boats. Then, anticipating Horace Greeley's advice to "go West," he went to Deerfield township, Livingston Co., Mich., making the entire journey in his own conveyance—a covered emigrant wagon—being seven weeks upon the way. He purchased a large farm, redeemed it from the virgin forest, and erected upon it a residence. It was here that Benjamin Boutell, the subject of this article, was born August 17, 1844. The family remained on this farm and worked it to the best advantage until 1857, when they removed to Birch Run, Mich., where the father erected a hotel which he designated "The Half-Way House," it being equidistant between the towns of Flint and Saginaw. After conducting this hostelry successfully for two years he removed to Bay City where he purchased the old "Sherman House," which stood on the southeast corner of Water and Third streets, and rebuilt it, changing the name to "Boutell House." He again established himself in the hotel business which he carried on until June, 1865, when the structure was destroyed by fire. During the progress of the conflagration Mr. Boutell contracted a severe cold, which settled on his lungs, and he died from the effects of the same in the spring of 1866. He had lived a busy and useful life, and had made friends in every quarter. The wife and mother was laid to rest in 1880, aged seventy-two years.

Capt. Ben Boutell, as he is familiarly known, has also lived a busy and useful life. In his boyhood he helped his father on the farm and in the hotel, attending the public schools as he had opportunity until the spring of 1865, when he adopted the life of a sailor, shipping as wheelsman on the steam tug Wave. The next year he was promoted to the position of mate in the same boat. In the spring of 1867 he took out his first government papers, and was appointed master of the steamer Ajax, the amount of his salary to be governed by the net cash he cleared. The Ajax was a small side-wheel tug, and was owned by a Bay City bank, but she was tied up for debt, the creditors having a keeper aboard. It devolved upon the Captain to free his boat from the clutches of the law before he could respect of all with whom he comes in contact. He is a member of the Roman Catholic Church and one of the oldest members of the original parish of Ste. Anne's.

He was married on June 10, 1850, to Elizabeth J. Ingersoll, daughter of Justus Ingersoll. They have had thirteen children, eight of whom are living: Ida Frances, wife of W. P. Healy, of Marquette; Edgar L., of Detroit; Josephine, wife of Clarence Carpenter; Hattie I., wife of Cameron Currie; Harry B., Julia Velaire, Marion Marie and Alexander Ingersoll.

GEORGE C. LANGDON was born in Geneva, New York, in 1833. He attended school in Batavia, New York, and afterwards in Farmington, Connecticut, where he remained until he was eighteen years old He then became a clerk in the wholesale dry goods house of Lord, Warren, Slater & Co., of New York. After about a year he returned to Geneva, and his father, who was largely interested in Michigan lands, sent him to Flint to engage in farming. He remained there three years and then came to Detroit and entered Gregory's Commercial College, where he soon mastered the art of bookkeeping. After leaving the college he obtained a position as bookkeeper in the Copper Smelting Works at Springwells, and was afterwards bookkeeper for S. H. Ives & Co., bankers. From there he went into partnership with Captain Carey in the commission business.

In 1864, with N. G. Williams, he purchased the Central brewery, which was operated under the name of Langdon & Co. In 1870 he became sole proprietor of the business, and a few years later he sold out and engaged in business as a maltster.

In 1877 he was elected Mayor of Detroit and served during 1878 and 1879.

He married Miss Fannie Vallee, of this city. She died in May, 1887, leaving two daughters.

WILLIAM G. THOMPSON was born in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, July 23, 1842. His father was a lawyer in that city. Mr. Thompson was educated at Amherst College, Massachusetts.

In 1861, at the age of nineteen, he enlisted in the Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry for three months. When his term of enlistment expired he removed to Toledo at his mother's request, who imagined that he would have less chance of contracting the war fever in a western city. But when Colonel Arthur Rankin organized a lancer regiment he came here, received a commission as First Lieutenant, and spent the winter of 1861-62 in Detroit. The lancer regiment was disbanded and he went back to Lancaster, and was subsequently appointed an aide-de-camp with the rank of Second Lieutenant in the Sixth New Jersey Infantry. He was severely wounded at Chancellorsville and won his grade as First Lieutenant by gallantry on the field.

When his regiment was mustered out in 1864 he studied law in New York for a time, and then came to Detroit and entered the law office of D. B. & H. M. Duffield. In 1867 he was admitted to the bar, and in the same year he married Adelaide Mary Brush, daughter of the late E. A. Brush. Mrs. Thompson died in 1875, leaving one daughter.

In November, 1878, Mr. Thompson married Adele Campau, daughter of the late D. J. Campau.

He served as one of the first Board of Estimates in 1873, as Alderman of the Third Ward in 1874 and 1875, and as Mayor of the city from 1880 to 1884.

STEPHEN BENEDICT GRUMMOND, of Detroit, widely known in connection with extensive interests in lake navigation, was born near what is now Marine City, on the St. Clair river, September 18, 1834, and is the son of Stephen Benedict and Mary (Harrow) Grummond. His father, who was born in the western part of New York State, came to Michigan in 1807 and settled near Marine City, where he was engaged in farming, and kept a general store, the first on the river. He was successful in business, accumulated a competency, and was respected as an influential and useful citizen. He died in 1856. His wife, who died in 1877, was of Scotch descent, and was the daughter of Alexander Harrow, who came to Michigan while it was under British rule. For many years he was connected with the English navy as commander of His Majesty's sloop "Welcome" and other war vessels. He became one of the best known navigators of the lakes, and rendered efficient services to the English government.

S. B. Grummond's early life was passed in St. Clair county. Possessing a restless and ambitious nature, at the age of fifteen he began his business career by securing a position on a vessel engaged in lake navigation; but when navigation closed, spent the winters at school. At the age of twenty-one, with the savings from his own industry and a little aid from his father, he purchased a vessel and sailed her for several years. In 1855 he retired from the command, came to Detroit, bought another vessel, and has ever since been engaged in buying, selling and running vessels of various kinds. His business has extended from year to year, until at the present time he is one of the principal owners of lake vessels, and his line of boats is well known and largely patronized. He is the proprietor of Grummond's Mackinac Line of steamers, and does the largest tug and wrecking business on the lakes. His efforts have resulted in the accumulation of a large fortune, which is invested in Detroit real estate and in various business enterprises. His success can be attributed to thorough mastery of his business, practical experience in all its details, good judgment and judicious management.

Originally a member of the Democratic party, ever since the election of Abraham Lincoln he has been an earnest supporter of the Republican party. His connection with political affairs as a public officer has not been the result of any desire on his part for political honors. Official trusts have only been assumed upon the urgent request of friends, and when he honestly believed the public good would be advanced thereby. In 1879 he was elected a member of the Board of Estimates, and at the expiration of his term in 1881 was elected a member of the newly created City Council or Upper House for the long term. After two years' service in this capacity he was made without solicitation on his part, and even against his wishes, the unanimous choice of his party as its candidate for Mayor. He was successfully elected, and during his term of office fulfilled the duties of the position in such a manner as to win the approval of the best element of the city. A practical business man, his administration was marked by the same good sense and sound business principles which in his private career had ensured success. He used all his influence towards getting the city affairs into a sound financial condition, and against public clamor had the courage to veto measures he believed against the public good; the result in almost every case has proved that the course he favored was both wise and prudent. His administration met the approval of the people generally, regardless of party. Near the close of his term of office the Detroit Free Press, the leading Democratic paper in the State, said: "He has been in the main an excellent Mayor, and has discharged the duties of his office, as he understood them, with painstaking fidelity, entire honesty, and no greater display of partisanship than would be naturally expected of an official chosen by partisan vote." This, from a paper politically opposed to him, was praise indeed.

As a business man, Mr. Grummond's main power lies in the spirit of perseverance with which his plans are pursued. That his undertakings, both in public and private affairs, have been sagacious, is undeniable, and his success in various directions has vindicated his business foresight. He is independent and courageous, but modest and unassuming; dislikes publicity, finds his chief enjoyment in the prosecution of his numerous business ventures, but is public spirited and progressive in his ideas, and readily gives his support to deserving public enterprises, and by his ability and integrity commands the confidence of his fellow citizens.

He was married December 12, 1861, to Louisa B. Prouty, of Detroit. They have had eleven children, seven of whom are living, four girls and three boys.

M. H. CHAMBERLAIN was born in Woodstock, Lenawee County, Michigan, November 5, 1842. His father, Philonzo Chamberlain, was born in New York State in 1804, and, at the age of eighty-four, is hale and hearty. Mr. Chamberlain is of the English family of Chamberlain, whose descendants came to America early in old colonial times. His great-grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary war and fought at Bunker Hill and on other bloody fields. The gun used by him at Bunker Hill is now in the possession of the family, who jealousy guard it as a memorial of great value.

Mr. Chamberlain's maternal ancestors came from Scotland. His mother was born in New York State in 1798 and died in Detroit, January 25th, 1884. Early in life she and her husband settled in Niagara County, New York, and in 1835 removed to Michigan, purchasing a farm in Lenawee County. Their next home was in Litchfield, Hillsdale County, and in the spring of 1869 they located in Detroit.

M. H. Chamberlain is the youngest in a family of eight children, six boys and two girls, seven of whom are living. He attended a district school until about fifteen years of age. In the winter of 1859–60 he taught school in Lenawee County, and in the spring of 1860 entered Hillsdale College. Soon after leaving college he taught school in Oakland County. In 1864 he came to Detroit, attended a commercial college until May, 1865, and then took a position in the office of F. A. Stokes, on the corner of Jefferson avenue and Wayne street. During the first year he was employed as bookkeeper, and the year following as traveling salesman. In November, 1867, he, with his brother, Mr. A. H. Chamberlain, purchased Mr. Stokes' interest in the business, and the firm of M. H. Chamberlain & Co. was formed. Starting with comparatively small capital and only a few months' experience in the business, their success has been quite remarkable, and in their line they are among the leading firms in the country.

In the spring of 1873 the Chamberlains organized the Fearless Tobacco Company. Mr. M. H. Chamberlain continued as a partner until March, 1876, when he sold his interest to his brother. In 1874 Mr. M. H. Chamberlain, with others, organized the Commercial Travelers' Association of Michigan, and he was elected its first president.

In 1882 he was elected to the City Council, and in 1885 was made president of that body. In the fall of 1885 he was elected Mayor of Detroit on the Democratic ticket by a majority of about eighteen hundred over the Republican nominee.

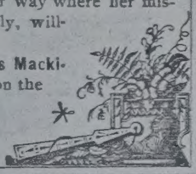
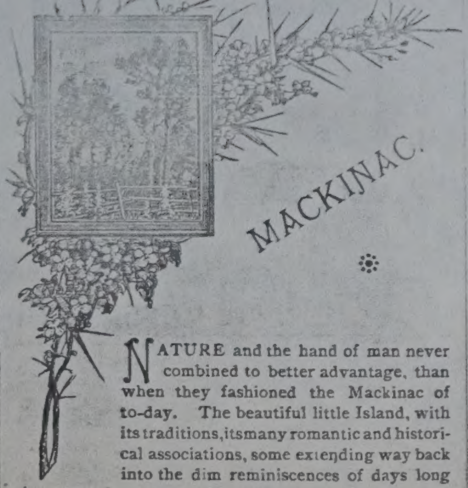
THE thoughts therein expressed are not mere buncombe, intended for advertizing purposes only; but facts to be realized after the trip is undertaken. The months of June, July, August and a portion of September are always propitious months for such a trip. Then storms are least likely to occur. Generally the surface of Lake Huron during that period is as smooth as unbroken glass. Then the scorching summer's sun has but little effect, as a gentle breeze is ever present to fan away the heat. What greater boon, then, can one ask, than to be allowed the pleasure of seeking a shady nook on a beautiful steamer, there to watch the white-winged monsters of Western commerce as they come and go, to dream away the hours in peaceful contentment, or to gaze upon the busy and changing scenes constantly occuring as the boat glides in and out of the different ports, wending her way where her mission calls, doing her duty silently, willingly and well,

The Steamers of Grummond's Mackinac Line are the popular boats on the Mackinac route.





MACKINAC.

NATURE and the hand of man never combined to better advantage, than when they fashioned the Mackinac of to-day. The beautiful little Island, with its traditions, its many romantic and historical associations, some extending way back into the dim reminiscences of days long since gone by, others still within the remembrance of honored actors of the present age of life, lie within the Straits of the same name, but a few miles from the main land, and is easily accessible to either the Northern or Southern Peninsulas. It is the most picturesque of any on the lakes, and here nature displays all her grandeur. Indian tradition makes this Island the home of the Giant Fairies, hence it was regarded with awe by that race, by whom it was called Moe-che-ne-mock-e-nung. The French name of the early settlers was Michilimackinac. Picture after picture has been drawn extolling the beauties of the turreted castles, the walled-in cities and fair fields, hills, rugged mountains and peaceful valleys of ancient and foreign climes. Songs have been sung, and great minds have spoken in their praise; but to them all Mackinac—with her "Lover's Leap" around which circles a pretty story of maiden's fidelity; the "Arched Rock," a great natural wonder; the "Devil's Punch Bowl," a weird appellation to a singular freak of nature; the "Giant's Stairway," "Pontiac's Lookout," the "Chimney Rock," the whitened walls of old Fort Mackinac on the hillside, built by the English in 1780, with the original block houses still standing intact; the Soldiers' Cemetery, carrying one back a century and a half, when some of those lying there were true men and brave defenders; the remains of old Fort Holmes, the "Parade Ground," the buildings of the old Fur Company, some of them nearly a century old; the quiet little village, beautiful because of its quietness—all these and much more make her the peer of any resort in the world.

The settlement of Mackinac was commenced in 1764, a year after the massacre at Old Mackinaw. In 1793 it was surrendered to the American Government; taken by the British in 1812, but restored by the treaty of Ghent two years later. It lies 728 feet above the level of the Ocean, is 350 miles North from Chicago, about 300 from Detroit, and 90 miles from Sault Ste. Marie by steamboat route. The mean annual temperature is 41 degrees fah. A portion of the Island has been set aside by Act of Congress, to be known as the

"Mackinac National Park."

Within easy access to the Island are various points of interest. Among them St. Ignace, the seat of the labors of Father Marquette; Old Fort Mackinaw, celebrated as the scene of the dreadful Indian massacre in 1763. "Spectacle Reef," on which the Government has erected a very fine light-house; Cheboygan, (Indian Cha boai-gan) a flourishing lumbering center; Duncan City, one mile from Cheboygan, is extensively engaged in lumbering, many million feet being cut annually.

constructed by the United States Government at an enormous outlay, and is a lasting monument of what perfect engineering skill can accomplish. At Sand Beach, on the Lake Huron shore, two-thirds the distance from Pt. Huron to Saginaw Bay, is another grand Government work—the breakwater—built to afford protection to craft in threatening and stormy weather. The boats of are so timed, that evening brings them partly across Saginaw Bay. If the evening is clear, the sunset will paint a picture that will never be forgotten. Immense lumbering operations are carried on at Oscoda and Alcona, and at Black River are the camps and mills of the extensive firm of ALGER, SMITH & Co. It is here that many of the immense rafts, sometimes containing as many as three million feet of logs, are made up to be towed to lower lake ports. Alpena is the largest town in Northeastern Michigan. It has an extensive trade, but its chief interest centers in lumbering. There is a fine spring of mineral water here, possessing many curative qualities. A visit to the mills will amply repay for the outlay of time and strength. Cheboygan is a thriving point of about twenty-five hundred inhabitants and is steadily growing. Mackinac is described elsewhere. St. Ignace, around which circles a halo of associations dating back over two hundred years, is now a busy point, being one terminus of the recently constructed railway through the Upper Peninsula. It is here that Father Marquette was laid to rest at the close of his long and laborious work to christianize the Indians.

Steamer "FLORA" and Propeller "ATLANTIC," are too well known to the habitual summer pleasure seeker on the waters of the Great Lakes, to need any further commendation here. To such the following few lines are not addressed. Their sentiment is favorable and they will come again. But of the great army of tourists, who looking about for some cool, delightful spot where they can pass the heated days of Summer in gladsome quietude, and choosing the lovely shores of Mackinac as the one spot on earth best suited to their tastes, is attention more especially solicited.

Both boats are large, staunch, low-pressure floating palaces, and admirably adapted for the route. They are fitted with water-tight bulkheads, are heated by steam, and lighted by patent and costly safety lamps. In every part of both, in fittings for safety, for comfort, for convenience, the maximum is sought regardless of expense in attaining it. The cabins of each are spacious, airy and elegant. The staterooms are large, well ventilated handsomely carpeted, and the berths kept fresh, clean and inviting. The tables are always supplied with the best the market affords, comprising all delicacies in season, and food is cooked in a manner tempting even those of difficult and epicurean tastes. Civility and strict attention to the wants of patrons will be enforced.

On all occasions and under all circumstances the study of management and officer will be directed to the welfare of those patronizing this line.

Dear Ms. Read:

I am enclosing photocopies of material on the Stephen Grummonds and a bill for photocopying and postage. I checked the 1840 and 1850 census microfilm and have included copies. The material from the cemetery records is from records at Oaklawn Cemetery in Algonac which have been copied by the local genealogy group. The information on marriage records has been copied by the local genealogy group from the records in the County Clerks office. The material was copied in longhand and then typewritten; if there are any errors in the original, the group kept that same spelling. Since so many different people were involved, it is sometimes impossible to say where the error occurred.

Sincerely,

Barbara King

Dear Mrs. Read,

After searching our index to 19th Century Issues of local newspapers, 1861 Census Material, and other works on local (Kent County) history, I regret I cannot locate any references to Stephen, Mary or James Grummond or Grommon, or any other Grummond or Grommon.

I am returning your cheque, but urge you to write again if you uncover any other names you would like searched.

Sincerely,

Ken MacLeod

Greetings,

I have been researching a Stephen B. Grummond, sr. who is known to have lived inbetween Marine City and Algonac, Mich. from 1826 to 1856.

On a recent trip to Marine City Library, it was suggested that I write to your library for further checking on this man.

Biographies state that Stephen went to Marine City in 1807 and started farming and set up a general store. However, he would have only been twelve years old at that time. This Stephen is first shown in the property deeds of that area in 1826.

It is known that he married Mary Harrow, a daughter of Alexander Harrow and they had a son James b. in 1819 and he states on later census that he was born in Canada.

Mrs. Seestedt (at Marine City) told me that the Harrow family spent a great deal of time in Canada and thought perhaps Stephen Grummonds did too.

Do you have any files, indexes, etc. that can be checked for information on Stephen Grummond between 1807 and 1856?

Even though Stephen might not appear in any of your records, I would be interested in any Grummond/Grommon that might appear.

Respectfully returned to the Chief of Board of Review.

Soldier was married previous to his marriage to this claimant. He married claimant, in Williamson Co.,Tenn., Sept.3, 1865. A decree of divorce from the first wife was rendered at Detroit, Mich., Sept. 23, 1865. His second marriage, therefore, was celebrated 20 days prior to the date of the decree. Soldier was killed, near Fort Kearney, Dakota, Dec. 21, 1866. You ask whether the claimant is his lawful widow.

It is alleged by Genl.Carrington, the present husband of the claimant, that a decree "pro confesso" was entered by the Court, August 2, 1865.

Assuming this to be as stated by him, of which there is no other proof presented, a decree "pro confesso" is a mere interlocutory decree, which is taken in default of an answer, and is intended to prepare the case for final decree. Its effect is like that of a default at common law, by which the defendant is deemed to have admitted all that is well pleaded in the Declaration. The matters in the bill do not pass in rem adjudicatam until the final decree is made, which may be against the plaintiff.

Russell vs.Lothrop,(122 Mass.302-3,Cases 1877.)

The final decree, as shown by the record, was not rendered until Sept.23,1865.

When a cause of divorce has occurred, the marriage is not thereby dissolved, but it remains in full force until the sentence of the Court declares its dissolution.

Bish.on Mar.& Div.,Vol.2, Sec.279.

It would thus reasonably appear that the marriage of Lt.Grummond, to the claimant, 20 days prior to the decree divorcing him from his first wife, was illegal and void.

The 2nd Section of Amended Section 4702,title 57,R.S.U.S. Act approved August 7, 1882, declares that marriages, except such as are mentioned in Sec.4705 of the Rev.Stats., shall be proven in pension cases to be legal marriages according to the law of the place where the parties resided at the time of marriage, or at the time when the right to pension accrued.

The claimant and Lieut.Grummond were residents of Dakota Territory from the date of marriage until soldier's death,- a period of one year and 3 months. Did a valid marriage arise, from cohabitation and recognition, during this period?

Dakota was assigned its place, as a Territory, on Mar. 2, 1861. It was, therefore, subject to the laws enacted governing the Territories at, and subsequent to, the date of the soldier's second marriage. Sec.1891, R.S.U.S., makes all the laws of the United States, not locally inapplicable, of the same force and effect with in all the organized Territories. The only question, then, is whether the second marriage was validated,- 2nd.- Whether cohabitation and recognition, during the one year and three months from soldier's marriage to his death, constituted a valid common law marriage, under the laws of the United States, or the laws of the Territory of Dakota.

1st.-By ceremony subsequent to the decree of divorce, or

It is not alleged, nor does it appear, that a second or confirmatory ceremony was ever performed. Settlement of the issue must, therefore, depend upon the second question. Generally, the law is, that a second marriage, in compliance with forms, where another husband or wife is living undivorced, cannot be perfected on the mere withdrawal of the impediment, by repetition of the consent, without also a repetition of the forms.

Bish.on Mar.& Div.,Vol.1,
Sec.141.

Bish.Vol.1,Sec.301.

In some States, cohabitation and recognition as husband and wife, would,-under Sec.505,Vol.1,Bish.on M.& D., and subsequent to the removal of the disability,-cause a valid marriage to arise, the instant the disability is removed. But all such cases are determined by the lex loci.

Nothing further remains, therefore, than to ascertain whether such a marriage could or did arise, in this case, under the Laws of the U.S.,or of the Territory of Dakota. If common-law marriages are permissible, under the laws of Dakota, a legal marriage between claimant and soldier arose, the instant the existing impediment was removed, i.e. the decree of absolute divorce rendered Sept.23,1865. Common-law marriages are recognized in Dakota.

The Act of Congress approved March 2, 1861, organizing a government for the Territory of Dakota, in its 6th Section declares that the legislative power of the Territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation, consistent with the Constitution of the United States and the provisions of this Act.

Acting under this authority, the Legislature of Dakota, at its first session, enacted a law, approved May 7, 1862,-Chap.59,Laws of Dakota, Sec. 1,-defining marriage as a civil contract, requiring the consent of parties capable of entering into other contracts. Section 10 provides a form of solemnization; but Section 12 declares that marriages solemnized in any other manner than is herein provided, are valid, though all parties thereby become liable to a penalty of fifty dollars.

Inasmuch as Lieut.Grummond and this claimant were living together, in a relation which both desired and intended to be matrimonial, both mutually consenting thereto, under Sec. 1,Laws of Dak.aforesaid, on the removal of the impediment, Sept.23,1865, a marriage would seem to have arisen between the parties, which, under Sec. 12 aforesaid, was valid.

The law of Dakota, then, continued as cited, until Jany. 12, 1866, when the Civil Code of Dakota was approved.

In this, under Title 1,Marriage, (Chap.1,Article 1-Validity) Sec.34, is declared,- "Marriage is a personal relation, arising out of a civil "contract, to which the consent of the parties capable "of making it, is alone necessary"- and Sec.35 provides that consent to a marriage may be manifested in any form, and may be proved like any other fact.

Even if it could not be held that valid marriage arose between this claimant and Lt. Grummond, on Sept.23,1865, under the law of 1865 herein cited, nevertheless, as they were living together in Dakota on Jany.12, 1866, when the code was adopted, they came within the beneficial operation of the code. The proof shows that there was a personal relation between the parties. There was, then, no bar to their union. Their consent was manifested by their relations, and the reputation they gave to each other as husband and wife, and they were so received and regarded, until the death of Lieut.Grummond, Dec.21, 1866.

I am of the opinion that the claimant must be recognized, for pensionable purposes, as the widow of Lieut.Grummond, up to her remarriage.

other half kept the fort busy. There would be no help for Custard from that quarter.

With astounding patience, Roman Nose settled down and took four hours to capture the wagons, killing and mutilating everybody and burning to death the last survivors, including the wounded sergeant. He might have taken the fort, too, but the Indians were unused to long sieges and had been badly hurt by Collins and Custard—suffering up to 60 dead and 130 wounded—so they broke off the attack and withdrew.

While the Indians were making scattered raids, such as that at Platte Bridge, the Army was concentrating on only one thing. The Californian, General Patrick Edward Connor, was trying to mount a major offensive, one worthy of the Civil War campaigns in the East. But the Powder River Expedition was slowed by muddy terrain, bad weather, mutinous troops, short rations and inadequate forage for the animals. Volunteers demanded their discharges. And some got them. Alarms from the Black Hills and Minnesota siphoned off Connor's manpower.

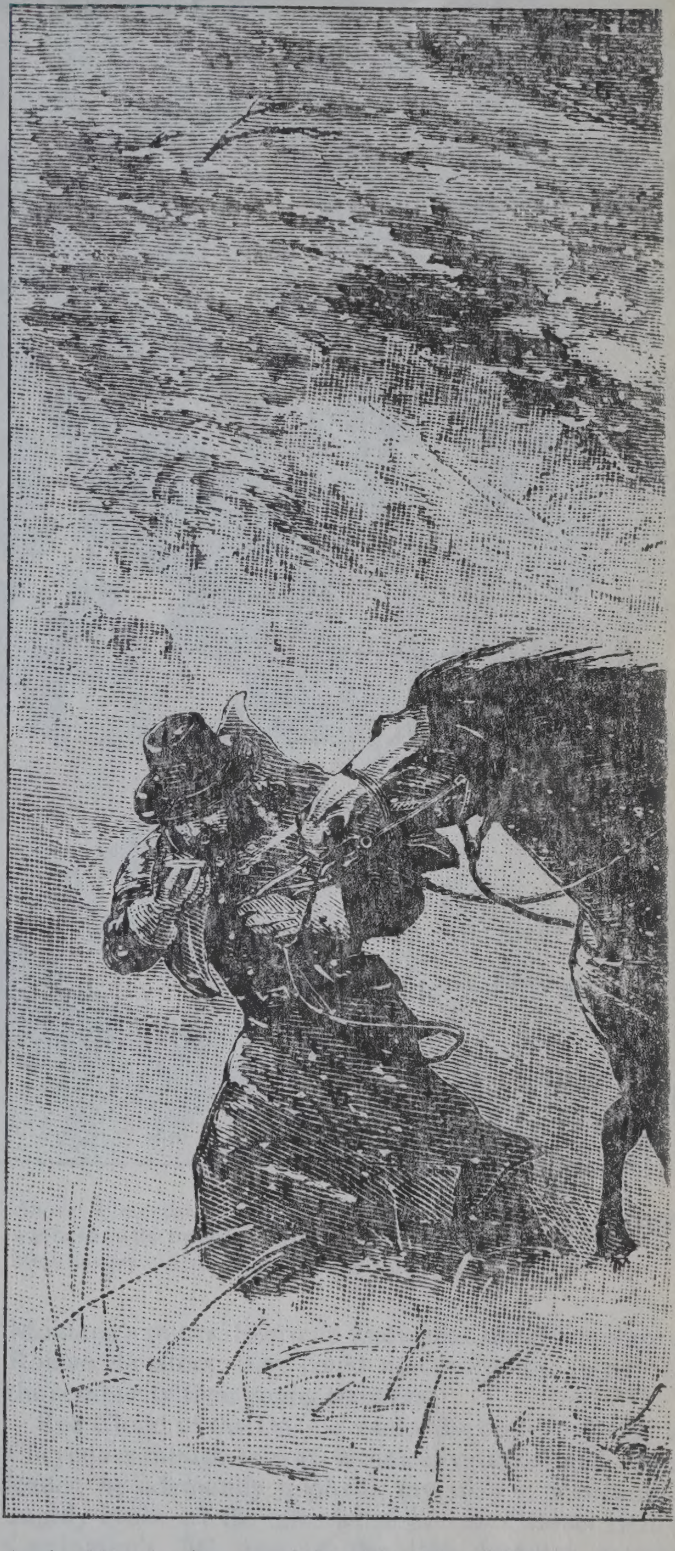
Finally, Connor moved out three columns to rendezvous at Rosebud Creek around 1 September 1865. Colonel Nelson Coe took the Right Column of 1400 men and Lieutenant Colonel Samuel Walker the Center Column of 600-plus men—but only after Connor faced the rebellious Kansans with his Californians and a loaded howitzer. Connor himself took the Left Column, about 600 men including Captain Frank North's Pawnee Scouts, with Jim Bridger as guide. It was the biggest Army operation in the West, except perhaps for the combined Sibley-Sully punitive raids of the Santee War.

Connor had several skirmishes, in one of which his Pawnees bested a Cheyenne war party. Near the Bozeman Trail crossing of Powder River he built Fort Connor, then fought a bloody draw with Black Bear's Arapahos. Red Cloud's Oglala Sioux and Dull Knife's Cheyennes were harassing his two other units, but he did not know it.

It was now 11 September and the only information on Cole and Walker that Connor had was the discovery by his Pawnees of hundreds of their horses, dead, and their saddles burned. Finally, with the Pawnees' help, the link-up was made on 24 September. But two of the three divisions of the Powder River Expedition were complete wrecks. Both Cole and Walker happened to cover ground which was without water or grass. Their horses died and their men were put on short rations. Cole's men escaped disaster by using their cannon, especially a rifled piece, and their Spencer repeaters effectively. But a sleeting norther crippled the now-combined force. Most horses were dead and most men starving when Connor rescued them.

Luckily for Connor, new orders arrived to break up the too-vast District of the Plains into four manageable districts. It was with relief that he terminated the expedition and headed for Salt Lake City.

The real reason for the Army's discontinuance of Connor's campaign was its excessive cost. The Army hurriedly cut back on large-scale operations. The Quartermaster General himself went west to investigate the expenditure in the District of ten millions for rations and forage and an equal sum for other supplies. The Indians were bankrupting the Army!



The great expedition of 1865 was a failure, though not the ignominious defeat that it has sometimes been painted. It was true that Cole and Walker barely avoided a disaster. And while the former claimed to have killed or woun from 200 to 500 Indians, the latter confessed that his might not have killed a single warrior. But Connor fou the Arapahos to a bloody draw and his Pawnees wo skirmish. Connor was a good man, but the combinatio that they considered their treaties to be just white men's scraps of paper. In the chair was no less a personage than the Civil War hero, General William T ('War is Hell') Sherman, now commanding the District of the Plains which was being carved up into separate commands.

Sherman enticed Red Cloud, Dull Knife, Spotted Tail and other chiefs with goodwill gifts of powder, lead and food. Although they had turned back Connor, the Indians had been punished by the hard winter almost as much as the Expedition had suffered.

The Government asked permission for emigrants to cross the lands recently granted to the Sioux and Cheyenne, but the General also sought permission for three forts to be built on the Bozeman Trail connecting the Platte River with Montana's mines. Sherman knew that the chiefs were not Roman dictators; they could not guarantee, in advance, the conduct of their young warriors.

Red Cloud of the Oglalas spoke for both the Sioux and Cheyennes though he was, technically, not a chief. A born leader, he adamantly opposed any such concessions. He angrily broke off the talks when he saw Colonel Henry B Carrington's 700 men of the 18th Infantry marching through Fort Laramie on their way to build the forts in the Powder River country regardless of the council's outcome.

When Carrington entered the peace tent, Red Cloud jumped to his feet and (correctly) accused the leaders in Washington of deceit, sending presents to buy a road while sending 'eagles'—he pointed to Carrington's symbols of rank—to steal it. He added, 'I prefer to die fighting rather than by starvation.'

All of the chiefs muttered their disgust at the Government's bald deception. Man Afraid of His Horses warned Sherman that his people would resist both road and forts. Almost all of the chiefs left in a huff, though three Brulés signed. Later, however, even they notified Sherman that their braves had repudiated their action. They warned all whites to look out for their scalps.

Colonel Carrington did not make policy, of course. He just carried out orders. But he was lumped by Chief Spotted Tail with the bureaucrats, all being liars in the chief's opinion. But Carrington was, at least, wise enough to resist a splendid example of penny-wise, pound-foolish Washington policy making. When orders came to fire his scout, mountain man Jim Bridger, to save his five dollars a day in pay, Carrington lied that the discharge was 'impossible to execute.'

As it was, the Government seemed hellbent on sending him into disaster with only a couple of howitzers and 700 men armed, mostly, with obsolete muzzle-loading Springfield rifled muskets. Only his bandsmen had seven-shot Spencer carbines.

After Sherman's pow-wow fell apart, Carrington proceeded west from Laramie with his long line of 226 wagons. They bore not only the usual lead, powder and rations, but also doors, window sills, locks, chains, butter churns, musical instruments, seeds for vegetable gardens, scythes and mowing machines, tools, blacksmith's forges, shingle and brick-making machines, even a steam-powered sawmill. Apparently the Army meant to stay in the Powder River-Bighorn country; in the rear were ambulances or light wagons with Army wives and children.

At Fort Reno, old Fort Connor, 175 miles from Fort Laramie, Carrington on 28 June 1866 relieved Galvanized Yankee Confederates and Michigan Volunteers with his regulars. Some of his men he sent on reconnaissances, using the Volunteers' horses. He left a quarter of his men at Fort Reno and moved the balance to a grassy flat between the forks of (Big) Piney and Little Piney Creeks near the Powder River. It was a superb site, with lots of grass, water and even nearby timber.

Carrington was a good man for the job of fort-building. A Yale graduate, he was both a draftsman and an engineer. But the Sioux slowed construction of his powerful 600-by-800 foot stockade of Fort Phil Kearny by picking off sentries on knolls and shooting up haying and woodcutting fatigue parties until frightened off by a few howitzer rounds. They then returned at night to snipe at sentries on the fort's rising walls. Worst of all was the gauntlet that had to be run by the wood wagons, seven miles from fort to timber.

It dawned on Carrington that he was being held a virtual prisoner in his new fort, so he appealed for more men and ammunition. He got 95 infantrymen and 65 cavalry recruits so green that the latter could hardly sit a horse. The position of the Government, which knew best, of course, was that the Powder River area was at peace.

All the while, Red Cloud and Dull Knife were being joined by allies: Black Bear of the Arapahos, Sitting Bull and Gall of the Hunkpapa Sioux, the bright young Oglala Sioux warrior, Crazy Horse, and the Miniconjou, Hump.

Opposite page: At a second great Fort Laramie peace-making pow-wow, held in 1868, the Army faced the Indian delegates with an impressive array of General officers including (together, right of center pole) William S Harney and William T Sherman and, behind the bush, Alfred Terry.

Above: A rather clumsy artist's version (with additions) of the Fort Laramie peace-treaty photograph, with Chief Spotted Tail standing. The officers present concluded Red Cloud's War – but strictly on that Sioux chief's terms. They abandoned the Bozeman Trail and its three forts, and the Powder River country, to the immense disgust of the Army's rank and file.

Even some of peaceful Spotted Tail's men joined the loos siege of the three forts, Carrington having added Fort C Smith on the Bighorn River.

Jim Bridger arranged a talk between Carrington and Re Cloud. The former tried both to please the latter with ban music and to scare him with demonstrations of howitze fire. It did not work. The very next morning Red Cloud ra off 175 of the Colonel's horses and mules. When Arm pursuers were well strung out, the Indians turned on then So, casually, began the bloody Red Cloud's War.

Opposite page: Charles M Bell's 1880 photo is a portrait of Red Cloud, or Scarlet Cloud (Makhpiya Luta) c. 1822-1909, the Oglala Sioux who set back Army plans for the Bozeman Trail for years. The Pine Ridge Agency was originally Red Cloud Agency.

Right: The Spotted Tail Agency, later the Rosebud Agency, abutted the Oglalas on the west. The Brulé chief was more peaceful than Red Cloud and his agency more peaceable than the other until he was killed by Crow Dog in 1881. Out of anarchy emerged the Ghost Dance.

Red Cloud was serious, deadly serious. Old Gabe Bridger learned that he had even tried to get his deadly enemies, the Crows, to join the great war against the whites. In this he failed, but he got some modern weapons from the Sioux who lazed about Fort Laramie. This was important, for most of his braves still had only bows and arrows. Now Crazy Horse became an expert at decoying cavalrymen into traps.

Carrington made a brave show of formally celebrating the completion of the key fort of the three, Phil Kearny, by raising the Stars and Stripes on the last day of October, then hosting a feast and quadrille after a speech by himself. But there was really little cause for celebration. Morale was low, because he had not drilled or trained his troopers, but had used them as workmen. The strongly-built fort was understrength to act as the cutting edge of the frontier. Figuratively speaking, Fort Phil Kearny was cantilevered out over an abyss.

Jim Bridger continued to warn Carrington that Indian trouble, bad trouble, was brewing. Cocky younger officers, veterans of Sherman's fiery march to the sea in the Civil War, mocked him and derided Carrington's obsession with defense. Captain Frederick H Brown even delayed a transfer back East in order to get a crack at the Indians. He boasted that he would, personally, lift Red Cloud's scalp. He was outdone in braggadocio by Captain William J Fetterman, who bragged that he would march through the entire Sioux nation if given just 80 good troopers.

On 6 December Red Cloud baited Carrington and Fetterman with a fake raid on a wood train and stung them badly. By 21 December he was ready for the main event. He hid between 1500 and 2000 warriors behind Lodge Trail Ridge and laid an ambush on Peno Creek, only three miles from the fort. Crazy Horse and Hump led two small parties of decoys close to the fort as another band struck at the wood train. The pickets on the walls of Fort Phil Kearny, as usual, fired warning shots. Carrington promptly ordered out Captain James Powell to escort the woodcutters to safety.

But Fetterman wanted his taste of glory. He demanded the command on the basis of his brevet seniority, and he got it. Carrington gave him clear and strict orders. He was to go to the aid of the wood train only. He was not to pursue the raiders beyond Lodge Trail Ridge under any conditions.

Privately, of course, Fetterman considered Carrington much too cautious for his own good. He selected two firebrands, Brown and Lieutenant George W Grummond. The latter had almost been killed in a skirmish but had, seemingly, learned nothing. He left behind in the fort his bride of only a few months.

The overconfidence of these brash officers should have shocked the cautious Carrington into replacing them or revoking his orders. But he could not. His thoughts were on the safety of the trapped wood-cutting crew. As if it were a picnic, or a hunt, two civilians casually joined the detachment just to try out (on live targets) their new rapid fire Henry repeating rifles.

Fetterman fancied himself a strategist as well as a Indian fighter. He did not head directly for the embattle woodsmen, but curved around to the rear of the marauder both to force a fight and to cut off their retreat. He wa damned if he would let the redskins cheat him of his momen in the sun. The Indians countered in their usual fashio Crazy Horse disengaging a few decoys. Fetterman fell fo the trap, lock, stock and barrel. Either forgetting or, mor likely, ignoring Carrington's orders, he galloped his forc over Lodge Trail Ridge and out of sight of the fort.

On the far slope, quietly awaiting him, were Red Clou and his main force, concealed in gullies. Once Crazy Hors gave the signal, the Sioux, Cheyenne and Arapahos fell o the 81-man force.

It was cold on the slope which came to be called Massacr Hill. Men and mounts slipped on ice and snow which soo became red with blood. Fetterman's trapdoor Springfield were dependable; they almost never jammed. And the were accurate. But, at such close range, the detachme could not have survived had they all carried Henry or Spencer repeaters instead of the single-shot arm.

Grummond, in the lead, was shot early on. Within an hour, every man was either shot down or was a suicide. Both Fetterman and Brown apparently shot themselves so that they would not have to endure the tortures of the Indians. The latter hacked, butchered and disemboweled the bodies with devilish glee, enjoying their humiliation of the dead. They even killed a pet dog of one of the soldiers. The Army called it the Fetterman Massacre because the rash lieutenant lost every man of his command. The Indians called it the Battle of a Hundred Slain.

This was the Army's worst defeat, so far, in the West, and only the second engagement in its history in which there were no survivors. It is often forgotten that the foolish Fetterman fought well before being overwhelmed and blowing his own brains out. Some Indians even said that their total of dead and wounded was 200, but it is doubtful that Red Cloud lost the 60 dead claimed by the Army.

The men of the wood train, ignored by the Indians busy with their blood bath, made it safely into the fort. The sound of rifle fire beyond the ridge led Carrington to put together the strongest rescue force that he could. He took almost every able-bodied man. He left the fort and the women and children protected only by bandsmen, cooks, and prisoners he released from the guardhouse. It was a terrible risk, for Red Cloud could have destroyed Carrington's force and taken the post. But, inexplicably, he withdrew before Carrington's counter-attack.

When the Colonel pulled back, he expected the fort to be overrun. He planned to blow up the powder magazine and the women and children with it, to keep them out of the hands of the savages. But the weather saved Fort Phil Kearny. A blizzard dropped the temperature to 30 below. It was actually much colder outside the fort because of the wind chill factor. Even with fires, warm woolen clothing and blankets, Carrington had to change his guard details every half-hour to keep the sentinels from freezing. In their thin-skinned tipis the besieging Indians were not so flushed with victory that they did not huddle together, miserably, in shivering masses.

Trapped in the snowbound fort, Carrington asked the impossible. He wanted a volunteer to ride to Fort Laramie to get help. John (Portugee) Phillips, a veteran scout, stepped forward. The Colonel gave him his own horse to ride, a Kentucky bluegrass thoroughbred. He personally led the brave scout out through the gate and called into the swirling snowflakes behind him, 'May God help you!'

Portugee Phillips's desperate journey became a feat by which all horseback rides in the West have since been measured. Often, stiff and cold and frostbitten as he was under his layered clothing and buffalo robe, he had to dismount and lead—flounder—his horse through waist-high snow drifts. Wisely, he hid by day and traveled only by night.

Phillips reached tiny Fort Reno safely, but there was no aid to be spared there, not even a telegraph to alert Fort Laramie. So he rode on as a band of pursuers closed on him. From the summit of a hill, he held them off till darkness came and he could give them the slip. At Horseshoe Station, he had the telegrapher wire Fort Laramie but, not trusting the wires, he rode on to deliver his message in person. It was lucky that he did; the telegraph message did not get through.

Left: Charles Russell painted a fine watercolor, Smoke Signal, now in the Amon Carter Museum in Fort Worth. It represented a party of scouts on an out-cropping of rock, their war ponies out of sight on the back slope of a bluff, as they exchanged signals with Indians on a distant butte.

In classic dramatic fashion, the completely exhausted horse and rider staggered into the fort to interrupt a gala Christmas Eve ball. Phillips was hardly able to speak. He was nearly dead from exhaustion and exposure. But he got through, and Fort Laramie rushed the 1st Battalion of the 18th Infantry Regiment to Fort Phil Kearny before Red Cloud could mount his attack. The hostiles dispersed.

Naturally the Army had to save face. Not content with Fetterman, they made Carrington a scapegoat and relieved him of his command.

Much too late, the Army sent west the ammunition and supplies Carrington had requested. Single shot—but breech loading—Springfield rifles replaced the old muzzleloaders. A few repeating carbines made their way to the forts. Red Cloud's strategy was to besiege the posts in the hope of stopping all traffic with them. It was his ill luck to have to do so in the face of improved Army weapons.

The Indians struck on 1 and 2 August at both Fort Phil Kearny and Fort C F Smith. Some 500 Cheyennes caught 30 civilian hay cutters and soldier-guards two miles from the latter post on 1 August. The soldiers, sheltered in a log corral, shot the first rush of men to pieces. Only one warrior made it to the barricade and he was shot dead. The Cheyennes set the grass afire, but the flames stopped 20 feet short of the logs, 'as though arrested by supernatural power', one of the defenders said. The smoke blew back on the Indians, who used it to retrieve their 20 dead or wounded warriors.

Guarding the ax-wielders at Fort Phil Kearny the day after the Hayfield Fight was a company of the 27th Infantry. They were struck by the elite of the Lakota nation—Red Cloud, Crazy Horse and American Horse. Crazy Horse first stampeded the mules and the horse herd, then

ve: Philip Sheridan was General William T Sherman's tenant in the West and his disciple. He believed in total fare and had no sympathy for the Indians he fought. After ice in Texas, California and the Northwest, he won great fame e Civil War as a daring cavalry commander. Sheridan was in 1867 to the Department of the Missouri and there began Army's practice of winter campaigns against hostiles. Colonel rge Custer's strike at Black Kettle, the Battle of the Washita ovember 1868, was one result of this new kind of Plains fare. Sheridan's grand design was to drive cavalry units deep Kiowa, Comanche and Cheyenne country when the Indians expected it. His drastic measures worked, gaining peace at temporarily. Sheridan fought in summer, too, and the Battle ummit springs (11 July 1869) was the culmination of his
-69 campaign. He sent Major E A Carr and five companies of Cavalry from Fort McPherson, Nebraska, after Tall Bull and lite (Cheyenne) Dog Soldiers. Carr was supported by the 150 nee Scouts of Major Frank and Captain Luther North.
iam F (Buffalo Bill) Cody was Carr's scout. Carr killed 50 of nemy, including Tall Bull, and captured 117 at a cost of only soldier wounded. Sheridan dumped the idea of using civilian ts in force after Forsyth's siege at Beecher's Island (1868), but split the axemen from their escort. But the wood crew, dropping tools and picking up rifles, made it safely back to the fort. This was because the 1500 Indians were intent on another Fetterman butchery, with Captain Powell their chief victim this time.

But Powell was no Fetterman or Brown or Grummond. He had carefully forted up his men in a strongpoint prepared for just such a crisis. It was a miniature fort of 14 wagon beds out in the open with a good field of fire for his 31 soldiers and civilians. The wagon boxes had been left behind when the wood crew took their wheels and axles to haul logs. Powell filled the interstices between the boxes with logs and sandbags made of grain sacks. He even took the precaution of placing extra arms and ammunition inside the wagon bodies for emergencies.

The Indians had been stung badly in the six-hour Hayfield Fight, when a dozen civilians and 20 soldiers fought off odds of at least 20-to-one for six hours. The Wagon Box Fight was a replay of that engagement—and more.

Powell gave his best sharpshooters three repeating rifles each, probably .50 caliber Spencers, with other soldiers at their sides to reload the guns. The rest of his men used their breech loading or trapdoor Springfields very well. He had his men hold their fire until the war-whooping 500 redmen were a scant 50 yards away. The sudden and unrelenting rain of fire split the Indian charge into bits. Never had the Sioux taken such losses and so quickly. At close range, some rifle-balls passed through one victim to kill or wound a second man behind him. There were none of the lulls in firing, the loading delays, on which the Indians counted.

The Sioux and their allies fled, leaving dead men and horses all around the improvised fort. Powell lost six dead and two wounded of his 32-man force. For once, white estimates of Indian losses were probably accurate—60 dead and 120 wounded. The Indians had rushed the defenders six separate times and Red Cloud's horse was shot from under him, perhaps by Powell himself.

The Hayfield and Wagon Box Fights were classic battles in which a few badly outnumbered men held off overwhelming odds.

While the Indians were virtually closing the Bozeman Trail to travelers, to the south another big Army push, like Connors's, was carried out by General W S Hancock and his right-hand man, the rising young star of the cavalry arm of the service, Colonel George A Custer. 'Hancock the Superb' of Civil War fame knew little of Indians and this 1867 campaign was Custer's first brush with redskins. So thinly spread were troops in so many far-flung posts on the plains that most had to remain strictly on the defensive, thereby intimidating hostile Indians not a whit. Ironically, Hayfield and Wagon Box battles gave the Indians more pause than 'Hancock's War' of 1867. Its major accomplishment, Custer's destruction of Roman Nose's camp on Pawnee Fork, was 'disallowed' by the Government as illegal and Hancock was relieved.

In the fall of 1867 Sherman and other generals negotiated the Medicine Lodge Treaty in Kansas to create two large reservations in Indian Territory, one for Cheyennes and Arapahos and the other for Comanches, Kiowas and Kiowa-Apaches. Then in April 1868 the generals once more parleyed with Red Cloud and, to the consternation of the Army, virtually surrendered to him. They conceded all of his demands and abandoned the Bozeman

Landmarks of Detroit H-94

The Hotel Goffinet, on the southeast corner of Randolph and Larned streets, was opened by James Goffinet in 1875. He was succeeded in 1878 by Martin V. Borgman, who named it the Bernard House. There were several succeeding landlords and it was named the Metropolitan Hotel. The house had been closed for more than a year when the property was purchased in 1886 by S. B. Grummond, who remodeled and refurnished it, and opened it as the Hotel Benedict on May 1, 1887. Mr. Grummond conducted the hotel by several managers until 1892, when Seigfried Lieders leased it, named it the Hotel Lieders and was its landlord until he died. Mr. Scott succeeded him and named it Hotel Victoria. Richard Pool was landlord for two years after May 1, 1894, and changed the name back to Hotel Benedict. Latimer & Lynch were landlords in 1896, and were succeeded by J. B. Miller, who was landlord until January 7, 1898. Thompson & Rowe, the present proprietors, changed the name back to Hotel Victoria. They were succeeded by Thompson & Rowe, who opened the hotel on April 13, 1898, and named it the Tifft.

In 1879 the Standish House and Rice's Hotel were established on the north side of Congress street, east of Woodward avenue. The Standish House was afterward named the Colburn House. The block was afterward rebuilt and enlarged, and on April 22, 1890, was opened as the Normandie Hotel by Carr & Reeve.

The Hotel Cadillac dates from 1887. The east half of the square on the north side of Michigan avenue, between Washington avenue and Rowland street, was purchased in 1885 by Daniel Scotten, who erected thereon a business building. This was converted into a hotel in 1887, named the Hotel Cadillac, and opened by Van Est & Graves in 1888. The west half of the square, on which stood the Antisdel House, was afterward purchased by Mr. Scotten, and an addition to the Hotel Cadillac erected. The whole square fronting on Michigan avenue was occupied by that hotel in 1891.

The Hotel Ste. Clair, which was erected by the E. A. Brush estate on the site of the Henry House, was opened by W. P. Beyer, the present landlord, on June 8, 1893.

The following were the existing hotels in Detroit in the first part of 1898. Some of these have been described above:

Anchorville House, River Rouge.
Baltimore Hotel, 32 Jefferson avenue.
Beaufait House, 1182 Jefferson avenue.
Boulevard Hotel, 1135 Michigan avenue.
Canada Hotel, 13-17 Brush.

Greetings;

I am searching for further information on the Grummond family for genealogical purposes.

The information I have is as follows:

Stephen B. Grummond	b. 22 Feb. 1795 - Conn./N.Y.
	d. 2 Oct. 1856 - St. Clair Co.
	m. ca 1818
Mary Harrow	b. 27 Apr. 1790/1800 - Detroit
	d. 27 Jan. 1877, St. Clair Co. - Oaklawn Cem. w/husband
Children:
James M.	b. 1819 d. 25 July 1854 - bur. Oaklawn Cem.
William W.	b. 1820 d. 8 Oct. 1848
Mary	b. 1824 m. Richard Evans
Eliza	b. 1827 m. 23 Aug. 1866 D.W. Poindexter
Stephen B., jr.	b. 18 Sep. 1831/4 d. 12 Dec. 1861 Detroit - m. Louisa Prouty
George W.	b. 1834 d. 21 Dec. 1866 Fort Phil Kearny - m. 2 x's
Matilda	b. 1838 d. 17 mar. 1898 Vermillion, OH. m. Benj. Horton

The obituary of Stephen, jr. states that his father came to St. Clair Co. in 1807. I know St. Clair Co. was not formed until 1820, but a check of Wayne Co. records for an earlier date did not prove helpful. In the Michigan Territorial Papers, I find that Stephen, sr. is mentioned several times in 1825 in St. Clair Co.

The first I find Stephen, sr. purchasing property was in 1826 in St. Clair Co.

Also, I find it difficult to believe that Stephen, sr. could migrate to St. Clair Co. in 1807 and start farming and setting up a general store. According to the date given for his birth, he would only have been 12 yrs. old at that date. I cannot find him in any census earlier than 1840 even though he should have been on the 1830 census.

Do you have any records, or know where records might be, that would give any early history of your area? I have written to the Michigan Room of the library in Port Huron and have checked records at the Detroit Public Library.

I am most interested in finding information on the Grummond's prior to 1850.

Any assistance you may be able to give me will be greatly appreciated.

Encloseds is a check for $3.00 and a SASE.

Sincerely,

Prob. 656-F

Dear Mrs. Read:

Your inquiry of April 14, 1985, has been referred to me for reply. This is one of my assignments as a Library volunteer. First, thank you for your check, which generously covers the cost of the enclosed xeroxed material.

We understand that your chief interest at this time is to research the Grummond family; however, we want to be sure that you know the importance of the Harrow family in the history of the St. Clair River District. There are many references to that family in the materials in our Collection. Also, in the Burton Collection at the Detroit Public Library, there is much Harrow material, including the Alexander Harrow Log Books.

In Jenks - History of St. Clair County, we find that Alexander Harrow was born in 1755 and died in 1812. His children were John, Mary, Catherine, George and James. This is the Mary who married your Stephen B. Grummond. On p517-18 in Jenks there is a short biography of Capt. James P. Harrow, the son of George(above) and Lucretia (Peer) Harrow.

Oaklawn Cemetery is in Clay Twp. at the edge of Algonac, Michigan. Nevertheless, Stephen B. Grummond is shown as the owner of Private Claimk # 258, on the St. Clair River, Cottrellville Twp. on a map dated 1859. As for certified records, we suggest you contact the County Clerk's Office, 201 McMorran Blvd., Port Huron, Mi.48060. The Michigan Room at the Port Huron Library has census films, and also transcripts of some marriage and cemetery records which may help you. I would suggest that you make an appointment to use those records. You could find a trip wasted if you just "drop in".

The xeroxed material is from a series of articles which appeared in The Detroit Marine Historian. Perhaps you could obtain complete copies by writing the editor. We have copied the most pertinent biographical material, some of which is quoted from Beers - History of the Great Lakes, 1899, Vol.2. Note that this account says that Stephen, Sr. shipped as a sailor at age 15. This was common then.

Hope this information is helpful and that you have good luck in your further research.

Sincerely yours,
Katheryn P. Seestedt
Mrs. Emery M. Seestedt

Jenks

Captain James P. Harrow, essentially a pioneer of Clay township, could not with propriety be omitted from a history of St. Clair county. He comes of an old Scotch family, and is the son of George Harrow and his wife, Lucretia (Peer) Harrow, and was born in Clay township on January 23, 1839. His father, George Harrow, was born on private claim No. 188, in Caley township, in 1806, and was the son of Alexander Harrow, a native of Scotland and a captain in the British navy. Alexander Harrow came to America in 1775, settling in Canada. At that time he was still in the service of the British navy. He bought a tract of land containing 14,000 acres in 1794, and the spot on which Captain James P. Harrow lives today is a part of the original purchase of his ancestor, Alexander Harrow. The latter was born in 1755, and in 1775 he entered the naval services of Canada as lieutenant of an armed ship. He served in the Revolutionary war as a British soldier, and in about 1797, he located on the lands previously mentioned. Here he spent the rest of his life and died in 1812. He was the father of five children: John, Mary, Catherine, George and James. George married Lucretia Peer, who was born near Hamilton, Canada, and came to the United States in about 1831. They were the parents of twelve children, nine of which number were living in March, 1912. They are: Mary J., Catherine, married to William Roberts; Lucy A.; Charlotte; J. P.; John, married Mary Westbrook; Henry; Washington, and William.

Clay

James P. Harrow was reared in the neighborhood in which he now lives, and was educated in the common schools of his community. He attended school until he was about seventeen years old, at which time he began sailing. After two years he was made captain and since that time, 1858, he has been upon the lakes continuously, and has come to be known well and favorably in navigation circles on all the Great Lakes. Besides his business as a captain he is an extensive farmer and cattle raiser. He sells his cattle to the local butchers thus realizing the highest prices for them. Captain Harrow is a man of excellent judgment in both departments of his work and is as good a farmer as he is a sailor, which, in view of his enviable reputation on the lakes, is quite as good a recommendation to his farming abilities as a man might well wish. As the son of one of the oldest families in Michigan, or of the United States, Captain Harrow has in every way upheld the traditions of the family name, and in spite of the fact that his first American ancestor was in the service of the British government, Captain Harrow and his sons are representatives of the finest type of American citizenship today.

On March 20, 1867, Captain Harrow was united in marriage with Marcia J. Lyons. She was born near Hamilton, Canada, on February 14, 1844. Captain and Mrs. Harrow are the parents of three children: Herbert S., William A., and Grace M. All three have received the most liberal educational advantages, and the young people are happily constituted so that they have made excellent use of the privileges their parents have so generously given them. One of the pleasantest things in the lives of these worthy parents, and the thing that has given them perhaps the most pleasure, is the fact that they were so situated that they might give to their children the advantages in an educational way which they themselves were denied. Thus their children have grown to maturity and have profited most agreeably by the splendid opportunities made for them by their indulgent parents.

Dear Mrs. Read,

Thank you very much for your letter concerning Stephen B. Grummond. I did much research on the ships owned by him but found nothing more of his ancestry than what I quoted in my first article. I checked my St. Clair County histories but found no more. You might try the BURTON HISTORICAL COLLECTION in the Detroit Main Library on Woodward Avenue or the GREAT LAKES RESEARCH CENTER at Bowling Green State University. They just may have something.

Sorry I could be of no further help. Thank you again for your letter and interest.

Sincerely,
Fr. Pete Van der Linden

THE GRUMMOND FLEETS 1855-1897 - Part I

By Fr. Pete Vander Linden

Through a fortunate series of events last April, I received a lithograph of the tug CHAMPION and tows, the familiar picture by Seth Arca Whipple, but with a difference. The tug is painted in the colors of the Grummond tug line with the logo of the line painted on her bows, her stack (black bottom, white top) in Grummond colors and the flag of the fleet (blue background with a white "G") on the tug and the first schooner in the line. This lithograph was severly damaged but Fr. Dowling was able to restore it. He noticed that an artist had painted in the Grummond colors probably for the tug office because an 1894 Beeson directory, which I possess, has this same lithograph in an ad for Grummond.

This set me off in quest of more information on Stephen B. Grummond and the ships he owned and operated. After a few trips to the Research Center at Bowling Green State University where two of our members, Rick Wright and Dave Glick, are ensconced, I dug up the following list of vessels that were owned by the prominent Detroiter of the 1800's. A short biography of Steven B. Grummond appeared in HISTORY OF THE GREAT LAKES (Beers) in 1899.

"Captain Stephen B. Grummond, in his lifetime one of Detroit's foremost business men and vessel owners, was born September 18, 1834, near what is now Marine City, on the St. Clair river, Mich., a son of Stephen and Mary (Harrow) Grummond. The mother, who died in 1877, was of Scotch descent, and was a daughter of Alexander Harrow, who came to Michigan while it was under English rule, and for many years was connected with the British navy as commander of sloops of war. The father of our subject was born in the western part of New York State, whence, in 1807, he came to Michigan and settled on the right bank of the St. Clair river, where he kept a general store, and accumulated a competency, dying in 1856.

Capt. Stephen B. Grummond passed his early life in St. Clair county, and, early evincing a liking for the life of a sailor, at the age of fifteen years began his business career by securing a position on a lake vessel, his winters being spent in school. When eighteen years old, with the savings of his own industry, and with some aid from his father, he purchased a vessel which he sailed for several years, retiring from the command of her in 1855. He then moved to Detroit, bought another vessel, and ever after was more or less engaged in buying, selling and running vessels of various kinds. By enterprise and straightforward business methods he secured a vast deal of business, and among his many ventures may be mentioned a profitable tug and wrecking business, which is now one of the largest on the lakes. He was also owner of Grummond's line of steamers, his business extending from year to year until he became recognized as one of the principal owners of lake vessels. In fact, he succeeded in accumulating a large fortune, which he invested in Detroit real estate and various business enterprises. He died January 3, 1894, after a lingering illness.

On December 18, 1861, Captain Grummond married Miss Louisa B. Prouty, of Detroit, and by her had a family of eleven children, some of whom are deceased. In politics the Captain was a Democrat until the election of Abraham Lincoln, after which he was an earnest supporter of Rupublican principles. In municipal affairs he held several of the most prominent offices in the government of his adopted city, including that of mayor. Socially, he was a man of broad and generous impulses, and at all times among the foremost in aiding every good and deserving work."

"Black Steve", as he was nicknamed by the maritime community, because of his black moustache, became highly successful in his business because of his foresight. Many of the vessels he owned or operated were recovered wrecks which he rebuilt and sold to other parties. Some of the vessels he owned for only a few years, a couple he owned twice. The following vessels in alphabetical order were in his fleets between 1855 and 1897. There may be a few missing in this list but I hope, that by printing the list, someone might fill in the blanks. Your comments are most welcome. Here is the first part of the (56) vessles that were owned or operated by Grummond. The photographs we will include are the ships we have photos of. There are many we have never seen.

1) ACADIA (US 29127) wood brig, later a barge, built in 1847 at Brownsville, NY: 118.2 x 25.5 x 8.7; 192 gross tons. In the fleet from 1866 to 1871. Document surrendered 1871, "Destroyed in 1869". Data wanted.

3) ALMEDA (US 313) wood schooner-barge built in 1847 at St. Joseph, MI by A. Gilmore. 123.0 x 25.3 x 9.5; 216 gross tons. In fleet 1879 to 1881. Disposition unknown. Data wanted.

4) ARK (US 29712) wood lighter built in 1871 at Port Huron by Henry Kewley. 100.0 x 31.5 x 4.3; 68 gross tons. Known by Port Huron residents as "Kewley"s Ark". In fleet 1879 to 1883. Document surrendered 6-3-83 "Out of Commission".

5) ATLANTIC (US 298) wood package and freight propellor built in 1863 at Cleveland by Peck and Masters. 176.5 x 28.4 x 10.7; 656 gross tons. In fleet 1882 to 1896. Renamed b) HOMER WARREN in 1901 and reduced to a steam barge. Sold Canadian in 1914 (C 130222). Sank with all hands (9) 13 miles west of Sodus Point, Lake Ontario, October 28, 1919.

6) JANE BELL (US 12782) wood schooner built in 1862 at Detroit by Campbell. 140.4 x 28.4 x 12.0; 373 gross tons. In fleet 1877 to 1880. Stranded 8 miles SW of Ashtabula, Ohio, September 7, 1880. Two lives lost.

7) A. BOODY (US 872) wood schooner built in 1863 at Toledo by G. Rogers. 137.0 x 25.0 x 11.0; 287 gross tons. In fleet 1880 to 1889. Sold Canadian (C 100762) and renamed b) E.A. FULTON. Date of sale and final disposition unknown. Out of Canadian Registry in 1921. Data wanted.

8) EDMUND A BRUSH (US 7488) wood tug built in 1864 at Detroit by Charles Hinman. 50.5 x 11.9 x 5.5; 23 gross tons. In fleet 1865 to 1866. Renamed b) E.A. BRUSH in 1866. Renamed c) ALICE J. DAY in 1870. Abandoned and cut up for firewood on Glen Lake, MI in 1920.

THE GRUMMOND FLEETS 1855-1897 - Part 2

By Fr. Pete Vander Linden

Thanks to our member, Jack Messmer of Lancaster, New York, we have additional information on the barge ALMEDA: the vessel was wrecked near Leamington, Ontario, Lake Erie on May 22, 1880. In tow of the steamer ALPENA, the ALMEDA and JOSEPH were downbound with lumber when a gale forced the vessels to anchor near Pt. Pelee. The JOSEPH became waterlogged but the ALMEDA's stern broke off before she went ashore. Her crew was rescued by the barge BANNER and within a day or so ALMEDA went to pieces. The JOSEPH was safely towed to Detroit by the ALPENA

To continue with the fleet vessels:

This ends the Grummond Fleets as far as I can document what he owned. There may have been more vessels under his ownership or operated by his company. Pat Labadie of Duluth sent me a few articles from the Detroit Free Press which hint that Steve Grummond may have owned more ships than the ones listed in these articles. Among them were: DOVE and FAVORITE in an article dated 3/20/1887 and M. C. NEFF, managed in the lumber trade in 1897. As yet we have no documentation for these. Any help from the members will be greatly appreciated.

ANNOUNCEMENTS (continued) Nominations for membership to the Advisory Board are being solicited for the election in June. Please send nominations to Wayne Garrett - 4171 Butternut Hill Drive -Troy, Michigan 48098 by April 1st.

camera outfit," said Frank Fessenden, "and was taking views for his paper. While taking pictures he would go around alone on the mountains, and sometimes would not be seen for five or six days at a time. He made his headquarters with the woodchoppers. He had long yellow hair, and I had often told him that the Indians would delight to clip that hair for him some day. He said he was safe, as the Indians would take him for a Mormon."

For some reason on this Sunday, Glover decided to leave the timber camps and go to the fort. When the photographer was told that the wood train detail had been given a Sunday holiday, he announced that he intended to walk in alone. "The woodchoppers tried to get him to remain and wait for the wood train Monday. He left one cutting and said he would go to the other, which he did. The men at this cutting also warned him of the danger, and almost certain death, if he attempted to go on to the fort alone. He told these choppers that he would return to the other cutting—which he did not do, as he was on his way to the fort alone, when he met the certain fate which overtook every man caught alone away from the garrison. Glover had escaped so many times that he apparently thought he was Indian proof." [11]

They found his naked body next morning less than two miles from the stockade. He had been scalped, his back cleft with a hatchet. Lieutenant Bisbee, commanding the detail which discovered Glover, said he was "lying face down across the roadway, a sign that he had not been brave." [12] An ambulance was attached to Bisbee's detail, the driver being the same Private Ryan who had witnessed the capture of Peter Johnson the previous day.

"We were something over a mile from the fort," Ryan recalled,[13] "and I could look across the Big Piney to the north and the Little Piney to the south and see Indians who were watching our every movement, and I did not relish the idea of going back unsupported by the soldiers, and I asked the officer [Bisbee] if he did not think the body would be all right where it was for a while, and we could get it on our return. He was obdurate, however, and said, 'Young man, if you don't obey my orders it will go hard with you.' I told him it would go hard with me also if the Indians caught me, but I had to go back just the same." *

The reason for Lieutenant Bisbee's impatience was that he was in command of a follow-up party to a large mounted detachment under Lieutenant Brown, who as usual was pursuing Indians. Early that morning a large force of hostiles had appeared out of the valley at the junction of the Pineys, galloping upon what was left of the fort's beef herd. The pickets being short of ammunition withheld fire until the raiders surprised them by using revolvers for the first time in an attack. Forty-eight head of cattle were cut loose, but this time Fred Brown was ready for immediate pursuit and was successful in recapturing all the stock. In his report of this action, Colonel Carrington said that he witnessed the swift attack and was fearful that all the pickets would be killed before a rescue party could reach them. "I loaded and fired a 12-pound field howitzer, having no one else experienced, bursting the first shell in the Indians' midst. This drove them back to the creek. A second shell dismounted one Indian, and all crossed to the hills." [14]

This day, the 17th of September, was to be a busy Monday at Fort Phil Kearny. Lieutenant Brown had scarcely returned with the recaptured beef cattle when a contract commissary train arrived with sixty thousand rounds of Springfield rifle ammunition. The contractor was also willing to sell a few bushels of corn, badly needed for reconditioning mounts. At about the same time a mail escort arrived, with a baggage wagon and an ambulance, aboard which were two contract surgeons, a young lieutenant, and his wife.

The lieutenant was George Washington Grummond, and he and his wife, Frances, who was pregnant, were the post's most romantic couple. Grummond had served through the Civil War as officer of a Michigan Volunteer Infantry regiment. He met

* One of the unsolved mysteries of Fort Phil Kearny is what happened to the photographs made there by Ridgway Glover. Twenty-two of his Laramie negatives were sent to Wenderoth, Taylor & Brown in Philadelphia. His Fort Phil Kearny negatives or prints, if ever discovered, would furnish the only photographic record ever made of scenes and personnel in and around that vanished Wyoming post.

Frances in Tennessee and married her after the war's end. Determined to pursue a military career, he applied for a regular commission, and as his war record was brilliant (he held a brevet rank of lieutenant-colonel) he was assigned to the 2nd Battalion as a second lieutenant.

In recording her arrival at Fort Phil Kearny, Frances Grummond told of seeing the picket on Pilot Hill signaling the approach of the mail party on the east road. "We moved toward the stockade," she wrote, "but just before entering a halt was made, and I looked eagerly for the occasion of the delay. It almost took my breath away for a strange feeling of apprehension came over me. We had halted to give passage to a wagon, escorted by a guard from the wood train. . . . In the wagon was the scalped and naked body of one of their comrades. . . . My whole being seemed to be absorbed in the one desire—an agonized but unuttered cry, 'Let me get within the gate!' . . . That strange feeling of apprehension never left me, enhanced as it was by my delicate condition. . . ." [15]

Frances Grummond's fears were not without prescience. Her husband was one of the three officers who would die in the Fetterman Massacre.

In the mail for Carrington was a letter from General Sherman, written at Fort Laramie where the general had visited near the end of August on a tour of western defense posts. "I shall instruct General Cooke to reinforce his force at this post," Sherman wrote, "so that expeditions in sufficient strength can go out to punish the Indians. We want to avoid a general Indian war, as long as possible, until we get the new army further advanced in recruiting. The Indians seem to oppose the opening of the new road, but that must stimulate us to its prosecution, and you may rest assured that you will be supported all that is possible. . . . We must try and distinguish friendly from hostile and kill the latter, but if you or any other commanding officer strike a blow I will approve, for it seems impossible to tell the true from the false." [16]

Carrington did not share Sherman's philosophy of ruthless extermination, but agreed with his hope of avoiding a general war as long as possible, and was grateful for any support from a general who was second in command to Ulysses Grant.

The mail also contained a petulant message from General Cooke complaining about women and children being captured on the Montana Road, reports of which he had read in newspapers. As Carrington had seen no recent newspapers and had heard of no such incidents, he was puzzled as to what Cooke meant. An even more annoying letter, dated August 15, had been sent directly from The Adjutant General's office in Washington. The A. G. complained that no returns of the post for June 1866 had been received—the reason for which should have been obvious had the Washington officials checked the date of the fort's establishment, July 14.

Toward the close of this busy day a party of about forty miners arrived from the north. They had been unsuccessful in finding gold in Montana, and had decided to prospect the Big Horn country, but on the trail down from Virginia City hostile Indians had given them a bad time. Two men had been killed only the previous day near Tongue River.

Their leader, William Bailey, reported to Carrington, requesting permission to camp near the fort for protection for themselves and their horses. When the colonel learned that Bailey had been a scout and prospector in the West for seventeen years and that his followers were all of the same rugged mold—crack shots, well armed and well mounted—he suggested that the miners would be more than welcome to spend the winter, and would be given quartermaster employment if they wished it. The miners put the offer to a vote and accepted. By nightfall they had pitched their tents in front of the fort, just across Big Piney under a slope rising to the north, and Carrington had gained for the post the equal of a company of trained cavalrymen.

Accompanying Bailey's party was a messenger from Fort C. F. Smith, with news of Jim Bridger. Old Gabe reported that he had talked with several Crows, who had informed him that at least five hundred lodges of Sioux were along the Tongue, all hostile, some armed with rifles. Bridger also had heard from the Crows of renegade white men among the Arapaho, squaw men tance and thus not waste time and ammunition finding the range.

Out in the center of the parade, two men were putting finishing touches to a towering 124-foot flagpole. They were Principal Musician John H. Barnes, who had been a ship's carpenter before his army enlistment, and Private William Daley, an expert woodworker and mechanic. They tested and retested the halyards to make certain the new garrison flag would rise smoothly to the masthead.

Most of the men, however, lined up by companies in front of the new quartermaster storehouse, and filed in to receive brand-new uniforms carefully hoarded for the celebration. Returning to their new pine-smelling barracks, they smoothed wrinkles out of trousers and blouses, burnished their boots, polished buttons and belt plates.

Officers also were refurbishing uniforms, those with wives calling upon them to assist in brightening swords and shoulder scales, and seeing that plumes were properly fixed on dress hats. Several had already moved into officers' row, and others were busily transferring from tents into still-unfinished buildings. Frances Grummond was especially proud of her large double bedstead fashioned by the carpenters, "a luxury indeed, with mattress stuffed with dried grass, army blanket and a large gay-colored shawl for counterpane."

The children naturally were caught up in the holiday spirit, and Judge Kinney, the sutler, handed out so many free gingersnaps and sugar balls to the youngsters that Mrs. Wands and Mrs. Carrington had to interrupt preparations for the big day in order to empty their sons' pockets of this oversupply of unaccustomed sweets.

October 31 was ideal for a celebration day, the sun rising out of a clean azure sky, turning the air soft and balmy and brightening the golden leaves of aspens on the Big Horn slopes.

First order of the day was an inspection and review held in the morning on the level plain between the stockade and Big Piney. Every man, every animal, every weapon, was rigidly inspected by company commanders, and the findings were mixed. In their new uniforms, hard-muscled and ruddy with health from weeks of rough outdoor life, the soldiers met all tests. Horses and mules, however, were suffering from unavoidable overstrain, and serious deficiencies were found among the arms. The few Spencer carbines were in good condition, but many Springfields showed effects of constant wear and tear. Regimental armorers had worked hard to recondition all rifles for this inspection, but more than a hundred were found unserviceable. Lieutenant Grummond, for instance, reported twenty of twenty-seven unfit for use in Company C.

With this bad but not unexpected news out of the way, companies marched back into the fort to prepare for the grand ceremonies. Early in the afternoon the bugler sounded adjutant's call. Companies formed before their respective quarters and moved out to the center of the parade, forming three sides of a square around the octagonal band platform at the base of Barnes and Daley's towering flagstaff. The fourth side of the square was occupied by a temporary platform upon which were seated officers' wives, civilian employees, and children.

On the speakers' platform with Colonel Carrington and his aides were Chaplain White and Judge Kinney. Private William Murphy, recalling afterward the presence of the obsequious sutler, noted: "There was a man who was surely 'on to his job.' He was a good diplomat. He made love to men, women, and children."[13] Mrs. Carrington was less trenchant in her brief comment: "Judge Kinney read an appropriate poem of Miss Carmichael's * chaste and spirited collection." She added: "Chaplain White offered the prayer, and principal musician Barnes presented to be read an original poem of his own, which at least did justice to his patriotic spirit."[14]

Following these preliminaries, the colonel delivered the main address. He began with a salute to those men of the command who had lost their lives since the first stakes were driven at Fort Phil Kearny.

"Fifteen weeks have passed, varied by many skirmishes and both day and night alarms. . . . In every work done your arms have been at hand. In the pine tracts or hay fields, on picket or to that. . . . I look for this month to determine their purpose, and hope yet to be able to strike a blow which they will feel more than the last, and not risk a single post on the line in the attempt."[6]

His comment, I hope yet to be able to strike a blow, may have been a subconscious reply to pressures which had been exerted upon him during the past two days by his ambitious new captain, William J. Fetterman. Since the hour of his arrival at Fort Phil Kearny, Fetterman had given Carrington no peace.

The two men were almost exact opposites in temperament, Fetterman being a man of action, a fighter pure and simple, descended from generations of professional soldiers. Before leaving his eastern assignment to journey to Phil Kearny, he had been informed that in an impending reorganization of the Army he probably would supersede Carrington as commander of the post. (In a move to increase the size of the frontier army, the War Department was planning to use the 18th Infantry's 2nd Battalion as nucleus for a new 27th Infantry Regiment. The 1st Battalion was to be enlarged to regiment strength, retaining the original 18th regimental number.)

Fetterman was eager to further his advancement, and from the first day of his arrival was openly critical of Carrington's cautious policy toward the hostiles. His old comrades of Civil War days, Fred Brown and William Bisbee, quickly sided with Fetterman. Young George Grummond was another supporter of his proposal to attack instead of defend, and a few days after Fetterman's arrival, officers and men were quoting some of the captain's reckless boasts: "A single company of regulars could whip a thousand Indians." "A full regiment could whip the entire array of hostile tribes." "With eighty men I could ride through the Sioux nation."[7]

This was the beginning of a schism between Carrington and his officers which would grow deeper and more dangerous with each passing week until the tragedy of late December.

On the second day after reporting for duty, Fetterman came to Carrington with a plan for tricking the Indians into a night ambush. He had talked it over previously with Brown and Grummond, and both had approved. The plan was to conceal a heavily armed detachment in a cottonwood thicket along Big Piney opposite the fort, hobble some mules between the thicket and the fort as live bait, and thus decoy the Indians into position for a cross-fire attack.

Carrington considered it a risky business, but granted permission after advising Fetterman to exercise the greatest caution in exposing men needlessly in any such action as a massed charge out of concealment. The Sioux, he warned, did not fight in the same manner as Fetterman's recent opponents, the soldiers of the Confederacy.

Fetterman laid his trap after dark, setting out the hobbled mules and placing his detachment carefully in the thicket. "The entire garrison," Frances Grummond wrote, "was keenfully watchful of this experiment."[8] She was worrying about her husband, George, who was out in the cottonwood thicket waiting for Indians while she waited for his safe return. Unable to sleep, she wandered about their three-room pine-log cabin. She had hung pieces of sheeting over the living room windows for shades, covered the unglazed kitchen windows with old newspapers, and carpeted her living room with gunny sacks sewn together. Crude as the cabin was, it seemed like a palace after six weeks of housekeeping in a tent, a warm dry haven in which to give birth to her expected child.

Elsewhere in the fort others also stayed up late, waiting for the Indians to dart into Fetterman's trap. Some played cards (Authors was a favorite with the women and older children) and some brought out their musical instruments or sang; others read books or reread old newspapers from the last Laramie mail. Most of the women sewed, using patterns swapped back and forth, fashioning dresses and coats from calico, flannel and linsey-woolsey procured from the sutler's store.

In the sutler's store, the usual evening crowd stayed late, talking, drinking, nibbling at cheese and crackers, half listening for a fusillade from the thicket along Big Piney. Jim Bridger was in the store, tilted back in a chair with one arm on the trading counter, his dingy, smoke-stained hat pulled down so that it half hid his weathered stubbly-bearded face. Squatting in a corner near Old Gabe was a Crow Indian who had come down with him from Fort C. F. Smith to serve as an interpreter. Almost every evening for hours at a time the Crow took this same position, speaking to no one, no one speaking to him. Bridger had neither offered nor been invited to participate in Fetterman's ambush scheme. His rheumatism was bothering him, and since his return from the north he had been in a somber mood. "Bridger would walk about, constantly scanning the opposite hills that commanded a good view of the fort," Frances Grummond wrote of him at this time, "as if he suspected Indians of having scouts behind every sage clump or fallen cottonwood." [9]

After midnight the unofficial post watch diminished in numbers as most of them gave up and went to bed. Bright moonlight exposed the hobbled mules grazing quietly between the fort and the shadowed ambush. A few meteors streaked across the sky, wolves howled back in the hills, but not one Indian appeared on the Big Piney side of the fort.

They struck instead on the opposite side, stampeding a small herd of cattle belonging to James Wheatley, by daylight soon after Fetterman quit in disgust and led his sleepy-eyed men back into the fort. That should have been Lesson Number One for Fetterman (the Indians would give him the benefit of only two more lessons). But at this time in the short life of William J. Fetterman his cocksureness would not admit that anything could be learned from a savage Indian.

For several days after the unsuccessful decoy attempt, life in the fort fell into an even pattern of military routine. Fifty of the sixty-three recently arrived cavalrymen departed on escort duties, ten accompanying a mail carrier to Fort Casper, and forty forming a heavy guard for Paymaster Almstedt en route to Fort C. F. Smith.

On the 11th an incident involving two men of Company A further deepened the rift between Carrington and Fetterman. For reasons not clear, Sergeant Garrett attacked Private Thomas Burke, verbally and physically, in full view of several officers and their wives. When a guard was summoned to put the combatants under arrest, the commanding officer of Company A interceded, resorting to violent profanity himself as he endorsed the actions of his sergeant. The commanding officer of Company A was Captain Fetterman.

Carrington, who witnessed part of the incident, was horrified, especially because the fighting and profanity occurred on a Sunday morning and in sight and hearing of women who were on their way to church services. The colonel walked on with his wife to the building which was then being used for Sunday services, listened to Chaplain David White's sermon and the music of a string band, and joined in the spirited singing of such familiar hymns as "Old Hundred," "Gloria in Excelsis," and "There Is a Light in the Window."

After services he returned to his headquarters, summoned Adjutant Bisbee, and issued a sternly worded general order (No. 38) condemning "profane swearing, verbal abuse, kicks, and blows," and declaring that such "perversion of authority . . . will be dealt with in the most decided manner." While most of his order was directed toward noncommissioned officers, one paragraph was surely aimed at Fetterman:

> Officers at this post will communicate and carefully enforce this order, seeking to inspire among non-commissioned officers, by precept and example, that calm and steady habit of command which will surely secure implicit obedience, and no less augment respect for authority requiring obedience.[10]

Although Lieutenant Bisbee's name was signed to the order as post adjutant, Bisbee recognized the implied reprimand to his old friend, Fetterman, and lost no time in informing the latter that he thoroughly disapproved of it. In a few hours, the pro-Fetterman group was referring to General Order No. 38 as "Bully 38," and not a few profane jokes about it were being privately passed around officers' row. Those who now sided openly with Fetterman against Carrington included Captains Brown and Powell, Lieutenants Bisbee and Grummond, and one of the contract surgeons, C. M. Hines.

Ironically, the officer who had twice been demoted in authority, Captain Ten Eyck, was perhaps most loyal to Carrington. Ten Eyck's nature was introspective as was Carrington's. Although he had served in the field with the 18th Regiment during for better observation and to await reinforcements from the train guard in rear, we plainly discovered larger parties of Indians in the timber waiting our further approach. One lone 'buck' only came into the open, plainly a decoy tempting us to a trap. It was not accepted, but in temptation to see what the young brave was really made of I charged him. Zip, zip, came several shots from concealed Indians in the woods to which he escaped in great haste." [14]

From this account it is clear that Bisbee had learned something of Indian fighting; he recognized a decoy trap when he saw one. Perhaps he passed a warning to Fetterman on that day, and restrained the overconfident captain from dashing on into the woods. But whether he did so or not, Fetterman must have received the lesson with skepticism, or soon forgot it.

Soon after the sounds of firing rang through the woods, a false alarm was somehow carried to the fort, spreading by word of mouth until the post bugler dashed up to Carrington's headquarters with the startling news that Indians had attacked the wood train and "all were killed." Frances Grummond and Mrs. Bisbee were both nearby and heard the announcement. "I recall as if yesterday, the blanched face of Mrs. Bisbee, knowing as she did that her husband was with the wood party." [15]

Within a few minutes Carrington himself formed a relief party and dashed out the gate at a gallop. A mile or so from the fort he met Fetterman and Bisbee, both completely unaware of the false report of their deaths. They passed it off as a joke, and as they approached the fort and saw the flag at half-mast, began swapping banter as to which of their brother officers would receive promotions now that they were no longer among the living. To Carrington such talk was in extremely bad taste, and he called the officers up sharply. Carrington was not a humorless man, but he had seen too much of death since July to joke about it in November.

A mail arrived from Laramie on Sunday the 25th with another of those oddly unrealistic messages which were coming with increased frequency from General Cooke:

> Colonel: You are hereby instructed that so soon as the troops and stores are covered from the weather, to turn your earnest attention to the possibility of striking the hostile band of Indians by surprise in their winter camps, as intimated in telegram of September 27 ultimo from these headquarters.
>
> An extraordinary effort in winter, when the Indian horses are unserviceable, it is believed, should be followed by more success than can be accomplished by very large expeditions in the summer, when the Indians can so easily scatter into deserts and mountain hiding places almost beyond pursuit.
> Four companies of infantry will be available, besides some cavalry. You have a large arrear of murderous and insulting attacks by the savages upon emigrant trains and troops to settle, and you are ordered, if there prove to be any promise of success, to conduct or to send under another officer, such an expedition.[16]

By this late date Carrington had almost despaired of ever making General Cooke understand the realities of the situation at Fort Phil Kearny. But once again he wrote of arms shortages, of the demands upon his single cavalry company for almost constant escort service. He pointed out that the cavalry's promised new carbines had not arrived; they were armed only with obsolete rifles and antiquated Starr carbines. The infantry companies required at least one hundred Springfields to replace broken and worn-out pieces. "I shall look for another company of cavalry soon," he added, "as mentioned in previous telegram." And then because there was nothing else he could do in the face of a direct order, he concluded: "I will, in person, command expeditions, when severe weather confines them [the Indians] to their villages, and make the winter one of active operations in different directions, as best affords chance of punishment." [17]

Before that Sunday ended, the Indians gave Carrington a chance to strike a blow. They made a daring raid upon the beef herd, cutting out sixteen head of cattle. In a mood of extreme anger, the colonel took charge of the pursuit, ordering out every available mounted man. Lieutenant Bingham led off with his cavalry company, and Fetterman, Brown and Grummond commanded separate mounted detachments. None of them overtook

The President was many hundreds of miles from Fort Phil Kearny, of course, but had he been there on December 6, he might have been surprised at the "friendly relations" manifested by a large band of Sioux which attacked a wood train that day.

Around one o'clock in the afternoon, pickets on Pilot Hill began waving signal flags around their heads, repeating the warning five times in succession to indicate large parties were engaged in the attack. As soon as he was apprised of the action, Carrington climbed to his lookout tower and swept the horizon with his field glass. The wood train was four miles west of the fort, just south of Sullivant Hills. Off to the north along Lodge Trail Ridge, other Indians were flashing mirror signals. Several mounted warriors were within two miles of Big Piney, moving down the ridge toward the fort.

In keeping with his new policy of striking a blow at every opportunity, Carrington immediately ordered all serviceable horses saddled. To Captain Fetterman he assigned Bingham's cavalry company and one squad of mounted infantry, and ordered the captain to gallop straight west, relieve the wood train, and drive the Indians back across the Piney. At the same time Carrington with Lieutenant Grummond's mounted squad would sweep around to the north between Sullivant Hills and Lodge Trail Ridge and endeavor to cut off the Indians' retreat.

After five months of directing pursuit of the hostiles, Carrington could assume that "there was no outlet for the attacking force, except across Lodge Trail Ridge or between that ridge and Peno Head, about nine miles distant from the fort." [4] With Lieutenant Grummond at his side, the colonel led his twenty-four mounted men rapidly up the valley of the Piney, keeping to the south bank. The temperature was below freezing, with a cold wind off the Big Horns. As soon as the column came opposite the slope of Lodge Trail Ridge, he signaled for a crossing of the Piney. The mounted Indians previously sighted along the creek had disappeared, and only three were visible on the upper ridge.

Big Piney was sheeted with ice, but Carrington turned his horse into the creek, hoping its hoofs would break the crust. Instead the animal floundered, and Carrington slid from his saddle. He kicked disgustedly at the ice with his boots, breaking a passage for the others as he waded the nervous mount across in three feet of freezing water.

When all were across, he ordered march resumed up the eastern slope of Lodge Trail Ridge. They were now four miles from the post, and in a few minutes the Bozeman Road came into view off to the right. Four Indians, widely spaced, held their horses on the road while a war party attempted hurried concealment in a nearby ravine. Carrington saw all of them clearly, quickly counting thirty-two. "At the same time I saw on the hills across the creek over one hundred Indians descending to the creek, followed by . . . Fetterman's command, which had properly carried out the original order on the left. Delivering a sharp fire at a small party in my way, who instantly fled, I pushed on at a gallop westward along the ridge." [5]

Reaching the end of Lodge Trail Ridge, the colonel saw that he must bring his men down at full speed if he hoped to intercept the Indians being driven by Fetterman. At the same time he warned his men not to scatter as they guided their horses down the rough terrain. During the descent, Lieutenant Grummond's eagerness overcame his caution. He galloped so far ahead that Carrington sent an orderly after him, with an order to "keep with me and obey orders or return to the post." The orderly, Private D. Harman, failed to overtake the lieutenant.

"Upon descending the ridge," Carrington later reported, "I found to my surprise fifteen cavalry, dismounted and without an officer. I passed through them, ordering them to mount and follow upon the gallop." Before the colonel could slow his horse to a walk, the trail jogged sharply, and he found himself suddenly blocked by a band of yelling Indians spread along a low hill. He swung in his saddle. Only six men were still with him, one of them being Bugler Adolf Metzger of Bingham's cavalry.

"Where's Lieutenant Bingham?" Carrington demanded.

Metzger replied that Bingham had gone down the road around a hill to the left, and Carrington realized then that the cavalry leader must have dashed ahead, the Indians deliberately allowing him to pass through into a trap. He ordered Metzger to sound recall, the bugle notes echoing back from the hills in the cold air.

Meanwhile several mounted infantrymen strung out behind Carrington had come up, and he was ordering them to spread out in skirmish formation just as the first wave of Indians swarmed from the base of the hill and began attacking. Private James McGuire, one of Bingham's troopers, was thrown from his wounded mount. A warrior dashed forward, intent upon counting coup with a raised war club. Carrington swung over toward McGuire, dismounted, and drove the Indian away. At least one hundred warriors were circling and yelling, but the soldiers had dismounted and formed a defensive front. Firing was steady, the carbines crackling, the rifle fire slower spaced, ramrods glistening in the pale sunlight. Along the ridges to right and left, Indian lookouts were flashing mirror signals and waving white flags. There was still no sign of Bingham or Grummond.

For twenty minutes Carrington was engaged in what would be the only real military action of his entire career. "One saddle," he reported afterward, "was emptied by a single shot fired by myself."[6] At the end of the twenty minutes, Captain Fetterman's slow-moving squad arrived, and the attackers immediately vanished over the hill.

Conferring briefly with Fetterman, Carrington informed him that Bingham and Grummond and probably several men were missing somewhere off to the right, and he ordered an immediate movement in that direction. A few minutes later a drumming of hoofs sounded on their front, and Lieutenant Grummond and three men dashed suddenly into view, closely pursued by seven Indians, who veered away, shaking their lances, as they sighted the oncoming relief force.

Exactly what words Carrington and Grummond exchanged as they brought their sweated horses together are unrecorded, but if one may believe hearsay accounts, the young lieutenant was more angry than frightened, and "very hotly asked the colonel if he was a fool or a coward to allow his men to be cut to pieces without offering help."[7] If Grummond did say this, Carrington never made public record of it, possibly out of deference to the lieutenant's widow, who in after years became the colonel's second wife. At that moment on the field of action, Carrington was more interested in finding Lieutenant Bingham who undoubtedly was in trouble. Grummond told Carrington that as he was descending Lodge Trail Ridge he had sighted Bingham and hurried forward to join him, assuming that Bingham's cavalry company was close behind.

Bingham's cavalrymen, however, had fallen back "in the most unaccountable manner," as Fetterman put it in his report. "I, assisted by Captain Brown and Lieutenant Wands," the captain added, "used every exertion to check [the retreat]. The Indians, corralling and closing around us, it was plain the retreat, if continued, would be a rout and massacre." Instead of staying with his men, Bingham chose to dash forward. "I cannot account for this movement on the part of an officer of such unquestionable gallantry," Fetterman declared, somewhat with the same puzzlement that his surviving fellow officers would ponder his own fatal actions two weeks later.[8]

Of this same incident, Lieutenant Wands said that he and Captain Brown, "leveling their guns" at the cavalrymen, warned them they would shoot if the retreat was not halted. At the same time, according to Wands, Bingham called back, "Come on," beckoned, and went ahead with some of his men in the direction of Carrington's squad which could be seen a half mile away descending Lodge Trail Ridge.[9]

While it was never possible to determine why Bingham acted as he did, the reason could be blamed upon his lack of experience in Indian warfare. The same excuse could be given for the actions of his men, most of whom were green recruits, some untrained even in horsemanship. They had made several escort journeys with the mail, but this was their first close encounter with armed hostiles. Like most newcomers to the frontier, they attributed almost superhuman powers to the Indians and dreaded close fighting with them.

When Grummond overtook Bingham on that narrow twisting trail beyond Lodge Trail Ridge, the cavalry officer and the few men still with him were pursuing a single dismounted Indian. This Indian was performing the oldest trick of frontier warfare, the decoy trap, and as the soldiers galloped down Peno Valley, dozens of warriors began springing from concealment in their rear. One of the men in the trap who lived to tell the tale was Private John Guthrie of Bingham's C Company. Bingham, said Guthrie, was the first to be hit. "He fell off his horse, shot in the head. This was a bad place to be, as we could not use our arms very well on the Indians. The red skins tried to save our horses for their own use. This move is what saved our lives, they tried to lasso us from the horses." [10]

In the confusion of hand-to-hand fighting, Grummond and three men broke out of the surround, the lieutenant using his saber, the men swinging their rifles as clubs. They were in pell-mell flight from seven Indians armed with lances when they met Carrington's search party.

The search for Bingham now continued, and within an hour they found his body "in the brush . . . shot with over fifty arrows, lying over an old stump." [11] Nearby was Sergeant G. R. Bowers, E Company, an experienced Civil War veteran. He had slain three Indians with his revolver, but his skull was split with a hatchet, and he died before an ambulance could arrive from the fort.

It was midafternoon, only two hours having passed since the two mounted forces left the fort, but the cold was intensifying, the low December sun hidden by hills, a gray cloud scud covering the sky. Not an Indian was in view anywhere. Carrington called off the pursuit, asking for a casualty count. Bingham and Bowers were dead, one sergeant and four privates wounded. Eight horses were out of action, three so badly wounded they had to be destroyed.

As for the hostiles, no one could be sure of their losses, as all casualties had been carried from the field. Carrington estimated ten enemy killed, several wounded. But not an officer or man in the field that day could take any pride in his accomplishments. Blunders, disobedience of orders, misunderstandings, recklessness, cowardice, had almost brought disaster to the fort's defenders. Bingham had left his confused company of green recruits to ride to his death; Grummond had disobeyed Carrington and almost met the same fate as Bingham. Lieutenant Wands, who had been ordered to ride with Carrington's party, had instead joined Fetterman. (He claimed afterward he misunderstood Carrington's order.) When Carrington dispatched a written order to Fort Phil Kearny for reinforcements and an ambulance, he specifically asked for Captain Powell to head the relief. But Powell remained in his quarters, ordering Lieutenant Wilbur Arnold to go in his place. Carrington himself was not blameless. When he came off Lodge Trail Ridge, he outrode his own men, galloped through Bingham's disorganized cavalry, and almost ran headlong without support into an Indian ambush. Not every one of this succession of military discords could be laid to the wide cleavage between Carrington and his officers, but most of them could be. The pattern for disaster on December 21 was laid on that afternoon of December 6.

After returning with their casualties to the warmth and security of post quarters, the participants in the day's blunders spent the remaining hours before taps in recounting and reassessing their experiences. One of the cavalrymen, offering a reason why Bingham left his disorganized command, said that the lieutenant's horse "ran away with him and he could not restrain him." Another declared that "Bingham lost one pistol, and after firing the other, so excited did he become that he threw it away." Private John Donovan, who had been riding in the front of the action, said that Lieutenant Bingham was armed only with a saber, and that both the lieutenant and Sergeant Bowers had been pulled from their horses by Indians. Frank Fessenden's later account corroborates Donovan's: "The savages attempted to catch several of our boys by trying to put their strong bows over their necks and drag them off their horses." Fessenden also reported that Lieutenant Grummond told him "that he shut his eyes and literally slashed his way out, as did many of the others. Grummond said he could hear his saber 'click' every time he cleaved an Indian's skull." [12]

In recording the reunion with her husband after the fight, Frances Grummond wrote: "We both sat for a long time in silence, then mingled our tears in gratitude for the wonderful deliverance . . . he said that he abandoned the use of spurs and jammed his sword into the weary beast to urge him to greater effort, followed by the chief, in full war-dress, with spear at his back so near that but for his good horse he would then and there have met a terrible fate. . . . A sense of apprehension that I seemed to have been conscious of ever since my arrival at the post, deepened from that hour. No sleep came to my weary eyes, except fitfully, for many nights, and even then in my dreams I could see him riding madly from me with the Indians in pursuit."[13]

Even the cocky Captain Fetterman seemed to be sobered by the day's events. When he handed his official report to Carrington he professed to have learned a lesson. "This Indian war," he said, "has become a hand-to-hand fight, requiring the utmost caution."[14]

Unfortunately, Fetterman forgot this lesson, the last he would learn from the Indians. Jim Bridger, growing more melancholy every day, must have sensed that he would. "Your men who fought down south are crazy," he told Carrington. "They don't know anything about fighting Indians."[15]

But if Fetterman forgot what he learned, the Indians remembered everything which happened that day. From the high ridges, Red Cloud and other leading chiefs had observed the foolish actions of the soldiers, and later that week in the Sioux lodges along Tongue River, they heard many details of the fighting from a subchief, Yellow Eagle, who had led the main attacks. Years afterward, white men would learn from the Indians that the fight of December 6 convinced the hostiles that they could overpower and destroy any force sent out from the fort to fight them. They decided that on the first auspicious day after the coming of the next full moon they would lay a great trap of more than a thousand warriors, make another feint at the wood train, work the decoy trick, lure as many men out as possible, kill them all, and then burn the fort.

As the gloomy hours of December 6 dragged toward midnight, voices of sentries on the stockade echoed "All's well!" But the fate of eighty-one men in Fort Phil Kearny was already cast. Doom waited for them only a fortnight away, along the frozen flats of Peno Creek.

They buried Lieutenant Bingham and Sergeant Bowers on Sunday the 9th. As Bingham had been a Mason, he was accorded the honors of that society, Lieutenant Grummond conducting the rites with the assistance of six other members. Chaplain White led the religious services, and when the chaplain came to speak of Sergeant Bowers, Captain Fred Brown stepped forward and placed his long-treasured Army of the Cumberland badge upon the breast of the dead sergeant. Brown, Bisbee, Powell and other veterans of the regiment had soldiered with Sergeant Bowers from Stone's River to Atlanta and held him in high regard.

In wooden boxes lined with tin, the dead were buried in the little cemetery at the foot of Pilot Hill; their graves were mounded with frozen earth and then covered with stones against the wolves.

Letters had to be written to relatives, and the duty of informing Miss Stella Bingham, St. Charles, Minnesota, of the death of her brother, Horatio, was assigned to Captain Fetterman.

> I send you herewith an Inventory of his Effects taken by me by virtue of my position as his Military Administrator. The money has been forwarded to the Adjutant General, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C., by applying to him it can easily be obtained by his heirs . . . the sword, sash and epaulettes, with private correspondence etc. have been sent to you. His other effects were sold at auction & the proceeds as before stated sent to the Adjt. Gen. . . . This is the customary manner of disposing of the effects of deceased officers, which it is supposed his heirs will not want, and which cannot be easily sent to them. Your brother was much esteemed by all who knew him, and his death is severely felt by all. He was buried with military and Masonic honors and the whole garrison attended his remains to the grave, all being desirous to pay their last tribute of respect to one whom all esteemed so highly.

Ironically, only a few days later another appointed military administrator would be writing a similar letter concerning the composer of this one.

As soon as funeral services were ended, a mail escort of one corporal and eight troopers from the cavalry gathered in front of headquarters. Joining this escort were Lieutenant Bisbee and his wife and son, who boarded a canvas-topped army wagon which had been especially prepared for winter travel to Laramie. Floor and sides were double-boarded, and a stove had been placed inside. "My outfit," wrote Bisbee, "consisted of buffalo skin cap, two woolen shirts under a heavy blanket suit, buffalo-lined hip boots over two pairs of woolen socks, two pairs of gloves. . . ." [17] All of Bisbee's fellow officers were on hand to wish him luck in his new assignment at department headquarters in Omaha, and Bisbee in turn gave his blessing to the lieutenant succeeding him as post adjutant, Lieutenant Wilbur F. Arnold.

In the mailbag for Omaha were Carrington's full reports of the "skirmish with a body of Indians, numbering in the aggregate not less than three hundred warriors," with accounts of the deaths of Bingham and Bowers. "I need mittens for the men," he added, "and especially do I need every officer I can get. The cavalry has none. There are but six for six companies, including staff. . . . This is all wrong. There is much at stake; I will take my full share, but two officers to a company is small allowance enough, with mercury at zero and active operations on hand." [18]

Beginning the second week of December, Carrington tightened the duties of his "six officers for six companies." Captain Powell was assigned to drill C Company, 2nd Cavalry, in such basic elements as mounting and dismounting, forming columns of twos and fours, and firing carbines and pistols by command. Daily at retreat, Captain Fetterman drilled the infantry in loading and firing by file and by numbers. Lieutenant Grummond was given full command of the mounted infantry, with orders to keep all serviceable horses—about fifty—saddled and ready for pursuit from dawn to dusk.

During the fortnight following the fight of the 6th, the Indians did not approach the fort or the pinery, yet scarcely a day passed without their scouting parties appearing on distant hills, signaling with mirrors or flags. Carrington doubled the guards assigned to wood trains, and maintained a state of watchful waiting. The weather continued bitter cold, and Surgeon Horton's hospital records showed a sharp increase in rheumatic complaints and frostbitten ears.

The Indians made their long-planned decoy attack on the 19th, and as soon as the vigilant Carrington saw the picket on Pilot Hill signaling "wood train under attack," he ordered his most cautious officer, Captain Powell, to command the relief party. Orders were explicit: "Heed the lessons of the 6th. Do not pursue Indians across Lodge Trail Ridge." [19] Powell performed his task to the letter, keeping his well-drilled cavalry company and Grummond's mounted infantry in check and permitting no individual dashes or pursuits. Neither he nor Carrington knew, of course, that the Indians wanted no fight near the pinery; their objective was the same as that of the 6th—to draw the soldiers off, scatter them with decoys, and attack the small parties in force. But Powell did not pursue, and the hostiles withdrew without inflicting or suffering any casualties.

A fight had been avoided, yet as if anticipating criticism from those of his officers who believed in taking the offensive at every opportunity, Carrington explained to his staff that he intended to continue his policy of caution until more reinforcements arrived. The immediate objective, he added, was to continue movement of timber supplies from the pinery to the fort so as to complete winter quarters for such troops as the Department of the Platte might later send him. He also covered his policy of restraint by dispatching a special courier to Laramie with a telegram for transmittal to Omaha: "Indians appeared today and fired on wood train, but were repulsed. They are accomplishing nothing, while I am perfecting all details of the post and preparing for active movements." (At the time of his appearance before a court of inquiry in the spring of 1867, Carrington told of sending Captain Powell to relieve the train. "He did his work —pressed the Indians toward Lodge Trail Ridge, but having peremptory orders not to cross it, he returned with the train, reporting the Indians in large force, and that if he had crossed the ridge he never would have come back with his command.") [20] two Indians appeared on the slope across Big Piney. They dismounted beyond rifle range, wrapped themselves in red blankets, and sat down near a tree to watch the action inside the fort. The time was now almost eleven o'clock.

At the first alarm, Carrington ordered Captain Powell to take command of the relief party. The colonel had been satisfied with the efficient yet cautious manner in which Powell had handled the Indians on the 19th, and saw no reason to use another officer now. When Captain Fetterman reported in front of headquarters with Company A, however, he reminded Carrington that he outranked Powell and demanded firmly that he be given the relief command.

With some misgivings Carrington acquiesced, and told Fetterman to move out with his own company, A, and a detachment of C Company. Lieutenant Grummond would follow with the cavalry in time to overtake the infantry before they reached the besieged wood train. "Support the wood train," Carrington ordered. "Relieve it and report to me. Do not engage or pursue Indians at its expense. Under no circumstances pursue over the ridge, that is, Lodge Trail Ridge."[23]

Fetterman saluted and turned back to the assembled infantrymen. Sergeants began barking orders, and Companies A and C moved out on the double for the south gate. Carrington turned to his acting adjutant, Lieutenant Wands, and asked him to hurry after Fetterman's troops, halt them at the gate, and repeat the orders. The time was now 11:15.

Meanwhile Lieutenant Grummond had formed his horsemen for a hurried inspection. Carrington himself walked down the line of dismounted men, inspecting rifles and carbines. A number of the mounted infantry were dismissed from formation because of ammunition shortages or faulty weapons, but all of the twenty-seven cavalrymen reporting for duty passed inspection. Only a few days earlier Carrington had transferred the regimental band's Spencer carbines to the troopers.

During the inspection Private Thomas Maddeon, the regimental armorer, stepped forward and asked permission to join the relief party. Maddeon, a favorite of the colonel, had often expressed a desire for action. Carrington glanced at his rifle and told him to join a small detail from H Company. Captain Brown also appeared, eager for "one more chance," as he expressed it, "to bring in the scalp of Red Cloud myself."[24] He added with a smile that he had arranged to borrow a mount from Jimmy Carrington—the mottled pony, Calico. Two other eager volunteers were James Wheatley and Isaac Fisher, civilian employees, both of whom had been officers during the Civil War. They were armed with new 16-shot Henry rifles, and were the envy of the infantrymen with their obsolete single-shot muzzle-loading Springfields.

"I was standing in front of my door next to the commanding officer's headquarters," Frances Grummond recorded, "and both saw and heard all that transpired. I was filled with dread and horror at the thought that after my husband's hairbreadth escape scarcely three weeks before he could be so eager to fight the Indians again. . . .

"To my husband was given the order, 'Report to Captain Fetterman, implicitly obey orders, and never leave him.' Solicitude on my behalf prompted Lieutenant Wands to urge my husband 'for his family's sake to be prudent and avoid rash movements, or any pursuit,' and with these orders ringing in their ears they left the gate. Before they were out of hearing Colonel Carrington sprang upon the banquet inside the stockade (the sentry walk), halted the column, and in clear tones heard by everybody, repeated his orders more minutely, 'Under no circumstances must you cross Lodge Trail Ridge;' and the column moved quickly from sight."[25] As Grummond's mounted men left the gate, the time was nearing 11:30.

Carrington, watching from the sentry platform, saw that Fetterman was not following the wagon road which led south of Sullivant Hills but had turned into the north trail which ran between the hills and Lodge Trail Ridge. This was the same route which Carrington himself had followed on the 6th when the objective had been to take the Indians in reverse, and the colonel assumed now that Fetterman had a similar plan in mind. Within a minute or so, Grummond was swinging his mounted column into the trail; he overtook Fetterman's foot soldiers at the crossing of Big Piney just south of Lodge Trail Ridge.

"I remarked the fact," Carrington reported later, "that he [Fetterman] had deployed his men as skirmishers, and was evidently moving wisely up the creek and along the southern slope of Lodge Trail Ridge, with good promise of cutting off the Indians as they should withdraw, repulsed at the train, and his position giving him perfect vantage ground to save the train if the Indians pressed the attack. It is true that the usual course was to follow the road directly to the train, but the course adopted was not an error, unless there was then a purpose to disobey orders."[26]

At about this same time Carrington suddenly remembered that no surgeon had been assigned to Fetterman's command, and he immediately ordered Assistant Surgeon C. M. Hines and two orderlies to mount up and ride directly for the wood train. If a surgeon was not needed there, Hines was to swing around Sullivant Hills and join Fetterman. The surgeon and his escort had scarcely galloped out of the gate when the pickets on Pilot Hill signaled that the wood train was no longer under attack, that the wagons had broken corral, and were proceeding unmolested toward the pinery.

During the next few minutes, Carrington's attention was distracted by a party of about twenty Indians which appeared across Big Piney near the Bozeman Road ford. Noting that they were within howitzer range, he ordered the gunners to drop a few case shot among them. At the first explosion, thirty more Indians were flushed out of the brush, one falling from his pony. The party scattered, fleeing toward the valley north of Lodge Trail Ridge.

For the first time since the alarm, Carrington relaxed. He stepped down from his position on the banquette and walked across the graveled street before officers' row and entered the rear of his headquarters. He did not know, of course, that the Indians at that moment were engaged in decoying Fetterman's men over Lodge Trail Ridge.

A few minutes before twelve o'clock, Fetterman's command was moving up Lodge Trail Ridge, with Grummond's cavalry out on the flanks and advancing ahead of the infantry. Along the slope, little bands of decoys raced ponies back and forth, the young warriors yipping their wolflike barks, taunting the soldiers, waving blankets to frighten the soldiers' horses. When Fetterman gave orders to the infantry to fire, the decoys danced their ponies away, but as soon as the firing stopped, the Indians darted back into range, daring the soldiers to follow and shoot again.

Fetterman had seen no fighting such as this when he soldiered with Sherman in Georgia. He was accustomed to orthodox lines of battle. He knew how to form salients for defense, to storm rifle pits, to handle men under heavy artillery fire. But these Indian warriors, unlike his former Confederate adversaries, refused to follow the rules laid down in military manuals.

As he urged his infantrymen forward to overtake the cavalrymen on the crest of the ridge, the small party of Indians which had been fired upon by Carrington's howitzers came galloping along the Bozeman Road just below. These Indians slowed and joined the decoys. For a short while Fetterman held his position, the fort yet in view, his infantrymen still firing by command at an occasional daring Indian who rode within easy rifle range. When the decoys saw that the soldiers were reluctant to pursue, they became more reckless than ever, zigzagging their ponies and screaming insults.

By this time the warriors who had made the original attack upon the wagon train appeared to the south, some following Peno Creek valley, while many were beginning to ascend the slope of Lodge Trail Ridge in Fetterman's rear. It is possible that at this moment Fetterman made a hasty decision to drop north off Lodge Trail Ridge, kill as many of the outnumbered decoys as possible, and then swing back east along the Bozeman Road to the fort.

But if he intended to turn east when he struck the Bozeman Road, he changed his mind and turned west. Perhaps the tantalizing decoys offered too many easy targets to disregard. At high noon Fetterman gave the command to move, the cavalry at a walk so the infantry could keep closed up. They entered the Bozeman Trail where it ran along a narrow ridge sloping to the northwest, and followed this descent past a few large boulders toward the flats of Peno Creek. There were eighty-one men, about half of them mounted, the cavalrymen so eager to overtake the decoys that the gap began widening between horsemen and infantry. The firing was fairly regular now and several decoys were wounded, some fatally. Every hoofbeat, every footfall, however, brought these eighty-one men closer to the great ambush—two thousand Sioux, Cheyennes and Arapaho, waiting in concealment in the high grass of the flats and behind the rocky ridges on either side of the trail.

Among the individual Sioux and Cheyenne warriors who risked their lives to lure the soldiers into the trap were several who during the next decade would become famous chiefs—Crazy Horse, Dull Knife, Black Shield, Big Nose, White Bull. Crazy Horse won a great name for himself that day with his acts of defiance, sometimes dismounting within rifle range and pretending to ignore the presence of the soldiers and the screams of their bullets.

Years later in his old age Red Cloud claimed to have directed the fighting, but the testimony of several Indian participants indicates that the Oglala leader was not present. On that day, they said, he was either on his way down from Tongue River, or on a recruiting mission to the north. But whether he was there or not, the ambush was the fruition of Red Cloud's long summer campaign of harassment, put into execution by such leaders as High Back Bone, Red Leaf and Little Wolf.

A few minutes past noon, the decoys were beginning to ford the broken ice of Peno Creek, with Grummond's cavalry pressing pursuit. The infantrymen, now well within the silent ambush, were marching rapidly. As soon as all the decoys were across the creek they separated into two parties, riding away from each other, and then turning, came back and crossed files. This crossing of files was the prearranged signal for attack.

A moment later it seemed that every clump of yellow grass on the Peno flats had been transformed into a hostile Indian, the mass swarming up on foot like a gale-blown prairie fire toward the road. Beyond them other warriors on horseback also sprang from concealment, their hoofbeats like sudden thunder. And from the left came the Cheyennes, most of them mounted. The Indians' concentrated yelling drowned out commands from Fetterman and the other officers.

At the first assault Grummond managed to halt the cavalry, Fetterman quickly closing the gap with his foot soldiers. The civilians, Wheatley and Fisher, and four or five mounted infantrymen, all seasoned Civil War veterans who were riding the point, dismounted quickly. These men formed a defensive ring and delivered such concentrated fire that the first wave of attack was blunted. In that first minute of confusion a lone mounted Miniconjou, impelled by some mystical dream of glory, charged down the Bozeman Road from the rear, racing right into the infantrymen until he was slain. A moment later another Sioux on foot performed a similar act of reckless courage, and also died.

The air was now filled with arrows, warriors on foot closing in, pony riders circling, their war whoops reverberating in the cold damp wind. Yet Fetterman somehow managed to start his infantrymen back upslope to the nearest cover, a collection of flat boulders.

Whether Lieutenant Grummond ordered the cavalry to cover the infantry is not certain; the horsemen may have broken formations in terror. They swung up the hill to the left, all except Wheatley, Fisher, and the handful of men who had dismounted and formed a circle of defense. Nor can anyone be certain when or how Grummond died, but it is probable that he was killed early in the fighting, either in a vain effort to keep the cavalry with the infantry, or in a gallant rear-guard covering action. Long afterward some of the Indians who were there said a pony-soldier chief was killed on the road and that his men then gave way and fled up the ridge. Others told of a soldier chief on a white horse who fought a brave delaying action, cutting off an Indian's head with a single stroke of his saber. All that is known for certain is that Grummond's body was found on the road beside that of Sergeant Augustus Lang of Company A, somewhere between the infantry's position and the defensive ring of Wheatley and Fisher.

In any case, cavalry and infantry were separated in the first fury of attack, the men on foot facing a thousand warriors so close it was possible to see the color of their war paint and the metal ornaments and brass studs of their shields. Feathered arrows streamed like flights of bright speeding birds, and the trapped soldiers felt the pains of sharp heads wrapped in sinew, driving deep into flesh, drawing warm blood to trickle along the grooves of shafts until it froze in the bitter air. Neither Sioux nor Cheyennes carried many rifles that day, but their quivers were filled with arrows which they had learned from boyhood to drive with accuracy into the thickest buffalo hides.

How the eighty-one trapped men died, the order of their dying, can only be reconstructed from the positions of the dead, the record of cartridge shells, the bloodstains of the enemy, and later accounts of Indian survivors. As soon as the retreating infantry reached the rock formation, they flung themselves down and began firing. Fetterman then formed a thin skirmish line facing the Oglalas and Cheyennes to north and east, the Miniconjous to south and west, and ordered his men to fire at will. For several minutes fighting was intense, the infantry firing volleys from their muzzle-loaders while the cavalry floundered about without an officer, a hundred yards above on the hillside, their Spencer carbines scarcely used.

Farther down the road, Wheatley and Fisher, supported by the Springfields of five or six soldiers who had joined them, kept up a rattling fire with their Henrys. They knocked down several Indian ponies whose riders tried to rush them, and then used the animals' bodies as cover. Dead and wounded Indians were ringed around them.

For fifteen or twenty minutes, the rock-sheltered infantrymen were able to hold the attackers off. Then their ammunition began to run short. Men bunched together, and the Indians sensing their growing panic moved in closer, Miniconjous on one side, Oglalas on the other—so close that Miniconjous were killing Oglalas, and Oglalas were killing Miniconjous, with their own arrows. The Sioux leaped over the rocks, using lance and war clubs, and some of the infantrymen broke away an started running up the hill toward the cavalry position. Indian pursued them. One warrior running with a raised bow to coun coup came within two steps of a soldier before one of the man' comrades shot the Indian down.

Some time during the fighting, Captain Fred Brown release his borrowed pony, Calico, and joined Fetterman among th boulders. The two officers were together at the last, their am munition exhausted, capture and torture almost inevitable. A they had sworn to do, each man saved one unexpended car tridge. At the end they faced each other—the ambitious, good natured, balding quartermaster, and the determined and over confident infantry veteran who had boasted that eighty men could ride through the Sioux nation. With revolvers held against each other's temple, they counted quickly in unison to three, and squeezed triggers.

About this time, the position held by Wheatley and Fisher and the six infantrymen was overrun. The defenders fought with gunstocks, bayonets and knives until the last man was slain.

The cavalry, knowing that they would be next, had already dismounted and started climbing farther up the ridge, leading their horses. A handful of infantrymen joined them, and two or three surviving noncommissioned officers tried to keep some sort of military order. On the high slope, snow had formed ice sheets which made walking difficult, and when they reached the rocky summit they abandoned any hopes they may have had of descending the south side and racing for the fort. The south slope was alive with Indians coming up from the other fork of the Peno.

There was nothing the survivors could do now but seek cover among the rocks and try to keep alive until help could come from the fort. They turned their horses loose (there was no place for horse holders to go) and moved along the ridge toward a cluster of large boulders. For a few minutes the showers of arrows lessened as the Indians devoted their attention to capturing abandoned cavalry horses. Then the fight was resumed lives of all, rather than allow the Indians to capture any of the inmates alive."[46]

For Frances Grummond the events of the day were only a confirmation of the forebodings which had filled her thoughts since the September day when she and her husband had arrived at Phil Kearny. All through the late afternoon, the officers' wives had waited in the Wands' quarters, and soon after the arrival of the wagons, Margaret Carrington came to inform Frances that Lieutenant Grummond had not been found alive. Nor was he among the recovered dead. Certain there was little hope that Frances would ever see her husband alive again, Margaret insisted that she move into the Carringtons' quarters so that she would not be alone.

Early in the evening Frances received an unexpected caller, a swarthy man in his middle thirties, tough and wiry of frame, with a pointed black beard and bright piercing eyes. He was John (Portugee) Phillips, a mining partner of James Wheatley and Isaac Fisher, all of whom had come to Phil Kearny in August and accepted jobs with the quartermaster. Had he not been engaged in hauling water to fill the post's water barrels at the time of the Indian alarm, Phillips no doubt would have volunteered and met the same fate as his partners.

Although he was an admirer of Lieutenant Grummond, Phillips had never before so much as spoken to Frances. Perhaps he felt it his duty now to reassure her that she and her unborn child would be protected. He began speaking in his strange soft accent (Phillips was born in the Azores of Portuguese parents), explaining that he had offered his services as a messenger to Laramie for reinforcements. "I will go if it costs me my life. I am going for your sake."

Writing of this moment in later life, Frances Grummond recalled that Portugee Phillips had tears in his eyes as he handed her a wolf robe in a sort of symbolic gesture. "Here is my wolf robe. I brought it for you to keep and remember me by it if you never see me again."[47]

While this interview was in progress, Colonel Carrington was in his adjoining lamplit office, penning dispatches to General Cooke in Omaha and to General Grant in Washington.

These messages were almost incoherent, hastily written attempts to report the disaster, combined with desperate pleas for help. "Do send me reinforcements forthwith," he begged General Cooke. "Expedition now with my force is impossible. I risk everything but the post and its stores. I venture as much as any one can, but I have had today a fight unexampled in Indian warfare." As yet, he knew only that forty-nine bodies had been recovered, but company roll calls had not yet been taken, and he estimated thirty-five dead still to be brought in, three more than the actual number. He listed Fetterman, Brown, and Grummond among the dead, although the latter's body had not yet been found. "No such mutilation as that today is on record. Depend upon it that the post will be held so long as a round or a man is left. Promptness is the vital thing. Give me officers and men. Only the new Spencer arms should be sent; the Indians are desperate; I spare none, and they spare none."

To a copy of this plea, he attached a covering message direct to General Grant:

> I send copy of dispatch to General Cooke simply as a case when in uncertain communication, I think you should know the facts at once. I want all my officers. I want men. Depend upon it, as I wrote in July, not treaty but hard fighting is to assure this line. I have had no reason to think otherwise. I will operate all winter, whatever the season, if supported; but to redeem my pledge to open and guarantee this line, I must have re-enforcements and the best of arms up to my full estimate.[48]

In the folklore of the western frontier, the ride of Portugee Phillips from Phil Kearny to Laramie has achieved a status equal to that of Paul Revere's ride. And as in the case of the New Englander's exploit, there also seems to have been more than one rider. A sergeant writing from Phil Kearny on December 28 said that "Colonel Carrington sent citizen couriers to Laramie with dispatches to department headquarters for re-enforcements." [49] John Hunton, a Fort Laramie sutler's store clerk who knew Phillips well, listed four riders, including a sergeant "and a man named Gregory." [50] John Friend, the telegraph operator at Horseshoe Station, said that when Phillips arrived there on Christmas Day he was accompanied by William Bailey and George Dillon. Colonel Carrington in his testimony before a commission of inquiry in the spring of 1867 stated that he "hired two citizens to take dispatches to Laramie."[51]

It appears likely that Carrington selected both Phillips and Bailey for the ride, and it is logical that he would have ordered them to leave the fort separately on the theory that if one did not make it through to Laramie, the other might. Also it is probable that other riders joined one or both of them en route —at Fort Reno or Bridger's Ferry—which explains the presence of the veteran wagon train captain, George Dillon, when Phillips and Bailey rode into Horseshoe Station.

That Phillips left Phil Kearny alone, that he traveled most of the 236-mile journey alone through raging blizzards, that he rode alone the last forty miles from Horseshoe Station to Laramie—all appear to be facts. It was an almost incredible feat of horsemanship, a heroic four-day ride.

On that cold dark evening of December 21, Phillips stuffed his saddlebag with hardtack, took a quarter of a sack of oats for his mount, and went with Colonel Carrington to the stables. There by lantern light he saddled one of Carrington's horses, variously described as a "thoroughbred charger," "a Kentucky saddle horse," "a white horse."[52] The two men then walked together, Phillips leading the horse, to the water gate at the southeast end of the quartermaster yard.

Since sundown Private John C. Brough had been posted at the water gate, and as the two men approached, Brough challenged them. A moment later the sergeant of the guard called out: "Attention! It's the commanding officer." Carrington spoke up then: "Never mind, sergeant, open the gate." The sergeant unlocked the padlocks and Carrington and Phillips stepped forward, pulling out the bars and pushing the gate open.

"I recovered arms," Private Brough recalled afterward, "stepped back and stood at present arms while the two men walked to the gate opening. . . . They conversed for a minute or two, and finally one of them mounted the horse, which was restive and prancing around. The other man . . . he was Colonel Carrington . . . reached up, took the man's hand, and spoke a few words. I could not hear all he said, but did hear him say, 'May God help you!'

"The horseman wheeled and started off on a trot. For about thirty seconds we could hear the hoof-beats, and then they ceased. The colonel stood with his head bent on one side, as if listening intently, and then straightening up and speaking to no one in particular, said, 'Good, he has taken softer ground at the side of the trail!' "

Wind gusts swirled bits of sleet and snow around Carrington's lantern as he and the sergeant closed the gate and replaced the bars. The colonel turned back toward his headquarters, the sergeant accompanying him. Private Brough slapped at his tingling ears, and continued walking his post in the below-zero temperature.[53]

Carrington waited impatiently for daylight on the morning of the 22nd. He had not slept, indeed had scarcely rested at all during the night, and having learned the ways of the Indians he expected a dawn attack, perhaps a massive assault against the stockade at the earliest show of light.

In occasional interludes of self-examination during that long night, he had attempted to adopt the viewpoint of the hostiles, tried to reason what he would do if he were an Indian. "I could not but feel that if I had been a red man," he admitted later, "I would have fought as bitterly, if not as cruelly, for my rights and my home as the red man fought."[54]

But when daylight came, pale gray and bitter cold, not an Indian was visible anywhere, in the valley or on the ridges. The sky was heavy with snow, warning white man and red man to seek shelter from a threatening blizzard. The morning gun echoed back from the hills; bugles and drums sounded reveille.

Soon after breakfast, Carrington summoned his four surviving officers for a council. Company roll calls had shown thirty-one enlisted men and Lieutenant Grummond still missing, and as none had come in during the night, they were all assumed to be dead. The first order of business, as Carrington saw it, was to recover the bodies of these dead comrades. Ten Eyck, had crosses cut on their breasts, faces to the sky, some crosses on the back, faces to the ground, a mark cut that we could not find out. We walked on top of their internals and did not know it in the high grass. Picked them up, that is their internals, did not know the soldier they belonged to, so you see the cavalry man got an infantry man's gutts and an infantry man got a cavalry man's gutts."[59]

Carrington was shocked by what he saw, yet in his introspective way sought a reason for such evidences of savagery as the methodical removal of dorsal, thigh and calf muscles, of arms and limbs torn from sockets. Not until many years afterward, when he talked with a survivor of Red Cloud's Oglalas, did he learn the answer—a variation of the white man's myth of Tantalus. "The key to the mutilations were startling and impressive. Their idea of the spirit land is that it is a physical paradise; but we enter upon its mysteries just as in the condition we hold when we die. In the Indian paradise every physical taste or longing is promptly met. If he wants food, it is at hand; water springs up for ready use; ponies and game abound, blossoms, leaves, and fruit never fail; all is perennial and perpetual. But what is the Indian hell? It is the same in place and profusion of mercies, but the bad cannot partake. . . . With the muscles of the arms cut out, the victim could not pull a bowstring or trigger, with other muscles gone, he could not put foot in a stirrup or stoop to drink; so that, while every sense was in agony for relief from hunger or thirst, there could be no relief at all."[60]

According to Finn Burnett, only the body of the bugler, Adolph Metzger, was left untouched. "His heroism had aroused the admiration of the savages, they covered his corpse with a buffalo robe as a symbol of extreme respect."[61] John Guthrie, however, said that Metzger's body was never found, and a few weeks after the fight the Helena (Montana) Herald reported an interview between fur trappers and a band of Crows who had heard from the Sioux a story of the last survivor, who may have been Metzger. "He stood up and fought hand to hand till overwhelmed by their closing upon him, and carrying him off a prisoner to their camp where he was finally tortured to death."[62]

After loading all bodies found on the high ground, Carrington ordered the wagons moved cautiously along the road toward Peno Creek. Over a distance of three-quarters of a mile they recovered six more dead, including Lieutenant Grummond and Sergeant Augustus Lang. The lieutenant's head was almost severed from his body; his fingers had been chopped off, his naked body filled with arrows. Along this same stretch of road, they also found Jimmy Carrington's calico pony, which had been hastily borrowed by Captain Brown. The pony was dead, its head badly cut up, and someone remarked that the Indians must have scalped it out of hatred for Captain Brown.

A few hundred yards farther on, they found Wheatley, Fisher and "four or five of the old long-tried and experienced soldiers. A great number of empty cartridge shells were on the ground at this point." In front of the bodies, the last to be recovered, was a ring of dead Indian ponies, and "sixty-five pools of dark and clotted blood" on the ground and grass.[63] Wheatley had 105 arrows in his body and had been scalped.

The cautious march out, and the tedious and painful search for the dead, which was made even more difficult by bitter cold, occupied most of the day. As they were turning back from Peno Creek they heard the fort's sunset gun, and a black wintry darkness settled over the land before they sighted the gleam of a lantern on the flagstaff. It was a white light, signaling the reassuring news that Indians had not attacked the fort in their absence.

"We hauled them all into the fort," said John Guthrie, "and made the guard house at the fort a dead house."[64]

The first act of the colonel when he returned was a sentimental gesture. He visited Frances Grummond, handed her a sealed envelope, then left her to a moment of private grief. "I opened the envelope," she wrote afterward, "with eager but trembling hands. It contained a lock of my husband's hair."[65] She suddenly remembered, then, another memento, an encased miniature portrait of herself which George Grummond had worn since their wedding, and she wondered sadly if some Indian warrior carried it in his possession as a trophy of the battle.

Another who had to be consoled was the nineteen-year-old widow of James Wheatley.* Wagoner Finn Burnett described her as "a beautiful girl, a fine woman . . . a brave splendid little soldier." [66]

On the night of the 22nd, the blizzard which had been threatening for two days began in earnest, its fierce winds sweeping a blinding snow across the land and dropping temperatures to twenty below zero. Arm-length mittens, thigh-length leggings, buffalo boots, and a variety of fur hats were issued to the guards, and shifts were cut to one-half hour. At daylight of the 23rd the storm still raged, and snowdrifts crested the west flank of the stockade, packed so tightly that guards could walk from the parade directly over the upright posts. As a security measure, Carrington ordered a ten-foot trench cleared outside, but the biting winds refilled it almost as fast as men could dig.

That day and Christmas Eve were devoted to the melancholy task of preparing the dead for burial. Bodies were cleaned, mutilated fragments put together, arrows drawn out or cut off. Because most of the dead were left naked by the Indians, their comrades volunteered uniforms to clothe them. While this work went on in the hospital, carpenters constructed coffins. And in spite of the weather, a grave-digging detail cleared snow from the burial ground and started digging a trench for interment.

"One-half of the headquarters building, which was my temporary home," wrote Frances Grummond, "was utilized by carpenters for making pine cases for the dead. I knew that my husband's coffin was being made, and the sound of hammers and the grating of saws was torture to my sensitive nerves. . . . During the nights I would dream of Indians, of being captured and carried away by Red Cloud himself while frantically screaming for help, and then awaken in terror only to spring from my bed involuntarily to listen if the nearby sentry would still voice

* Burnett said that Mrs. Wheatley remained at the fort until the following spring when her brother came for her and took her back to the family home in Ohio. William Murphy, however, stated that she later married a man by the name of Breckinridge and lived on a ranch about five miles from Fort Laramie.

the welcome cry, 'All's well.' Sleeping draughts and the kind ministrations of Dr. Horton seemed rather to aggravate than reduce the nervous tension. . . . " [67]

On Christmas Day, the burial detail placed lines of pine cases by companies along officers' row. Two enlisted men were sealed in each box; the three officers rated separate coffins. Cases were carefully numbered to identify the occupants.

Carrington had hoped to bury the dead in solemn Christmas Day services, but the gravediggers, even though working in continuous half-hour shifts, were unable to complete excavation of the trench. Not until Wednesday, the 26th, five days after the battle, was burial completed, in a pit fifty feet long, seven feet deep, seven feet wide. "The severity of the weather,"[68] a sergeant wrote two days later, "and probability of immediate attack upon the fort compelled us to bury our dead in trenches, without ceremony or military honors." *

On that same day—December 26—the War Department in Washington received the first telegraphic dispatches of the Fort Phil Kearny disaster. From General Cooke in Omaha: "On the 21st instant three officers and ninety men, cavalry and infantry, were massacred by Indians very near Fort Phil Kearny."[69] At 3:15 that afternoon direct from Fort Laramie, General Grant received Carrington's dispatch pleading for reinforcements.

To give this news to the outside world, John (Portugee) Phillips had forced his way through almost continuous blizzards, riding only at nights, rationing oats carefully to his horse, sometimes digging tufts of grass for it from under the snow. Late on Christmas morning he rode into Horseshoe Station, accompanied by William Bailey and George Dillon, and handed his dispatches to the telegraph operator, John Friend. Phillips had crossed 190 miles of snow that was in some places four or five feet deep.

After Friend had tapped out a condensation of the messages, Phillips rebound his legs with sacks, wrapped himself in a buf-

fully for the blizzard to pass, then replied on the 27th: "The most violent blinding storm now raging; there would be nothing gained by moving in such a snow storm; meantime all preparations which can be made in-doors are going on." [7]

Cooke meanwhile continued to counter any possible criticism of his own responsibility in the Fetterman affair by directing blame toward Carrington. "Colonel Carrington is very plausible," he wrote General Grant on the 27th, "an energetic, industrious man in garrison; but it is too evident that he has not maintained discipline, and that his officers have no confidence in him." [8]

Not until New Year's Day were the first relief units able to leave Fort Laramie—four companies of the 18th Infantry's 1st Battalion under Major James Van Voast. Forty-eight hours later, two companies of the 2nd Cavalry under Lieutenant Gordon moved out, and overtook the infantry January 5.

"On account of the severity of the weather and deep snow," said Gordon, "there was no grazing for the animals, a scarcity of wood, and the water in the streams that we crossed was partly frozen to the bottom, except in the deep holes, where we were compelled to chop holes in the ice and water the animals out of buckets. . . . Our long forage gave out after being on the road ten days and the mules were cold and hungry for hay . . . they broke their halters, eat at wagon tongues, manes and tails of each other. Had to replace some tongues and ridge poles on wagons." [9]

At Fort Reno, Wessells was informed of Cooke's order naming him as Carrington's replacement. He took command of the expedition, which reached Fort Phil Kearny on the 16th, "with but one casualty, a man being frozen to death." [10]

Carrington reacted mildly to the news that one of his subordinates, Lieutenant-Colonel and Brevet Brigadier-General Wessells, was replacing him. He had suffered so many frustrations from department headquarters that one more scarcely mattered, although he was bitter over the way Cooke had deliberately worded the replacement orders to make it appear "that the purpose of changing my post occurred simultaneously with report of the massacre, before receipt of my telegram." [11] He may have taken some satisfaction from the War Department's abrupt removal of General Cooke himself from command of the Department of the Platte shortly afterward, but thirty years would pass before Carrington could forgive Cooke for the manner in which he handled his transfer from Fort Phil Kearny.

On the day that General Christopher C. Augur reported as Cooke's replacement in Omaha, January 23, Carrington was making an emotional departure from the fort he had dreamed all his life of building and commanding. The dream had come to fruition, flourished, and died all within six short months. He later summed up the midwinter change of stations in a single trenchant paragraph: "Upon being relieved I moved to Fort Casper with regimental headquarters, staff and officers' families, with mercury at 38° below zero (the second day), and having more than half my escort of sixty men frosted the first sixty-five miles, requiring two amputations at Reno." [12]

Margaret Carrington and Frances Grummond both recorded much more detailed accounts of this harrowing march. Frances was in an advanced state of pregnancy by this time, sensitive to every movement of the jolting wagon in which she rode. She had insisted on taking her husband's body with her to Tennessee, and Carrington had arranged for George Grummond's pine box to be disinterred and placed in one of the wagons.

In preparation for the journey, wagon covers were doubled, and carpenters boarded up sides and ends of wagon beds, leaving only a tiny window at each end. They placed a hinged door at the back of each vehicle for entry, and near the door a small sheet-iron stove made from a stovepipe, with a smoke vent through the wagon cover. Pine knots and short blocks of wood for fuel were packed in one corner. Women and children huddled themselves into cloaks, shawls, beaver hoods, buffalo boots, and all the furs they owned or could borrow.

Snow was falling at 1:30 P.M. on the 23rd when Carrington gave the order to march. The first afternoon and on into the dark night, the column struggled against the storm and the snow-packed road. A pioneer corps was formed and sent in advance to shovel out the deepest drifts. By ten o'clock that night, they had made only six miles. Carrington ordered a corral on a summit strange dream to Frances Grummond Carrington. She sat in the seat of a buggy drawn up near the small stone monument, a sturdy little old lady in a starched white shirtwaist and a dark ruffled skirt. Her hat—a sort of toque with a magnificent plume—was set at a jaunty angle. She listened to the words of the man who was her husband, but he spoke of a time when the love of her life had been George Grummond, long dead, George Grummond who had died bravely on the rocky slope where the crowd—so lighthearted, so free of danger—listened now in the glaring summer sunlight.

Former Private William Murphy remembered the hard days of toil, the hot summer, the cold bitter winter, scanty rations, the constant dread of Indian attack. For Sam Gibson, the scene deepest seared into his memory was the day of the Wagon Box Fight, when he had watched the Indians charge and charge again, and each time they came on with their war cries he had said what he thought was his last prayer on earth. S. S. Peters remembered Crazy Woman's Fork, every detail of every minute of that long day-and-night surround which began with the ambush of Lieutenants Daniels and Templeton and ended with Chaplain White's dash for help. The high moment in William Daley's memory was the bright October day when he had raised the first flag above Fort Phil Kearny.

They waited respectfully until Carrington closed his speech, his voice showing weariness at the end, his shoulders stooping a little. When a bugler sounded taps and Carrington uncovered, someone stepped forward with a parasol to shield the old man's head from the sun.

As soon as the dedication formalities ended, the crowd moved to the site of the fort where a staff had been erected on the former parade ground for a flag-raising ceremony. The tall pole stood in the midst of a field of alfalfa growing lush and green from the waters of irrigation ditches. Few traces remained of the stockade, quartermaster yard, officers' quarters and barracks. It was as if the fort had never existed, had been only a dream common to those who remembered it.

Standing knee-deep in alfalfa, the survivors gathered at the base of the flagstaff, and William Daley—who had raised the first flag—was given the honor of raising this one. Afterward the colonel politely pointed out landmarks for the young spectators; the former enlisted men recalled a few incidents long forgotten. The guests of honor seemed to enjoy their day of glory.

But they knew it was all gone, the old harsh leathery life, the sweet zest of danger, the toil and uncertainty. It was all gone and soon they would be gone, too, with the vanished fort. Only a myth remained, a few dreamlike memories of the saga they had helped to create.

CHAPTER XXIV.

FETTERMAN'S MASSACRE—ITS LESSONS.

December, 21st, 1866, was to us the saddest day of the year. Though snow covered the mountains, and there was every indication of the return of severe weather, the morning was quite pleasant. Men only wore blouses at their work, and the train, although much later than usual, went to the Pinery with a strong guard, so that the teamsters, choppers, and escort, all armed, numbered not far from ninety men.

The children ran in about 11 o'clock, shouting "Indians!" and the pickets on Pilot Hill could be distinctly seen giving the signal of "many Indians," on the line of the wood road; and news was also furnished that the train was in corral only a short distance from the garrison.

The officers and all the ladies were soon watching for other usual demonstrations, while a detail was being organized to relieve the train.

Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Fetterman, then walking back and forth before his quarters, near where the colonel was giving his instructions, asked and obtained permission to go with the detachment.

Lieutenant Grummond, also at his own request, took a part of Company C, 2d United States Cavalry,—making the whole force just seventy-eight officers and men. Captain Brown, unknown to the officers of the garrison, as well as citizens Wheatley and Fisher, both experienced frontiersmen and good shots, also joined the party.

It was just at the time when a few more trains of saw-logs would furnish ample lumber material to complete the office building and a fifth company quarters, already well under progress.

The orders were given in front of Lieutenant Grummond's house, next the colonel's, and those who were present heard them repeated with distinctness and special urgency. Lieutenant Wands was also instructed to repeat them. As if peculiarly impressed with some anticipations of rashness in the movement, the colonel, just after the command left, went across the parade-ground to a sentry platform, halted the mounted party, and gave additional orders, understood in the garrison, and by those who heard them, to be the substantial repetition of the former.

The health of Mrs. Grummond was such that Lieutenant Wands and other friends urged him, for his family's sake, to be prudent, and avoid all rash movements and any pursuit that would draw them over Lodge Trail Ridge, and to report to Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Fetterman the orders he had received. These orders were, in so many words, "to relieve the train, and under no circumstances to cross the ridge." Everybody knew why special emphasis was given to these orders.

Only two days before, Brevet Major Powell had been sent out to relieve a train, and obeyed his orders literally, although, as he afterward said, he was sorely tempted to pursue, but became afterward convinced that certain destruction would have been the result. Major Powell was in fact assigned to command the relieving party on the 21st; but when Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Fetterman stepped forward and claimed it by seniority of rank, he was permitted to go and received his instructions.

The day before, and succeeding that on which Major Powell had reported several hundred Indians present, the colonel himself took charge of trains to the Pinery, spending the day in building a bridge over the creek and superintending the chopping parties and guard detail. All the indications were that the numerous Indian villages on Tongue River would lose no chance to do mischief, and the garrison was insufficiently supplied with arms, even of old styles, for the men actually at the post. Before Captain Fetterman left, a few Indian pickets were seen on Lodge Trail Ridge, and a few were below the fort at the road crossing. Two or three case shot, dropped near them, dismounted one and brought nearly thirty out of the brush. These at once disappeared. After the detachment had been gone a short time, finding that Captain Fetterman had left without a surgeon, the colonel sent Dr. Hines, with one of his own orderlies, to join the train and report to Captain Fetterman; Doctor Hines started, but soon returned with the news that the train had safely pursued its route to the woods; that Captain Fetterman was on the ridge to the north, out of view, and that there was so many Indians in sight that he could not join the party. It was about noon, and a man rushed in to say that firing was renewed. Every shot could be heard, and there was little doubt that a desperate fight was going on in the valley of Peno Creek beyond the ridge. The presence of Lieutenant Grummond with the party gave us new anxiety, and many heartfelt prayers were offered that he might return in safety. The colonel was on the "lookout," on headquarters building, and gave his orders before coming down.

It seemed long, but was hardly twelve minutes before Captain Ten Eyck, Lieutenant Matson, Dr. Hines, and Dr. Ould, with a relieving party, were moving, on the run, for the scene of action. We had all watched Captain Fetterman until the curve of Sullivant Hills shut him off, and then he was on the southern slope of the ridge, apparently intending to cut off the retreat of the Indians from the train. Wagons and ambulances were hurried up; the whole garrison was on the alert; extra ammunition for both parties was started, and even the prisoners were put on duty to give the guard and all available men their perfect freedom for whatever might transpire. Couriers were sent to the woods to bring back the train and its guard, to secure its support, as well as from the fear that the diversion of Captain Fetterman from his orders might still involve its destruction; and shortly Captain Arnold came to report that the whole force of armed men left at the post, including guard and everything, was but one hundred and nineteen men.

Until the wagons galloped out of the gate, we could see a solitary Indian on the highest part of Lodge Trail Ridge; but he soon disappeared. All this time firing was increasing in intensity, and in little more than thirty minutes,—after one or two quick volleys, the rattle of file-firing, and a few scattering shots,—a perfect silence ensued. There were then many anxious hearts, and waiting was perfectly terrible! The movements of Captain Ten Eyck were watched with intensest interest. The pickets could give no information, and a messenger sent upon Sullivant Hills could see neither Indians nor troops. It was just before Captain Ten Eyck's party reached the top of the hill across the Piney, north of the Virginia City road, that all firing ceased. Soon orderly Sam- ple was seen to break away from the command and make for the fort, with his horse, on the run. He brought the message that the valleys were full of Indians, and that several hundred were on the road below, yelling and challenging them to come down; but nothing could be seen of Fetterman. As was afterward learned, this party was on the very field of carnage, and doubtless they were completing their robbery and butchery. It was after dark when Captain Ten Eyck returned, with forty-nine of the bodies, and made the terrible announcement that all were killed.

To a woman whose house and heart received the widow as a sister, and whose office it was to advise her of the facts, the recital of the scenes of that day, even at this late period, is full of pain; but at the time, the Christian fortitude and holy calmness with which Mrs. Grummond looked upward to her Heavenly Father for wisdom and strength, inspired all with something of her same patience to know the worst and meet its issues.

The body of Lieutenant Grummond had not been rescued, and there was some faint hope that stragglers might yet come in and break the absolute gloom of the tragedy by some explanatory and redeeming feature.

At last the wood train came in, having seen nothing of Fetterman, not even having heard the firing, or suspected any additional danger after repulsing their own immediate assailants. Imagination only can suggest how wide-sweeping would have been the massacre had any considerable portion of the hostile bands renewed the attack upon the train after the successful decoy of the others to inevitable destruction.

With the next morning came a meeting of officers, with universal disinclination, generally expressed, to venture a search for the remaining dead. The safety of any small party seemed doubtful, and the post itself might be imperiled by a large draft upon the garrison. But the colonel had made up his mind, and freely expressed his purpose "not to let the Indians have the conviction that the dead could not be rescued;" and besides this, the very men who had passed through the war without blanching began to form ideas of the numbers and barbarity of the Indians, which threatened to take away one-half their real strength. So the colonel informed Mrs. Grummond that he should go in person, and would bring home her husband. Captain Ten Eyck, Lieutenant Matson, and Dr. Ould went with the party. Long after they left, and they left with the cheerful Godspeed of every woman and soldier of the garrison, on a holy mission, the pickets, which were distributed on the line of march, indicated their progress, and showed that neither the fort nor the detachment could be threatened without such connection of signals as would advise both and secure co-operation whatever might ensue.

Long after dark, the wagons and command returned with the remaining dead, slowly passing to the hospital and other buildings made ready for their reception.

Lieutenant Grummond's body was found, and eventually accompanied us on our midwinter's march back over the plains.

A careful roll-call of the garrison was had, and the body of every missing man was found. Wheatley and Fisher were discovered near a pile of rocks, surrounded by expended cartridges, proving that their Henry rifles had done good service. All the bodies lay along or near a narrow divide over which the road ran, and to which no doubt the assailed party had retreated when overwhelming numbers bore down upon them. Captains Fetterman and Brown were at the point nearest the fort, each with a revolver shot in the left temple, and so scorched with powder as to leave no doubt that they shot each other when hope had fled. So ended lives that were full of pride and confidence in the morning. Captain Brown's repeated dashes, and especially his success on the 23d of September, had inspired him with perfectly reckless daring in pursuit of Indians; and only the night before the massacre he made a call, with spurs fastened in the button-holes of his coat, leggings wrapped, and two revolvers accessible, declaring, by way of explanation, that he was ready by day and night, and must have one scalp before leaving for Laramie, to which place he had been ordered. He had inspired Captain Fetterman, who had been but a short time in the country, and already had great contempt for our adversaries, with the same mad determination to chase whenever they could, regardless of numbers; and together they planned an expedition of a week's trip to Tongue River valley, with a mixed party of ninety citizens and soldiers, to destroy the Indian villages and clear out all enemies. Disapproval of the plan did not change their belief in its feasibility and wisdom; but here were eighty-one officers and men, and among them the veterans of a long war, utterly destroyed in their hands, only six or seven miles on the route to that same Tongue River valley.

This massacre proved the value and integrity of Major Bridger and his statements, and no less showed the wisdom of a settled policy not to precipitate or undertake a general war while there was but a handful of men at the post; and the army had not yet received such increase as could promise any considerable support.

A kind Providence spared many, and the line of road opened in the summer of 1866 was maintained. Other regiments have strengthened the garrisons, and a year of changes finds the Indians still numerous and unpunished, but with the line still maintained; while the fruits of the labor of 1866 are yet to be valued when that country shall be occupied and sufficiently understood. If the line be abandoned by its garrisons, as is probable, to give better security for the Union Pacific Railroad, and if its choice hunting-grounds be given to the Indians, who seem to have a right to them at present, it cannot be doubted that the work done will have its value, and Eastern Montana will ultimately perfect its communications with the Missouri through the field of so much struggle and duty.

CHAPTER XXV.

THE FUNERAL, AND BURIAL OF FOURSCORE AND ONE VICTIMS OF THE MASSACRE—COLD AND SAD HOLIDAYS—EXPEDITIONS ABANDONED—REINFORCEMENTS OF AUGUST YET BEHIND.

THE bodies of the dead were first deposited in the spare ward of the hospital, two hospital-tents, and a double cabin. Details from each company assisted in their care and recognition. Many gave their best uniforms, decently to clothe their comrades,—and the noblest traits of the soldier were touchingly developed as they carefully handled the mutilated fragments, drew out or cut off the arrows, and decently composed all for the burial.

A long line of pine cases, duly numbered, was arranged by companies along the officers' street, near the hospital, and as each body was placed in its plain receptacle, the number and name was taken, for the future reference of friends.

The detail to dig a grave for this great entombment was well armed, and accompanied by a guard; but so intense was the cold that constant relays were required, and the interment was not achieved until Wednesday after the fight.

Over the great pit, fifty feet long and seven feet deep, a mound was raised, and the dead were buried with a sad and solemn stillness that will long leave its memory with those who had souls to estimate the circumstances and lessons of that dire calamity.

As if Nature herself were shocked by the enormity of the Indian torture there inflicted, and would still the passions of all, or forbid their immediate indulgence, it so happened that from the very night of December 21st the winter became unmitigated in its severity, requiring guards to be changed at least half hourly, preventing out-of door inspections of the guard, and driving officers, ladies, and men to beaver, buffalo, or wolf skins for protection from the cold.

The relief, as they hastened to their regular distribution, presented no bad idea of Lapland or Siberian life. The tastes, workmanship, and capital of the wearers were variously illustrated in their personal wardrobes. A uniform cap being useless and hardly endurable, even with coat-cape fastened, hood-like, over the head, the soldiers had permission to suit themselves in respect of substantial comfort. Mittens that ended at the shoulder; buffalo boots and leggings nearly to the thigh; hats as tall as a Polander's, with bushy wolf tails pendant; and tippets, comforts, coats, and vests of skins made an odd style of uniform under the existing Regulations for the better government of the Army of the United States. There were, indeed, times when the smallest possible number of men were allowed to be exposed, and these only while the corporal could return to the guard-house and fresh relief might promptly follow up the same routine of constant change. Some were frosted in crossing the parade, some on their sentry platforms; and guard duty with keeping warm were the principal work of all who had no part in hauling water, cutting wood, the care of stock, or the issue of supplies.

The holidays were sad as they were cold. Lights were burned in all quarters, and one non-commissioned officer was always on duty in each building, so that in case of alarm there could not be an instant's delay in the use of the whole command. Each company knew its place and the distribution of the loop-holes; the gunners slept in tents near their guns, and all things were ripe for the destruction of assailants should any venture to attack.

The constant and drifting snow-storms soon so lifted their crests by the west flank of the stockade that officers walked over its trunks, and when a trench ten feet wide was cleared, the next snow or wind would fill it, as only snow can snow and winds can blow in that suburb of Cloud Peak, the home of perpetual snow.

ACT OF JUNE 5, 1920

DECLARATION FOR INCREASE OF PENSION

WAR WITH SPAIN, PHILIPPINE INSURRECTION, AND CHINA RELIEF EXPEDITION

The Pension Certificate should not be forwarded with the Application

State of Tennessee, County of Washington, ss:

On this 7 day of March, 1925, before me, the undersigned, personally appeared Ulysses G. Grummond, who makes the following declaration as an application for increase of pension under the provisions of the act of Congress approved June 5, 1920.

That he is 57 years of age; that he was born Oct 31, 1867 at Detroit Mich

That he is the identical Ulysses G. Grummond, who ENLISTED June 27, 1898, at Cheboygan Mich under the name of Ulysses G Grummond in Co H. 33. Mich Vol Infty

, and was honorably DISCHARGED Dec 5, 1898, at Cheboygan Mich, having served ninety days or more during the War with Spain, the Philippine Insurrection, or China Relief Expedition.

That he is a pensioner of the United States at the rate of Eighteen dollars per month, under the act of June 5, 1920, by reason of partial inability to earn a support by manual labor, and that he believes himself to be entitled to an increase of pension under said act on account of Accute Active Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Myocarditis, Nephritis. Liver and Kidney and heart disease

(Here state the reason for applying for increase.)

That none of these disabilities is due to his own vicious habits.

That he was not employed in the military or naval service prior to June 27, 1898

That he has not been employed in the military or naval service since Aug 4", 1903.

Reinlisted June 8" 1901 Co M 29" U S Infty

(Here state what the service, if any, was, whether prior or subsequent to that stated above, and the date on which it began and ended.)

discharged Aug 4" 1903.

That the number of his pension certificate is 1217726.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT
ULYSSES GRANT GRUMMOND

I, Ulysses Grant Grummond, of the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, and State of Michigan, do hereby make, publish and declare this to be my last will and testament, hereby revoking all wills and codicils by me at any time heretofore made.

FIRST: I hereby direct that all my just debts, including the expense of my last sickness, my funeral expenses, the expenses of the administration of my estate and any and all Federal and State inheritance, succession and estate transfer taxes or charges be paid out of the corpus of my estate by my Executor as soon after my demise as is practicable.

It is my desire that no new clothing be purchased and that all expense in connection with my burial be extremely modest in cost and that I be interred in the family lot in Elmwood Cemetery beside the grave of my wife, Norma.

My Executor shall cause the date of my death to be inscribed on the north panel of the family monument and shall cause a granite marker, similar to those now designating graves in the said lot, to be placed at the head of my grave and inscribed "GRANT."

SECOND: I hereby give, devise and bequeath to the following named persons and corporation:

1. Exactly one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) in cash or certified bank check in one single payment, with no deduction for any cause, to Nathaniel P. Grummond, Jr., my nephew, if living; otherwise to his wife Catherine M. Grummond, of Detroit, Michigan.
2. Exactly one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) in cash or certified bank check in one single payment, with no deduction for any cause, to Robert W. Curtis, nephew of my wife, Norma, if living; otherwise to his wife Gladys M. Curtis, of Jonesville, Michigan.

The Act of June 5, 1920, requires, in case of a soldier or sailor:

1. That there has been a service of not less than ninety days during the period of the war with Spain, the Philippine Insurrection, and the China Relief Expedition, April 21, 1898, to July 4, 1902, in this country or abroad.
2. That an honorable discharge from the service shall have been issued.
3. That applicant shall be 62 years old or more, or that a disability, permanent in character, not due to vicious habits, exists; origin in service not required.
4. The rates are graded from $12.00 to $30.00, proportioned to the degree of inability to earn a support by manual labor, or to age (62, $12; 68, $18; 72, $24; 75, $30.) Rate of pension is no way affected by rank.
5. A pensioner under prior laws may apply under this one; a pensioner under this law may apply under the general law; only one pension, however, can be drawn for the same period, but the pensioner is entitled to the benefit of the highest pension rate awarded him over any period of time.
6. Attorney fee not to exceed $20; payable only upon the order of the Commissioner of Pensions, out of the pension money if and when the pension is granted.

Comrade:

The form on the reverse side of this letter is an application to the U. S. Veterans' Bureau to establish your eligibility to hospitalization when and if needed. It should be filled out by you immediately and forwarded to the nearest Veterans' Bureau Regional Office.

It is imperative that this application be filled out at once in order to establish your eligibility to hospitalization.

The filing of this form will not only assist you when you need hospitalization, but it will assist every other Spanish War Veteran. Through this medium National Headquarters will obtain necessary information to enable it to propose amendments to the laws so that all Government Hospitals will be open to every Spanish War Veteran in this country.

When your eligibility is established and when a certificate indicating such eligibility has been received by you it should be preserved for future reference. Your family should be acquainted with the meaning of this certificate and advised of the proper Veterans' Bureau Officer to notify in case of emergency. The possession of this certificate eliminates the red tape which has been necessary in the past to establish your right to hospitalization.

Fraternally yours,

Rice W. Means

was made by President Cleveland in 1885. Mr. Shepard was appointed by President Harrison in January, 1890, to the same office, Mr. Black's term under the Democratic Administration having expired. Mr. Shepard discharged the duties of district attorney with entire satisfaction to the public and with credit to himself. He was for several years city attorney of West Bay City, and for over twelve years chairman of the School Board. He was president of the West Bay City Board of Waterworks, from its organization until June, 1888, over ten years, and has held several other important public positions in Bay County. In 1876 he was elected a delegate to the National Republican Convention, held at Cincinnati, which nominated R. B. Hayes to the Presidency. While Bay City belonged to the Eighth Congressional District he was chairman of the Congressional Committee for several years. He takes an active interest both in State politics and in local public affairs. Mr. Shepard is a gentleman of learning, pleasing and entertaining as a conversationalist, unostentatious in manner, plausible and convincing in argument, and of exemplary character. His marked success as a prominent member of the Michigan bar, with perhaps the largest and most valuable clientage in Bay County, is another instance of the Eastern boy reared on a farm and well educated (thoroughness and lack of cramming being special features of the good, old-fashioned schools of the East), coming rapidly to the front in the Western fields of opportunity constantly offering to ability, energy, and perseverance. In January, 1868, Mr. Shepard was married at Cuba, New York, to Mary M. Randolph, a daughter of S. S. Randolph, a native of New York State. Three children—Howell G., Lottie E., and Mamie E.—were born of this marriage. The first only is now living, the two daughters having passed away, the former in 1878 and the latter in 1900. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard are members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of West Bay City, of the Official Board of which Mr. Shepard was chairman many years. Mr. Shepard is now judge of the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit of Michigan, having been elected to that position in the spring of A. D. 1899.

CAPTAIN STEPHEN BENEDICT GRUMMOND, representative vessel owner and operator, was born on a farm near Marine City, St. Clair County, Michigan, September 18, 1834, and died at his home in Detroit, January 2, 1894. His father, who also bore the name of Stephen Benedict, came to Michigan from New York State in 1807, and settled on the bank of the St. Clair River, where he engaged in farming, and conducted a general store, and eventually became one of the wealthiest men in the county, and died in 1856. His wife, the mother of Captain Grummond, who died in 1877, was Mary, daughter of Alexander Harrow, a Scotch gentleman, who came to Michigan when the Territory was under British rule, and who for several years was in the British naval service. Young Grummond, inheriting the nautical instinct from his maternal grandfather, at the age of fifteen went sailing on the lakes. Spending his winters at school, at the age of eighteen he had acquired a good education, both scholastic and nautical. Better yet, he had saved his earnings, and so, with a little financial assistance from his father, he was enabled to buy a small sailing vessel, in which he sailed for several years. This was the foundation of his fortune, and he lived to become the owner of a fine fleet of vessels. In 1855 he relinquished the command of this first vessel, and removed to Detroit, where he ever since was engaged in buying, selling, and operating vessels of various description—sail, steam and tugs, passenger, and freight boats. From year to year his business extended and grew until he came to be recognized as one of the largest owners of lake craft. He owned the finest line of tugs on our inland waters, and did the largest towing and wrecking business upon them. He also was the owner of Grummond's Mackinac line of steamers, plying between Cleveland and Mackinac. His old friend, Captain J. W. Millen, when appealed to spoke as follows: "I have known Captain Grummond since 1852. Forty-one years is a large slice of a man's life; but in many respects those days are fresher in my memory than things which happened yesterday. I knew Grummond first as a watchman on steamers, a mere lad, but a bold and fearless one—ready to fight for justice or glory at the drop of the hat. I see him now as I saw him one bitter cold winter early in the fifties, when the big steamer on which he was watchman froze solid in the ice off Port Colburn. Faithful to his post that boy remained, no companions, no society of any sort, through those bitter cold days, and long, wild nights, his only company the shrieking blasts which tore across the open lakes like a thousand demons let loose. Can you imagine anything more desolate? Yet never for a moment did the sailor lad think of leaving his duty for the warm firesides and cheerful companions which he knew were awaiting him in Port Colburn, which he might easily have reached by journeying across the ice. He drifted into port with his boat when she was loosened. As a young man he was full of life and fun. He was much sought after for his companionship, and feared and respected for his fearlessness and prowess. He first began in the vessel business for himself in the tug line. That was in the good old days, when there was a big profit in all sorts of towing and wrecking. I recall him now as the owner of the tug Dispatch, which he bought in Quebec. He was a great hustler, and got almost all the business in his line that was going. This naturally caused considerable feeling among those in the same line of business, and led to many personal encounters, in which young Grummond could generally be depended upon for coming off victorious. In the summer he went about as rough as a dock walloper; but by this time he had reached a point where he was socially ambitious, and he cut quite a figure at balls and other social functions during the winter. Captain Grummond from this point accumulated vessel property with considerable rapidity, although there was a period during which he dropped out of my sight, and I think he went to California, although I am not quite certain. When he once more got fairly down to business among us, he bought small vessels of all sorts, and was a prominent figure in the marine world. The bulk of his money—at least the early portion of it—however, was made in tugging. In those days, that was the most profitable business in which a man could engage. As he grew more independent, he hired men to operate his tugs, and spent more time on shore than before. Then he put on a line of barges, and went into the lumber trade. That was about the time the great Saginaw pine-forests were being opened up. Freights were high, and money came rolling in from every direction." His enterprise and straightforward business methods secured to him a good deal of business, and "his efforts resulted in the accumulation of a large fortune, which he invested in Detroit real estate and various business enterprises. Originally he was a member of the Democratic party; but ever since the election of Abraham Lincoln he had been an earnest supporter of Republican principles. Official trusts were only assumed by him upon the urgent request of friends, and when he honestly believed that the public good would be advanced thereby. In 1879 he was elected a member of the Board of Estimates, and at the expiration of his term in 1881 was elected a member of the newly-created City Council or upper house for the long term. After two years' service he was made, against his wishes, the unanimous choice of his party as its candidate for mayor. He was elected, and during his term of office fulfilled the duties of the position in such a manner as to win the approval of the best elements in the city. A practical business man, his administration was marked by the same good sense and sound business principles which in his private career had brought success. He used all his influence toward getting the city affairs into a sound financial condition, and against public clamor had the courage to veto measures that he believed to be against the public good. The result in almost every case proved that the course he favored was both wise and prudent. His administration met the approval of the people generally, regardless of party. As a business man, Mr. Grummond's main power lay in the spirit of perseverance with which he pursued his plans. He was independent and courageous, but modest and unassuming. His chief enjoyment was in the prosecution of his numerous business ventures. He was public-spirited and progressive in his ideas, and readily gave support to deserving public enterprises, and by his ability and integrity commanded the respect and confidence of his fellow-citizens." One of Detroit's most prominent lawyers, when asked for an opinion of Captain Grummond during his lifetime, wrote as follows: "Captain Grummond is a man of great sagacity and energy, is quick to grasp and comprehend a business proposition, and if it meets his judgment, is quick to act upon it. He is self-reliant, and very confident of the correctness of his convictions. He has a remarkably retentive memory as to his business matters, both in a general way and in detail. While his commercial, vessel, and real-estate interests are large and varied, he gives personal attention to his deposits in banks, and draws checks, notes, and drafts himself. He is naturally distrustful, and, therefore, not easily deceived by statements of others as to the profit of investments; but carefully investigates for himself, and distributes in many ventures rather than in few. He is a kind husband and an indulgent father, is public-spirited, and is prominent in all public matters of the city. Although an active Republican, he is not a bit a partisan. He attends, and is a liberal supporter of the Episcopal Church." Captain Grummond was married in 1861 to Miss Louisa B. Prouty, and they became the parents of seven children, the surviving being Mrs. Marie Graves, of Chicago; Nathaniel P., U. Grant, Edith, and Edna Ora. The illness that preceded his death was of several weeks' duration, and when the time came his end was peaceful, and he passed away surrounded by his family. At the time of his decease he was a member of the Police Commission, and also of Detroit Commandery No. 1, Knights Templars. The Detroit newspapers editorially paid him the following tribute—the Tribune saying:

> "Captain Grummond occupied a very large place in the esteem and affections of the people of Detroit, and his death will be widely and sincerely mourned. In both public and private life his was a sterling character. He was a successful and honorable man of business. He was a public official of singular devotion to the public welfare. He was a husband and father in whom his family delighted, and upon them he lavished a large soul's constant affection. Captain Grummond was well known throughout Michigan and the Northwest, and his connection with inland marine interests was of the most prominent and influential character. In all of the varied relationships of life, indeed, he was respected and esteemed most highly. The Tribune extends to his bereaved family and friends expression of its sincere sympathy, and it but utters a universal sentiment in saying that the community in which he lived can illy spare his useful and courageous citizenship."

And the Free Press:

> "The death of Captain Stephen B. Grummond makes a marked gap in the ranks of Detroit's active, energetic business men. He was essentially a man of affairs, with any number of irons in the fire; but he very rarely had so many in at any one time that he could not keep them all hot. Such public positions as he held he filled with great credit to himself and satisfaction to the people; his administration of the mayor's office in particular is remembered as that of one who understood the requirements of the place, and lived up to them conscientiously and faithfully. He was a positive man, and tenacious of his opinions when he had formed them; but he was as courteous in his deference to the opinions of others as he expected them to be in their treatment of his. Socially he was a man of broad and generous impulses, and always among the foremost in aiding every good and deserving work. He will be sadly missed."

HON. ALEXANDER LEWIS, Detroit. Detroit and Canada were in their early settlement so interwoven that their history is one. And even now, so long after their political separation, the people on each side of the beautiful Detroit River are united by bonds of kinship, and many are those who, born on the other and older side of the river, migrate to the more favored side, and cast in their lot under the folds of the Stars and Stripes. Among the many who have so done, is he whose name heads this sketch; for it was in the quaint, quiet, and sleepy little village of Sandwich, opposite Detroit, that he was born, on October 24, 1822, a son of Thomas and Jeannette (Villaire) Lewis. His father was born at Three Rivers, Quebec, and his mother near Windsor, Ontario.

Gourlay, Alfred L., son of Robert and Helen (Lawson) Gourlay, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, July 31, 1845. He was instructed by private tutors in Edinburgh until eleven years old, when he emigrated with his parents to America, settling in New York city, where young Gourlay attended the public schools for three years. He then learned the printing business with Wynkoop, Hallenbeck & Thomas, of New York, and later, for a number of years, acted as foreman of their establishment. From 1867 to 1869 he was associated with Mr. George Gray, printer, at Omaha, Neb., but returned to New York in the latter year and again assumed his former position for a period of two years. In 1871 Mr. Gourlay became identified with the firm of Downs, Gourlay & Finch, shirt manufacturers, as superintendent of their factory at New York, and following the dissolution of partnership of that firm he removed in 1875 to Detroit, Mich., where, in company with his brother, James Gourlay, he established the present business of Gourlay Bros., shirt makers and men's furnishers. From a small beginning this business has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in the city of Detroit. Mr. Gourlay was married in 1872 to Laura, daughter of A. A. Andruss, of New York city, and they have two children: Helen Lawson and Charles A.

Grant, John, son of Archibald and Mary (Smith) Grant, was born in Detroit, Mich., May 12, 1862. He attended the public schools and High School of that city until seventeen years of age, when he took up the trade of garment dyeing in the employ of his father. In February, 1887 he entered upon his successful railroad career with the old Detroit City Railroad Co. as a clerk in their offices. He afterward became paymaster and purchasing agent for that company, and in 1889 he was made manager and superintendent of their Grand River system. October 1, 1891, when the Detroit Citizens' Street Railway Co. organized and purchased the Detroit Street Railway Co. and Grand River Railway Co., Mr. Grant was placed in charge of several important divisions for the new company. From April to June, 1895, he was a member of the firm of Sterling, Grant & Co., in the street railway supply business, but in the latter month returned to railroading as general superintendent of the Detroit Citizens' Railway Co.; January 5, 1897, he was made general superintendent of the Fort Wayne and Belle Isle system and on June 1 of the same year general superintendent of the Detroit Electric Railway Co., being at the present time general superintendent of the entire street railway system of the city of Detroit. Mr. Grant is a member of the West Side Club and Detroit Athletic Club; B. P. O. E., and is popular in both business and social circles. October 12, 1887, he married Elizabeth Lang, daughter of Augustus Lang of Detroit, and they have four children: Archibald L., Marguerite M., Helen M., and Mary E.

Grummond, U. Grant, son of the late Stephen B. Grummond, founder of the Grummond line of steamers plying the Great Lakes, and ex-mayor of Detroit, was born in Detroit, Mich., October 31, 1867. He was educated in the public schools of Detroit and under private tutors; he also attended the Pennsylvania Military Academy and later took a course in Shortlidge's Academy at Media, Pa. At the age of eighteen he entered his father's office and during the ensuing six years acted as bookkeeper and manager of the Grummond tug boat lines. Upon his father's death in 1894 he and his brother assumed charge of the business, and he has ever since been general manager of the steamers plying between Cleveland and Detroit. Mr.

Grummond is popular with all classes. Modest and unassuming in his bearing, yet shrewd and energetic in business matters, he makes and retains friends among all with whom he comes in contact. He is a member of the Detroit Yacht Club; of the Michigan Athletic Association, and numerous other organizations.

Hall, Philo E., son of George W. and Ruth A. (Andrews) Hall, was born at Rockford, Ill., November 28, 1856. In 1857 his parents removed to Saline, Mich., where young Hall attended public school until seventeen. He then removed to Detroit, and during the following two years served the dry goods firm of James Frisbie at Detroit and Williams Bros. at Ypsilanti as a clerk. In 1875 he entered the Bryant and Stratton Business College at Detroit, and a short time before he was to have graduated he received an appointment as bookkeeper for J. M. Arnold & Co., booksellers and stationers. He later acted in the same capacity for several other leading firms, and for two years (1878 to 1880) he was entry clerk in the dry goods house of Allan, Shelden & Co. Since May, 1880, Mr. Hall has been continuously identified with the firm of Parke, Davis & Co., manufacturing chemists at Detroit, with the exception of a few months in 1884, when he was the secretary of the Western Knitting Co. He entered the service of P., D. & Co. as invoice clerk and was shortly afterward promoted to the position of cashier. For the past thirteen years he has had entire charge of all collections, credits, etc., within the pale of the office of auditor, of which he is the incumbent. Mr. Hall is a member of the order of Free and Accepted Masons, and of the Royal Arcanum. December 24, 1879, he married Frances Ingles, and they have had three children, two of whom survive: Clara E. and Louis S.

Hart, Joseph C., was born at Adrian, Mich., May 3, 1843. After graduating from the literary department of Michigan University, in 1864, he and his brother, Henry C. Hart, bought out the dry goods store of their father, who wished to engage in other business. They managed the store several years. But the dry goods business was not profitable in the years just following the war, and young Hart's tastes and inclinations led him in other directions. So about the year 1869 he sold out and went to Grand Rapids with some notion of buying an interest in the Grand Rapids Democrat, then published under the direction of M. H. Clark. Mr. Hart was appointed city editor, and filled that position for a short time. While gathering local news Hart had plenty of time for reflection, and looking ahead could see no encouragement to remain in the newspaper business. The work was pleasant enough, but the emoluments were small. He accordingly resigned his literary ambitions in 1870 and betook himself to Detroit, where, after some minor business experiences, he entered the office of Merrell & Ferguson, general agents for the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York. Their territory covered a number of States, and Mr. Hart found in the details of general agency work, with the mass of intricate correspondence on technical subjects which it involved, during many years of financial depression, a field of labor that was at once congenial and profitable. In the fall of 1887 Mr. Hart saw an opportunity to establish another bank. Leaving Merrell & Ferguson's office he got C. K. Latham and others interested, and in June, 1888, the Central Savings Bank, capital $100,000, opened for business in the Detroit Opera House block, where it has remained ever since. Mr. Hart became cashier and active manager of the bank. The present officers are: President, Gilbert Hart; vice-presidents, Conrad Clippert and C. K. Latham; cashier, J. C. Hart; directors, Gil-… hands of Devereux, as if it were the last plank of hope, and the frantic eagerness with which she orders a messenger to be sent to stay the execution, were the feelings of a tortured breast, not the studied action of an accomplished actress alone. Never before has art approached more nearly to nature. When the fatal bronze told the dread tidings of his death and the ominous words "Non è più" fell on her ear, the look of horror and utter desolation which made her face that of a Medusa was one that the audience could not forget. Then came the fierce denunciation of the ungrateful Bacon; the frantic, imperious command to be left alone with her great sorrow; and the utter prostration when the words "Alone, alone, with my remorse and my God!" wring the inmost fibres of her heart. No matter how inconsistent the librettist has been in his work, or what unwarrantable liberties he has taken with history, the genius of Ristori reconciles everything, and we forget anachronisms, contradictions, everything but the wayward, haughty, treacherous, passionate, jealous, dauntless, overbearing Queen. She was well supported in every respect. Signor Mancini, in the third act, made the Earl of Essex the beau ideal of a noble in whose veins ran the blood of kings. His defiance of Elizabeth, and his sarcastic, withering invective against Howard, were given with passionate force, and he deservedly shared with his sovereign in the inevitable recall at the fall of the curtain.

Death of a Michigan Officer.—The telegraph of Wednesday night last announced that a terrible massacre occurred on the 22d, near Fort Kearney, a number of U. S. troops being surrounded and killed. Among the unfortunates appears the name of Lieut. Grummond, of the 18th Infantry. There seems to be no doubt that the officer referred to is none other than George W. Grummond, of this city, yet we hope that this supposition may prove incorrect. He was a brave soldier, and had a splendid record. When the rebellion broke out, he went to the field as sergeant in the old 1st Infantry (three months' troops), and when that regiment was reorganized he was commissioned a captain. During the campaign on the Peninsula, he contracted a severe illness, and on the 14th of July, 1862, he resigned at Harrison's Landing. Upon the organization of the 14th Infantry Capt. Grummond had recovered from his indisposition and was appointed Major of that regiment; his commission dating March 26, 1863. On the 25th of the same month he was promoted Lieutenant Colonel, and when Col. Mizner was ordered to his regiment in the regular army, he took command of the organization. He led the regiment in several sanguinary and bloody conflicts, especially at Bentonville, where the 14th particularly distinguished itself. At this place the regiment leaped out of its works and made a gallant charge against superior numbers, capturing one general officer, the colors of the 40th North Carolina Infantry and many prisoners, besides killing and wounding many rebels. When the 14th returned home, Col. Grummond was appointed to a lieutenancy of the 18th U. S. Infantry, and when last heard from, was in the vicinity where the massacre is said to have taken place.

After the above was put in type the telegraph confirmed the previous account of the massacre, and we observe that the name of Lieut. Grummond appears among the dead.

The Carnival at the Rink.—The Rink was largely crowded last evening on the occasion of the fancy dress carnival, and a large number of competitors were on hand to compete for the two prizes offered by the proprietors. The elephant again appeared on skates to the amusement of the large crowd, and delighted them with his heavy performances on the ice. Some 20 or 25 persons appeared in fancy dress costumes, and a committee was appointed from those present to decide who …

… peculiarly adapted to the part she sustained. Messrs. Healy and Wood were cast in the characters of the brothers Landry and Didier Barbeaud, and sustained them in a very creditable manner.

MICHIGAN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Quarterly Meeting at Ypsilanti—First and Second days Proceedings—Action on the Subject of Home Missions.

Correspondence of the Advertiser and Tribune.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 26, 1866.

FIRST DAY—EVENING SESSION.

The first quarterly meeting of this body convened in the Baptist church of this city at 7 o'clock this evening. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. L. D. Palmer, of Jackson, from Luke xxiv: 49, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

Following the sermon a business session, at which were reports from Rev. R. B. Deroche, French missionary at Detroit, and Rev. J. Bloomer, missionary at Manchester. That of the former evinces an ordinary interest among the French, the latter something more than this.

A communication from Dr. Backus, of the Home Mission rooms at New York, stated that in accordance with the recommendation of the Board, the following missionaries had been appointed by the American Baptist Home Mission Society: Rev. S. H. Hilcox, Lansing; Rev. W. H. Prentiss, Reading; Rev. W. W. Robson, Portsmouth; Rev. Geo. A. Ames, Bloomer; Rev. E. S. Manly, Three Oaks and Warsaw; Rev. J. Bloomer, Manchester; Rev. S. W. Slater, Charlotte.

A communication from Rev. S. S. Bailey, Superintendent of Baptist Missions in Illinois, with a circular concerning the relation of the American Baptist Home Mission Society to the State organizations, was received with a request for the judgment of the Board thereon.

Rev. A. E. Mather's report, as superintending missionary of the State, was heard for the quarter, and disclosed a considerable falling off in the contributions of the churches to the work of home missions, as compared with the quarter immediately preceding, yet the receipts were much larger than during the corresponding period of last year.

Some discussion arose in regard to whether, with the present understanding of the relations of the Baptist Convention to the Am. B. H. M. S., the latter should pay missionaries on orders, without their having been first ratified by the Board. The matter was re-

Never before has art approached more nearly to nature. When the fatal bronze told the dread tidings of his death and the ominous words "Non è più" fell on her ear, the look of horror and utter desolation which made her face that of a Medusa was one that the audience could not forget. Then came the fierce denunciation of the ungrateful Bacon; the frantic, imperious command to be left alone with her great sorrow, and the utter prostration when the words "Alone, alone, with my remorse and my God!" wring the inmost fibres of her heart. No matter how inconsistent the librettist has been in his work, or what unwarrantable liberties he has taken with history, the genius of Ristori reconciles everything, and we forget anachronisms, contradictions, everything but the wayward, haughty, treacherous, passionate, jealous, dauntless, overbearing Queen. She was well supported in every respect. Signor Mancini, in the third act, made the Earl of Essex the beau ideal of a noble in whose veins ran the blood of kings. His defiance of Elizabeth, and his sarcastic, withering invective against Howard, were given with passionate force, and he deservedly shared with his sovereign in the inevitable recall at the fall of the curtain.

DEATH OF A MICHIGAN OFFICER.—The telegraph of Wednesday night last announced that a terrible massacre occurred on the 22d, near Fort Kearney, a number of U. S. troops being surrounded and killed. Among the unfortunates appears the name of Lieut. Grummond, of the 18th Infantry. There seems to be no doubt that the officer referred to is none other than George W. Grummond, of this city, yet we hope that this supposition may prove incorrect. He was a brave soldier, and had a splendid record. When the rebellion broke out, he went to the field as sergeant in the old 1st Infantry (three months' troops), and when that regiment was reorganized he was commissioned a captain. During the campaign on the Peninsula, he contracted a severe illness, and on the 14th of July, 1862, he resigned at Harrison's Landing. Upon the organization of the 14th Infantry Capt. Grummond had recovered from his indisposition and was appointed Major of that regiment; his commission dating March 2d, 1863. On the 25th of the same month he was promoted Lieutenant Colonel, and when Col. Mizner was ordered to his regiment in the regular army, he took command of the organization. He led the regiment in several sanguinary and bloody conflicts, especially at Bentonville, where the 14th particularly distinguished itself. At this place the regiment leaped out of its works and made a gallant charge against superior numbers, capturing one general officer, the colors of the 40th North Carolina Infantry and many prisoners, besides killing and wounding many rebels. When the 14th returned home, Col. Grummond was appointed to a lieutenancy of the 18th U. S. Infantry, and when last heard from, was in the vicinity where the massacre is said to have taken place.

After the above was put in type the telegraph confirmed the previous account of the massacre, and we observe that the name of Lieut. Grummond appears among the dead.

THE CARNIVAL AT THE RINK.—The Rink was largely crowded last evening on the occasion of the fancy dress carnival, and a large number of competitors were on hand to compete for the two prizes offered by the proprietors. The elephant again appeared on skates to the amusement of the large crowd, and delighted them with his heavy performances on the ice. Some 20 or 25 persons appeared in fancy dress costumes, and a committee was appointed from those present to decide who

MICHIGAN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Quarterly Meeting at Ypsilanti—First and Second days Proceedings—Action on the Subject of Home Missions.

Correspondence of the Advertiser and Tribune.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 26, 1866.

FIRST DAY—EVENING SESSION.

The first quarterly meeting of this body convened in the Baptist church of this city at 7 o'clock this evening. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. L. D. Palmer, of Jackson, from Luke xxiv: 49, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

Following the sermon a business session, at which were reports from Rev. R. B. Deroche, French missionary at Detroit, and Rev. J. Bloomer, missionary at Manchester. That of the former evinces an ordinary interest among the French, the latter something more than this.

A communication from Dr. Backus, of the Home Mission rooms at New York, stated that in accordance with the recommendation of the Board, the following missionaries had been appointed by the American Baptist Home Mission Society: Rev. S. H. Hilcox, Lansing; Rev. W. H. Prentiss, Reading; Rev. W. W. Robson, Portsmouth; Rev. Geo. A. Ames, Bloomer; Rev. E. S. Manly, Three Oaks and Warsaw; Rev. J. Bloomer, Manchester; Rev. S. W. Slater, Charlotte.

A communication from Rev. S. S. Bailey, Superintendent of Baptist Missions in Illinois, with a circular concerning the relation of the American Baptist Home Mission Society to the State organizations, was received with a request for the judgment of the Board thereon.

Rev. A. E. Mather's report, as superintending missionary of the State, was heard for the quarter, and disclosed a considerable falling off in the contributions of the churches to the work of home missions, as compared with the quarter immediately preceding, yet the receipts were much larger than during the corresponding period of last year.

Some discussion arose in regard to whether, with the present understanding of the relations of the Baptist Convention to the Am. B. H. M. S., the latter should pay missionaries on orders, without their having been first ratified by the Board. The matter was re-

THE FALSE PRETENSE CASE.—In the case of John Fournier, who was arrested on Thursday evening, on the double charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses and theft, in obtaining seven barrels of apples from Mr. Bagard, an account of which was given in a previous issue, the complaint was made by H. H. Becky, of Hudson, and not by Mr. Bagard.

WRONG LOCATION.—In giving a list of the fire alarm boxes a day or two since, we located one of them at the Chief Engineer's place of business, on the corner of Beaubien and Larned streets. We should have stated that the alarm was placed at his private residence, on Russell street. The number and locations of the other boxes are the same as previously published in the ADVERTISER and TRIBUNE.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A day or two since an accident occurred at Grosse Point, which resulted in the death of a little boy about 10 years of age, named George Gonin. The deceased went out upon the ice to skate and broke through. He sank almost immediately and his brother and mother went to his assistance. They were also precipitated into the water and narrowly escaped the fate of the little boy.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.—The following note, which explains itself, has been handed us for publication:

Several articles have appeared in the daily papers indicating that the fair now in progress in Merrill Hall, under the name of the "Ladies' Benevolent Fair," is conducted by the ladies of the Industrial School, which is not the case. However, they have generously donated cloth for suits for the boys and dress goods for the girls; also given them a nice entertainment on Christmas day, and presented their teacher, Miss Ellmore, with a handsome Bible Dictionary, for which we tender them our most hearty thanks. Still it is but right that the public should know that it is not a fair gotten up by the ladies of the Industrial School.

ONE OF THE BOARD.

THE LATE COL. WAINWRIGHT.—The telegraph on Thursday announced the death, by suicide, of Col. R. A. Wainwright, of the U. S. Ordnance Department, in California, but gave no particulars of the unfortunate affair. The deceased was formerly Second Lieutenant in the 5th U. S. Infantry, and in 1835 was stationed at Fort Howard, at Green Bay, Wis., He subsequently resigned and went into the Ordnance Department. He at one time was in command of the arsenal at Dearborn, and his widow is at present residing with some friends in that village.

COMPOUNDING A FELONY.—John Kelly, at a late hour last night, was arrested at a house on St. Aubin avenue, by policeman Huntoon, upon an attachment issued from the Police Court, he having failed to appear as a witness at that tribunal when wanted. Several days since Kelly was robbed of $16 by Hugh Monahan and another young man named Iverson, and he caused them to be arrested. The case was called at the Police Court on Thursday, but Kelly could not be found. It was subsequently ascertained that the parties above named had paid him $24 to compromise the matter, and he, after receiving one-half of that amount, went to Canada. He returned last night, and was arrested.

ANOTHER ARREST.—Policeman J. W. Southwick last night arrested another of the colored men who, it is supposed, were implicated in the burglary and robbery recently committed at the residence of ex-Alderman Phelps. His name is Jesse Johnson, and, from all accounts, he is a desperate character. A day or two since he offered some of the stolen property for sale at a second-hand furniture store on Gratiot street, and an attempt was made by the proprietors to detain him. He showed fight, and cut one of parties—ex-Policeman Marshall—in the hand quite severely. Last night Johnson was caged in a house at the corner of Croghan and St. Antoine streets, and is now in safe custody.

ARREST OF ANOTHER THIEF.—Yesterday Policeman J. W. Southwick arrested a colored man named Gilbert Willoughby on the charge of being concerned in the robbery of 87 geese and 35 bushels of wheat from Mr. Harrison, a farmer in the town of Nankin for which two other negroes named Salters and Croucher were arrested a day or two since. These negroes resided in Springwells, and are supposed to have obtained their livelihood by depredations upon the farmers within a distance of 10 or 20 miles, as these have been very frequent of late. The wheat and some of the geese which they are charged with having stolen from Mr. Harrison was found at their house when Salters and Croucher were arrested. Willoughby was arraigned before Justice Fecht, pleaded guilty and was held to the Circuit Court.

[illegible] for her ungovernable pride and temper. When she signs the death warrant of him who was all to her and whose princely bearing won her love and admiration, it was not mere acting, but a scene from life that passed before us. The indecision, reluctance, eager watching for the signet ring, which she told him would save him under any circumstances, her passionate outbursts of temper when she calls to mind how deeply he offended her, the clutching at the death warrant from the hands of Davison, as if it were the last plank of hope, and the frantic eagerness with which she orders a messenger to be sent to stay the execution, were the feelings of a tortured breast, not the studied action of an accomplished actress alone. Never before has art approached more nearly to nature. When the fatal bronze told the dread tidings of his death and the ominous words "Non è più" fell on her ear, the look of horror and utter desolation which made her face that of a Medusa was one that the audience could not forget. DEATH OF A MICHIGAN OFFICER.—The telegraph of Wednesday night last announced that a terrible massacre occurred on the 22d, near Fort Kearney, a number of U. S. troops being surrounded and killed. The elephant again appeared on skates to the amusement of the large crowd, and delighted them with his heavy performance on the ice. Some 20 or 25 persons appeared in fancy dress costumes, and a committee was appointed from those present to decide who were to be entitled to the prizes. This committee did their duty faithfully, and awarded them to the general satisfaction of all present. One of the prizes was given to Mr. Ezra Haskell, who was splendidly attired in the costume representing "Don Cæsar de Bazan." The other, a jewel case valued at $40, was awarded to Miss Emma Smith, who was very tastily and beautifully dressed in the costume of a Turkish girl. Among the other attractive costumes were those of Mr. Geo. A. Farwell, who appeared as a Chinese Manderin, Wm. C. Davis, as "Charles De Moor," and three gentlemen, personating the "Three Guardsmen." All the fancy costumes were very appropriate and presented a very gay as well as beautiful appearance. The ice at the Rink was in fine condition and the opportunity presented was well improved by all present.

AN ASTONISHED IRISHMAN.—Our readers have all probably heard of the Irishman who was astonished at the "bowldness" of a cannon ball that smashed his pipe; but that individual was hardly as much astonished as was an unfortunate Hibernian a few days since. The man referred to, who is considerably deaf, was walking along the Central Railroad track, a short distance west of the Grand Trunk junction, when a train came along, and he was slow in observing the danger that threatened him. As the locomotive approached him he quietly stepped to the outside of the rail, probably considering that place, and that "Fanchon, the Cricket," would be substituted. Considerable impatience was manifested at so long a delay between the two plays. Fanchon was a good substitute for the play announced, and was well brought out. Miss Ada Webb as Fanchon, and Miss Emma Webb as Mother Fadet, were both excellent, the former being especially adapted to the part she sustained. Messrs. Healy and Wood were cast in the characters of the brothers Landry and Didier Barbeaud, and sustained them in a very creditable manner.

MICHIGAN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Quarterly Meeting at Ypsilanti—First and Second days Proceedings—Action on the Subject of Home Missions.

Correspondence of the Advertiser and Tribune.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 26, 1866.

FIRST DAY—EVENING SESSION.

The first quarterly meeting of this body convened in the Baptist church of this city at 7 o'clock this evening. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. L. D. Palmer, of Jackson, from Luke xxiv: 49, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

Following the sermon a business session, at which were reports from Rev. R. B. Deroche, French missionary at Detroit, and Rev. J. Bloomer, missionary at Manchester. That of the former evinces an ordinary interest among the French, the latter something more than this.

A communication from Dr. Backus, of the Home Mission rooms at New York, stated that in accordance with the recommendation of the Board, the following missionaries had been appointed by the American Baptist Home Mission Society: Rev. S. H. Hilcox, Lansing; Rev. W. H. Prentiss, Reading; Rev. W. W. Robson, Portsmouth; Rev. Geo. A. Ames, Bloomer; Rev. E. S. Manly, Three Oaks and Warsaw; Rev. J. Bloomer, Manchester; Rev. S. W. Slater, Charlotte.

A communication from Rev. S. S. Bailey, Superintendent of Baptist Missions in Illinois, with a circular concerning the relation of the American Baptist Home Mission Society to the State organizations, was received with a request for the judgment of the Board thereon.

Rev. A. E. Mather's report, as superintending missionary of the State, was heard for the quarter, and disclosed a considerable falling off in the contributions of the churches to the work of home missions, as compared with the quarter immediately preceding, yet the receipts were much larger than during the corresponding period of last year.

Some discussion arose in regard to whether, with the present understanding of the relations of the Baptist Convention to the Am. B. H. M. S., the latter should pay missionaries on orders, without their having been first ratified by the Board. The matter was referred to a special committee for consideration.

An application from the Baptist church at Monroe to recommend Rev. Isaac Butterfield to the Am. B. H. M. S., for appointment as their missionary at that place, with aid to the amount of $300, was granted. Sundry other applications were postponed to the next session of the Board, which adjourned, after prayer, to meet in the basement of the church to-morrow morning, at 8½ o'clock.

SECOND DAY—FORENOON SESSION.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 27, 1866.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, Rev. E. J. Fish, of Adrian, President of the Board, in the chair, and was formally opened by singing, followed by prayer by Rev. M. Wheeler.

Applications for missionary aid were received from Owosso, Grand Traverse, Cedar Springs, Dundee, Milan, Port Sanilac and Pine Grove. That from Port Sanilac was referred to the Superintending Missionary to have it made in due form, with power to recommend to the Home Missionary Society if he thought best. In the case of Dundee and Milan action was deferred until the field has been visited by the Superintendent of Missions, which he was instructed to do as early as possible. In the case of Owosso action was also deferred and the clerk instructed to correspond with Rev. G. W. Northrup, giving as a reason for the action of the Board that it was not advisable to recommend the appointment of missionaries for so short a period as six months. The

S. T.—1860.—X.—The amount of Plantation Bitters sold in one year is something startling. They would fill Broadway six feet high, from the Park to 4th street. Drake's manufactory is one of the institutions of New York. It is said that Drake painted all the rocks in the Eastern States with his cabalistic "S. T.—1860.—X., and then got the old granny legislators to pass a law "preventing disfiguring the face of nature," which gives him a monopoly. We do not know how this is, but we do know the Plantation Bitters sell as no other article ever did. They are used by all classes of the community, and are death on Dyspepsia—certain. They are very invigorating when languid and weak, and a great appetizer.

THE FALSE PRETENSE CASE.—In the case of John Fournier, who was arrested on Thursday evening, on the double charges of obtaining goods under false pretenses and theft, in obtaining seven barrels of apples from Mr. Bagard, an account of which was given in a previous issue, the complaint was made by H. H. Seeley, of Hudson, and not by Mr. Bagard.

WRONG LOCATION.—In giving a list of the fire alarm boxes a day or two since, we located one of them at the Chief Engineer's place of business, on the corner of Beaubien and Larned streets. We should have stated that the alarm was placed at his private residence, on Russell street. The number and locations of the other boxes are the same as previously published in the ADVERTISER AND TRIBUNE.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A day or two since an accident occurred at Grosse Point, which resulted in the death of a little boy about 10 years of age, named George Gonin. The deceased went out upon the ice to skate and broke through. He sank, almost immediately and his brother and mother went to his assistance. They were also precipitated into the water and narrowly escaped the fate of the little boy.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.—The following note, which explains itself, has been handed us for publication:

Several articles have appeared in the daily papers indicating that the fair now in progress in Merrill Hall, under the name of the "Ladies' Benevolent Fair," is conducted by the ladies of the Industrial School, which is not the case. However, they have generously donated cloth for suits for the boys and dress goods for the girls; also given them a nice entertainment on Christmas day, and presented their teacher, Miss Ellmore, with a handsome Bible Dictionary, for which we tender them our most hearty thanks. Still it is but right that the public should know that it is not a fair gotten up by the ladies of the Industrial School.

ONE OF THE BOARD.

THE LATE COL. WAINWRIGHT.—The telegraph on Thursday announced the death, by suicide, of Col. R. A. Wainwright, of the U. S. Ordnance Department, in California, but gave no particulars of the unfortunate affair. The deceased was formerly Second Lieutenant in the 5th U. S. Infantry, and in 1835 was stationed at Fort Howard, at Green Bay, Wis., He subsequently resigned and went into the Ordnance Department. He at one time was in command of the arsenal at Dearborn, and his widow is at present residing with some friends in that village.

COMPOUNDING A FELONY.—John Kelly, at a late hour last night, was arrested at a house on St. Aubin avenue, by policeman Huntoon, upon an attachment issued from the Police Court, he having failed to appear as a witness at that tribunal when wanted. Several days since Kelly was robbed of $16 by Hugh Monahan and another young man named Iverson, and he caused them to be arrested. The case was called at the Police Court on Thursday, but Kelly could not be found. It was subsequently ascertained that the parties above named had paid him $34 to compromise the matter, and he, after receiving one-half of that amount, went to Canada. He returned last night, and was arrested.

ANOTHER ARREST.—Policeman J. W. Southwick last night arrested another of the colored men who, it is supposed, were implicated in the burglary and robbery recently committed at the residence of ex-Alderman Phelps. His name is Jesse Johnson, and, from all accounts, he is a desperate character. A day or two since he offered some of the stolen property for sale at a second-hand furniture store on Gratiot street, and an attempt was made by the proprietors to detain him. He showed fight, and cut one of parties—ex-Policeman Marshall—in the hand quite severely. Last night Johnson was caged in a house at the corner of Croghan and St. Antoine streets, and is now in safe custody.

ARREST OF ANOTHER THIEF.—Yesterday Policeman J. W. Southwick arrested a colored man named Gilbert Willoughby on the charge of being concerned in the robbery of 87 geese and 35 bushels of wheat from Mr. Harrison, a farmer in the town of Nankin for which two other negroes named Salters and Croucher were arrested a day or two since. These negroes resided in Springwells, and are supposed to have obtained their livelihood by depredations upon the farmers within a distance of 10 or 20 miles, as these have been very frequent of late. The wheat and some of the geese which they are charged with having stolen from Mr. Harrison was found at their house when Salters and Croucher were arrested. Willoughby was arraigned before Justice Fecht, pleaded guilty and was held to the Circuit Court.

[illegible] her ungovernable pride and temper. When she signs the death warrant of him who was all to her and whose princely bearing won her love and admiration, it was not mere acting, but a scene from life that passed before us. The indecision, reluctance, eager watching for the signet ring, which she told him would save him under any circumstances, her passionate outbursts of anger when she calls to mind how deeply he offended her, the clutching at the death warrant from the hands of Davison, as if it were the last plank of hope, and the frantic eagerness with which she orders a messenger to be sent to stay the execution, were the feelings of a tortured breast, not the studied action of an accomplished actress alone. Never before has art approached more nearly to nature. When the fatal bronze told the dread tidings of his death and the ominous words "Non è più" fell on her ear, the look of horror and utter desolation which made her face that of a Medusa was one that the audience could not forget. Then came the fierce denunciation of the ungrateful Bacon; the frantic, imperious command to be left alone with her great sorrow, and the utter prostration when the words "Alone, alone, with my remorse and my God" wring the inmost fibres of her heart. No matter how inconsistent the librettist has been in his work, or what unwarrantable liberties he has taken with history, the genius of Ristori reconciles everything, and we forget anachronisms, contradictions, everything but the wayward, haughty, treacherous, passionate, jealous, dauntless, overbearing Queen. She was well supported in every respect. Signor Mancini, in the third act, made the Earl of Essex the beau ideal of a noble in whose veins ran the blood of kings. His defiance of Elizabeth, and his sarcastic, withering invective against Howard, were given with passionate force, and he deservedly shared with his sovereign in the inevitable recall at the fall of the curtain.

DEATH OF A MICHIGAN OFFICER.—The telegraph of Wednesday night last announced that a terrible massacre occurred on the 22d, near Fort Kearney, a number of U. S. troops being surrounded and killed. Among the unfortunates appears the name of Lieut. Grummond, of the 18th Infantry. There seems to be no doubt that the officer referred to is none other than George W. Grummond, of this city, yet we hope that the supposition may prove incorrect. He was a brave soldier, and had a splendid record. When the rebellion broke out, he went to the field as sergeant in the old 1st Infantry (three months' troops), and when that regiment was reorganized he was commissioned a captain. During the campaign on the Peninsula, he contracted a severe illness, and on the 14th of July, 1862, he resigned at Harrison's Landing. Upon the organization of the 14th Infantry Capt. Grummond had recovered from his indisposition and was appointed Major of that regiment; his commission dating March 3d, 1863. On the 25th of the same month he was promoted Lieutenant Colonel, and when Col. Mizner was ordered to his regiment in the regular army, he took command of the organization. He led the regiment in several sanguinary and bloody conflicts, especially at Bentonville, where the 14th particularly distinguished itself. At this place the regiment leaped out of its works and made a gallant charge against superior numbers, capturing one general officer, the colors of the 40th North Carolina Infantry and many prisoners, besides killing and wounding many rebels. When the 14th returned home, Col. Grummond was appointed to a lieutenancy of the 18th U. S. Infantry, and when last heard from, was in the vicinity where the massacre is said to have taken place.

After the above was put in type the telegraph confirmed the previous account of the massacre, and we observe that the name of Lieut. Grummond appears among the dead.

THE CARNIVAL AT THE RINK.—The Rink was largely crowded last evening on the occasion of the fancy dress carnival, and a large number of competitors were on hand to compete for the two prizes offered by the proprietors. The elephant again appeared on skates to the amusement of the large crowd, and delighted them with his heavy performances on the ice. Some 20 or 25 persons appeared in fancy dress costumes, and a committee was appointed from those present to decide who were to be entitled to the prizes. This committee did their duty faithfully, and awarded them to the general satisfaction of all present. One of the prizes was given to Mr. Ezra Haskell, who was splendidly attired in the costume representing "Don Cæsar de Bazan." The other, a jewel case valued at $40, was awarded to Miss Emma Smith, who was very tastily and beautifully dressed in the costume of a Turkish girl. Among the other attractive costumes were those of Mr. Geo. A. Farwell, who appeared as a Chinese Manderin, Wm. C. Davis, as "Charles De Moor," and three gentlemen, personating the "Three Guardsmen." All the fancy costumes were very appropriate and presented a very gay as well as beautiful appearance. The ice at the Rink was in fine condition and the opportunity presented was well improved by all present.

AN ASTONISHED IRISHMAN.—Our readers have all probably heard of the Irishman who was astonished at the "bowldness" of a cannon ball that smashed his pipe; but that individual was hardly as much astonished as was an unfortunate Hibernian a few days since. The man referred to, who is considerably deaf, was walking along the Central Railroad track, a short distance west of the Grand Trunk junction, when a train came along, and he was slow in observing the danger that threatened him. As the locomotive approached him he quietly stepped to the outside of the rail, probably considering that [illegible] piece, and that "Fanchon, the Cricket," would be substituted. Considerable impatience was manifested at so long a delay between the two plays. Fanchon was a good substitute for the play announced, and was well brought out. Miss Ada Webb as Fanchon, and Miss Emma Webb as Mother Fadet, were both excellent, the former being especially adapted to the part she sustained. Messrs. Healy and Wood were cast in the characters of the brothers Landry and Didier Barbeaud, and sustained them in a very creditable manner.

MICHIGAN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Quarterly Meeting at Ypsilanti—First and Second days Proceedings—Action on the Subject of Home Missions.

Correspondence of the Advertiser and Tribune.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 26, 1866.

FIRST DAY—EVENING SESSION.

The first quarterly meeting of this body convened in the Baptist church of this city at 7 o'clock this evening. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. L. D. Palmer, of Jackson, from Luke xxiv: 49, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

Following the sermon a business session, at which were reports from Rev. R. B. Deroche, French missionary at Detroit, and Rev. J. Bloomer, missionary at Manchester. That of the former evinces an ordinary interest among the French, the latter something more than this.

A communication from Dr. Backus, of the Home Mission rooms at New York, stated that in accordance with the recommendation of the Board, the following missionaries had been appointed by the American Baptist Home Mission Society: Rev. S. H. Hiscox, Lansing; Rev. W. H. Prentise, Reading; Rev. W. W. Robson, Portsmouth; Rev. Geo. A. Ames, Bloomer; Rev. E. S. Manly, Three Oaks and Warsaw; Rev. J. Bloomer, Manchester; Rev. S. W. Slater, Charlotte.

A communication from Rev. S. S. Bailey, Superintendent of Baptist Missions in Illinois, with a circular concerning the relation of the American Baptist Home Mission Society to the State organizations, was received with a request for the judgment of the Board thereon.

Rev. A. E. Mather's report, as superintending missionary of the State, was heard for the quarter, and disclosed a considerable falling off in the contributions of the churches to the work of home missions, as compared with the quarter immediately preceding, yet the receipts were much larger than during the corresponding period of last year.

Some discussion arose in regard to whether, with the present understanding of the relations of the Baptist Convention to the Am. B. H. M. S., the latter should pay missionaries on orders, without their having been first ratified by the Board. The matter was referred to a special committee for consideration.

An application from the Baptist church at Monroe to recommend Rev. Isaac Butterfield to the Am. B. H. M. S., for appointment as their missionary at that place, with aid to the amount of $300, was granted. Sundry other applications were postponed to the next session of the Board, which adjourned, after prayer, to meet in the basement of the church to-morrow morning, at 8½ o'clock.

SECOND DAY—FORENOON SESSION.

YPSILANTI, Dec. 27, 1866.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, Rev. E. J. Fish, of Adrian, President of the Board, in the chair, and was formally opened by singing, followed by prayer by Rev. M. Wheeler.

Applications for missionary aid were received from Owosso, Grand Traverse, Cedar Springs, Dundee, Milan, Port Sanilac and Pine Grove. That from Port Sanilac was referred to the Superintending Missionary to have it made in due form, with power to recommend to the Home Missionary Society if he thought best. In the case of Dundee and Milan action was deferred until the field has been visited by the Superintendent of Missions, which he was instructed to do as early as possible. In the case of Owosso action was also deferred and the clerk instructed to correspond with Rev. G. W. Northrup, giving as a reason for the action of the Board that it was not advisable to recommend the appointment of missionaries for so short a period as six months. The

S. T.—1860.—X.—The amount of Plantation Bitters sold in one year is something startling. They would fill Broadway six feet high, from the Park to 4th street. Drake's manufactory is one of the institutions of New York. It is said that Drake painted all the rocks in the Eastern States with his cabalistic "S. T.—1860.—X., and then got the old granny legislators to pass a law "preventing disfiguring the face of nature," which gives him a monopoly. We do not know how this is, but we do know the Plantation Bitters SELL as no other article ever did. They are used by all classes of the community, and are death on Dyspepsia—certain. They are very invigorating when languid and weak and a great appetizer.

CAPT. GRUMMOND IS DEAD

THE EX-MAYOR PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY MORNING.

Jany 3 —— 1894

ONE OF DETROIT'S MOST PROMINENT AND RESPECTED CITIZENS.

The Funeral to be Held From Christ Church To-Morrow Afternoon.

Capt. Stephen B. Grummond died at his late residence at 10:45 yesterday morning. It is some weeks since he was seized by the fatal malady, senile gangrene, but from the first little hope was entertained of his recovery, and for two days before the end came he sank rapidly. He was surrounded by Mrs. Grummond and immediate relatives when the summons came, all excepting his son Grant, who had just left for the office, and his daughter, Miss Edith, who is at present a guest of the family of Mr. William E. Quinby at The Hague.

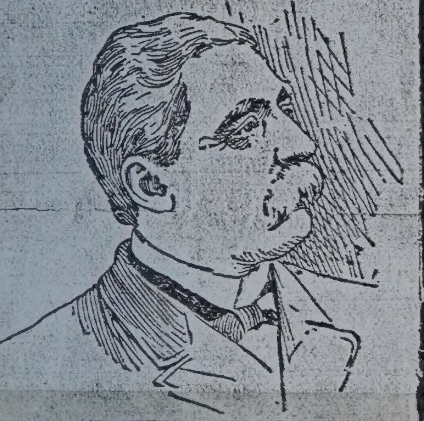
Yesterday morning when it was known that the end was near, dispatches were sent to relatives, who will arrive to-day.

The flags of the city were at half-mast yesterday when the death was announced, and appropriate action will be taken by the council, with which the deceased was prominently identified through many years of his life.

Mayor Pingree will invite the ex-mayors of Detroit to attend the funeral of the ex-mayor in a body. The following former mayors of the city will probably be present: John Patton, Alexander Lewis, George C. Langdon, William G. Thompson, Marvin H Chamberlain and John Pridgeon, Jr. Ex-Mayor C. H. Buhl is confined to his house by illness and will, therefore, be unable to attend.

A battalion of police under command of Supt. Starkweather will lead the funeral cortege.

Stephen Benedict Grummond was born on a farm near Marine City, St. Clair Co., Mich., on September 18, 1834. His father, from whom he had derived his full name, had moved to this state from western New York in 1807 and settled on the right bank of the St. Clair river. He engaged in farming and subsequently opened a general store which, it is said, was the first one on St. Clair river. Young Grummond grew up on the farm and when he was 15 years old he went sailing on the lakes. He continued sailing, devoting the winter months at home to his education in the public school. Before he had become of age he purchased a small vessel, investing all his savings and his father supplying the lacking amount. In 1855 he came to Detroit, bought another vessel and within a few years had established a prosperous vessel business. It continued growing right along and in the course of time Mr. Grummond worked up a profitable tug and wrecking business, which is considered one of the largest on the chain of lakes. Capt. Grummond was also the owner of Grummond's Mackinac line. His enterprise and straightforward business methods secured to him a great deal of business and as a result, Capt. Grummond accumulated considerable wealth, which he invested in real estate and in business enterprises of various kinds.



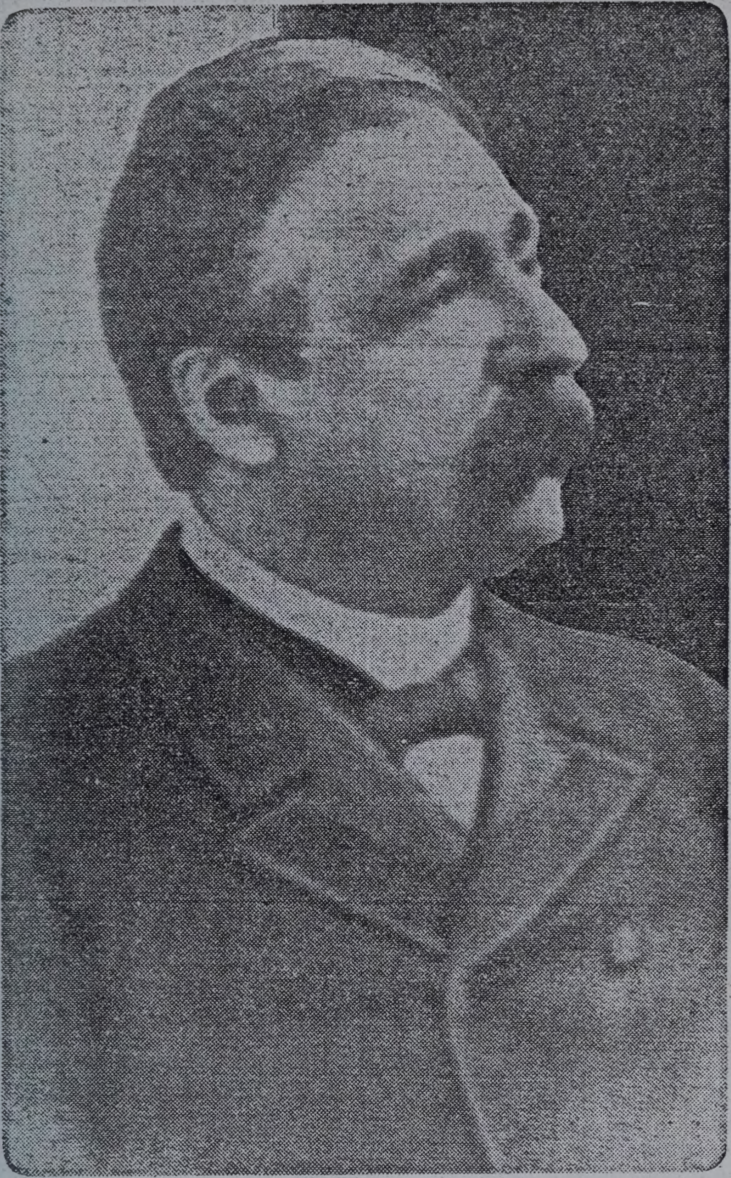
STEPHEN B. GRUMMOND.

In 1861 Capt. Grummond married Miss Louisa B. Prouty. The union was blessed with eleven children. Of these four are dead, the surviving ones being Mrs. Marie Graves, of Chicago, Nathaniel P., Stephen B., Jr., U. Grant, Grace, Edith and Edna Ora Grummond. Two of Capt. Grummond's sisters, Mrs. B. S. Horton, of Vermillion, O., and Mrs. D. W. Poindexter, of Ashton, S. D., also survive him.

Capt. Grummond was a Democrat in his younger days, but ever since the election of President Lincoln he has been an ardent Republican. In 1879 he was elected member of the board of estimates, and at the expiration of his term, in 1881, he was elected a member of the board of councilmen, the upper house of the city council, which had been established just then. After serving for two years in this office he was unanimously nominated by his party for the office of mayor, to which he was elected. Before his term as mayor had expired The Free Press had occasion to refer to his career as the chief executive of this city in the following language:

"He has been in the main an excellent mayor and has discharged the duties of his office as he understood them, with painstaking fidelity, entire honesty, and no greater display of partisanship than would be naturally expected of an official chosen by partisan vote."

Capt. Grummond was a member of the police commission at the time of his death, also of Detroit Commandery, No. 1, K. T. The funeral will take place from Christ Church at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.



STEPHEN BENEDICT GRUMMOND, MAYOR OF DETROIT, 1884-85. He was widely known for his extensive interest in lake navigation. One time head of the old Grummond Mackinac Line. When only 21 years of age, he was skipper of his own ship on the Great Lakes. A practical business man, his administration as Mayor of Detroit, was marked by the same good sense and sound business principles which in his private career had ensured success.

The Fetterman massacre

Fort Phil Kearney was a military post set up in the northern Rockies to guard a wagon road called the Bozeman Trail. This Trail branched northwest from the Oregon Trail and passed through Wyoming, crossing the Powder and Tongue Rivers and the Big Horn Mountains. It wended its way all the way to the gold diggings in Virginia City, Montana. Overlooked by the soldiers was the fact that this trail made its way through traditional Sioux hunting grounds and that Oglala war chief Red Cloud had vowed to defend the territory and shut down the trail. The Army brass in Washington, however, ordered the road kept open at all costs.

Put in charge of Fort Kearney was Colonel Henry Carrington. In 1866 he was sent in command of the 18th Infantry Regiment to build and garrison a series of posts along the trail. Carrington had no Indian fighting experience. Neither was he experienced at handling men. In November of 1866, Captain William Fetterman joined the regiment. Unlike Carrington, Fetterman had served with the 18th Regiment during the Civil War and was an experienced fighter. He was well respected and had a keen dislike for Indians. He was of the firm belief that no Indians, no matter how numerous, could match it with a regiment of well disciplined U.S. soldiers.

Fetterman soon noticed that the Indians were free to attack the wood train which went out from the fort without guard. He was soon arguing with Carrington that an escort was needed for the wood train and, furthermore, a preemptive strike on the Indians would keep them at arms length. Before long Fetterman was at the head of a rebellion against Carrington, with his talk of teaching the Indians a lesson. He had in fact, convinced the man that with just 80 men he could cut through the entire Sioux nation. Soon he was openly accusing Carrington of cowardice and timidity.

Meanwhile, outside the Fort Red Cloud and Roman Nose of the Cheyenne were assembling several thousand fighting men. On December 6th, the wood train, which had no escort, was attacked by a large party of warriors. When Carrington came out to retaliate he was met by an imposing force of warriors. He rushed back to the fort, losing two dead and five wounded. Shaken by this he forbade any of his men to pursue fleeing Indians in the future.

Two weeks later, Red Cloud staged another decoy strike on the wood train. But this time, Carrington was not sucked in. There was just one day of wood cutting left for the winter. By coincidence, Red Cloud chose this day, December 21, 1866 as the day for a major strike. At 11 am the wood train was attacked by the Indians. Carrington prepared to send out a Captain Powell to reinforce the wood train, but Fetterman demanded the right to lead the rescue. Weak as ever, Carrington yielded.

Fettreman rounded up 79 men and – with the exact number he had bragged that he could wipe out the whole Sioux nation – set off to meet the foe. Carrington's orders to him were clear:

Fettreman rounded up 79 men and – with the exact number he had bragged that he could wipe out the whole Sioux nation – set off to meet the foe. Carrington's orders to him were clear: "Relieve the wood train. Under no circumstances pursue the enemy beyond Lodge Trail Ridge!"

As Fetterman's men approached the Indians who were attacking the wood train, the warriors began to break off from the assault and flee from Fetterman's approach. Unknown to Fetterman, however, these were just decoys. As the soldiers chased them, these Indians appeared to be toying with their pursuers. They led their unwary chasers up the side of Lodge Trail Ridge. As they reached the crest of the ridge, the soldiers now became aware of a second party of warriors, who swung around on Fetterman's rear. The rash young captain found himself surrounded. It was 80 against 2000. Then the attack was on. Fetterman tried to ascend the ridge he had just come over and hide behind the cover of some rocks. But Indians were massing up that side of the ridge to join the fray too. The soldiers fought valiantly with everything they had – knives, bayonets, guns and, when the bullets ran out, their gunstocks – but it was a hopeless task. Within twenty minutes all 80 men were dead.

As the Indians swarmed in for their final assault, Fetterman and his second in command ,Captain Fred Brown, stood up, and placed their pistols at the side of each other's head. They fired simultaneously. So ended William Fetterman's proud boast to be able to ride through the entire Sioux nation.

CASUALTIES OF THE FETTERMAN FIGHT

Imagine yourself back in 1866, December 21 to be exact. You are a young recruit serving at an outpost in Dakota Territory called Fort Phil Kearny. It is a young fort, only started the previous July. Since its beginnings there have been many troubles with the Indians. Raiding parties steal horses, mules, cattle, whatever they can get. Often the raids occur every 2 or 3 days. Most of the men with you are young, some are from other countries, with little or no experience at Army life. The commander of Fort Kearny is Col. Carrington. The man leading you now is Capt. William Judd Fetterman. With him is Lt. George W. Grummond. There are 80 military men and 2 civilians marching this time.

At first you had been ordered to relieve a wood train because it was believed by your superiors to be under attack. You have left the fort and are now marching north. It is cold, very cold, but you keep marching until you come to a ridge about 5 miles north of the fort where you come upon the Bozeman Trail. All of a sudden INDIANS! Many, many Indians. You are surrounded. The cavalry that had been beside the infantry until moments before, is now north of you, dismounting and starting to fight. There is chaos everywhere. Every man starts shooting, men falling all around you. Weird, eerie war cries from the Indians. You can't tell which tribes they are, but have heard there are Sioux, Cheyenne, and Arapahoe in this area. These are their last great hunting grounds and they will defend them. There are so many Indians, maybe upwards of 2,000, compared to only 82 of you and your companions.

The firing is slowing now, lasting for less than a half-hour. Silence now. Capt. Tenodore Ten Eyck arrives, but too late for you and your friends. He finds bodies stretched out along a mile and a half of ridge, all dead, all horribly mutilated. Half of the bodies are taken back to the fort that afternoon. The rest will be retrieved the following day.

Due in part to the Fetterman Fight, Col. Carrington will be ordered elsewhere, his superior in Omaha will also have a change in locations. December 21, 1866 was the second largest major victory for the Indians, the first being nine and one-half years later, and 80 miles further north at a place called Little Big Horn.
